NATIONAL DEBT HAS INCREASED $500,000,000

White House Says Deficit of $950,000,000 Is Cut by Redemption.

FISCAL YEAR TO RUN BEHIND $1,430,000,000

Agricultural Officials Save $11,000,000; Hoover Plans Other Economies.

(Associated Press.)

After Government finances had been discussed by President Hoover and his Cabinet yesterday, the White House announced the national debt would be increased $500,000,000 for the fiscal year ended June 30, because of falling revenue and increased expenditures.

On the other hand, it was said Agriculture Department officials had informed the President that $11,000,000 would be saved this fiscal year and $20,000,000 next year from the departments appropriations.

As part of his announced program to trim Governmental expenditures as much as possible, President Hoover yesterday requested Navy Department officials to meet with him over the week-end at the Rapidan camp to search for means of saving in that branch of the Government.

Total Deficit $900,000,000.

The deficit, a White House statement said, will be approximately $900,000,000 to $950,000,000 for the year. Of this amount $440,000,000 will be due to the redemption of the public debt required by law, so that the actual increase in national indebtedness will amount to about $500,000,000.

The deficit is due, it was said, principally to a falling off in Treasury receipts caused by the depression. They apparently will be about $840,000,000 below those for the fiscal year, ended June 30, 1930. Added to this amount is the additional burden of about $50,000,000 caused by a drop in postal receipts.

There has been a large increase in expenditures for construction work and agriculture relief, which is expected to amount to approximately $540,000,000 more than was expended for those purposes the last fiscal year.

These figures alone—a reduction of $890,000,000 in receipts and an increase of $540,000,000 in expenditures—would indicate that the Government would be over $1,430,000,000 behind last year. It was said at the White House, however, that reductions in expenditures brought about by a study last summer amount to $180,000,000. Also, during the fiscal year, ended last June, the debt was reduced by $305,000,000 in excess of the statutory amount, while this year it is being held to the legal requirements.

These two sums, it was explained, make a difference in the financial situation of $485,000,000, and will result in a final deficit of about $900,000,000 or $950,000,000.

Navy Department officials have not been optimistic on the possibility of effecting any great saving. They have pointed out that the five-year airplane program has not been completed, and that the Navy is not built up to the limit set by the London arms conference.

White House Statement.

The White House statement said:

"In reply to inquiries from the press the following information in round numbers has been furnished by the director of the budget as to the economies made during the past year and the probable fiscal situation upon July 1.

"Present indications are that the financial transactions of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1931, will show an increase of about $500,000,000 in the national debt. The deficit is from about $900,000,000 to $950,000,000, of which about $440,000,000 will be due to the statutory redemption of the debt.

"The deficit is principally due to a falling off in receipts of the Treasury, from taxes and other sources, caused by the depression which will apparently be about $840,000,000 below the fiscal year ended June 30, 1930. Added to this is the additional burden of about $50,000,000 fall in postal receipts.

"There have also been large increases in expenditures for construction work and agricultural relief and for veterans' services amounting to closed last Saturday midnight more letters containing ads about the various firms had been received than during the previous six weeks of the campaign. Everyone was interested in that $1,000 grand prize.

Now the judges are wading through the enormous stack of amateur advertisements, seeking the winning ad, the writer of which will receive the grand award.

Watch The Post for an announcement as to when the name of the winner will be published. It may be some time, for the judges face a hard task. But after it is all over, everyone will have enjoyed the contest, advertisers and entrants alike.

George V, 66 Today, Will Attend Derby

Embassy Attache Here Is Included in List of Birthday Honors.

London, June 2 (A.P.).—King George V, restored in health after his critical illness of two years ago and the lesser bronchial attack of last March, tomorrow will celebrate his sixty-sixth birthday by going with Queen Mary to see the Derby run at Epsom Downs.

The usual family luncheon party at Buckingham Palace has been canceled in favor of a gathering at Epsom before the race, when the Prince of Wales and most of the other members of the family will share a snack with their father and mother before viewing the greatest of all British races.

The traditional "trooping the color" celebration, which is staged annually in honor of the king's birthday, has been postponed until Saturday in order to allow the monarch to witness the Derby. His other sons will then be present with the king at the parade of the Horse Guards, one of the most colorful events of the London season.

Following the established custom, a long list of birthday "honors" were made public tonight, in which the monarch conferred four baronetcies, twenty-four knighthoods, one order of merit and created two members of the privy council. For the first time in many years no peers were created.

The king tonight held his first Derby dinner in two years, entertaining fifty-six members of the Jockey Club. The dinner was held in the famous white and gold state dining room on the first floor of the palace.

The world of learning is represented in the birthday honors by Prof. Horace Lamb, eminent Cambridge mathematician; James Black Baillie, vice chancellor of Leed's University; Charles Reed Peers, president of the Royal Society of Antiquaries; Henry Wade Deacon, prochancellor of Liverpool University; Arthur Ernest Cowley, librarian of the Bodleian Library at Oxford.

Municipal officials, medical men and educators also appear on the list of knighthoods, but the best known name of all is that of Ben Turner, M. P., veteran trade unionist, who was secretary for mines.

Sir William Henry Bragg, the eminent physicist, receives the Order of Mercy, a rank below that of knighthood in the official hierarchy, but in the minds of many Britishers the most coveted distinction the nation can bestow.

Sir Edward Elgar celebrated his own seventy-fourth birthday today.

The remainder of the list consists chiefly of a great number of appointments of lesser grades and various orders of knighthood conferred chiefly for service overseas.

An important home appointment, however, is that of Walford H. M. Selby, who has been a prominent figure at numerous international conferences as private secretary to Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson. He becomes a K. C. M. G.

Henry Owen Chalkley, commercial counselor of the British Embassy at Washington, was made a C. M. G.

Half a dozen women appear upon the list of minor distinctions, among the most prominent of whom is Miss Alice Werner, formerly professor of Bantu languages at the London School for Oriental Studies and a noted authority of African philology.

The Earl of Athlone, former governor general of South Africa, and Attorney General Sir William Jowitt were made privy councilors.

8 HORTON CHARGES GIVEN LEGISLATORS

Conspiracy and Dereliction in Duty Are Alleged in Accusations.

Nashville, Tenn., June 2 (A.P.).—Consideration of eight articles of impeachment against Gov. Henry H. Horton was begun today by the Tennessee House of Representatives as three clerks, working in relays, droned away at reading the lengthy charges.

A special committee which submitted one article last week reported seven additional charges today and said in an accompanying report that it was not to be understood it was "reporting that said eight articles contain and charge all of the offenses for which Gov. Horton is now impeachable."

In the presentments the governor was accused of the following:

1. That he conspired with Col. Luke Lea, publisher and politician, and Rogers Caldwell, financier, to conduct the State government in such a manner that they would profit financially and he, in turn, receive their political influence to keep him in office.

2. That he was derelict in his duty by neglecting to cause any estimates to be made of the amount of surety bonds that commissioners and their subordinates handling public funds should give.

3. That the resignation of Neil Bass as highway commissioner was demanded in 1928, because "said Bass would not abdicate and surrender his official conscience, duties and discretion to the said Lea and Caldwell for the purpose of serving their interests and the political interests of Gov. Horton, regardless of the welfare and proper economies of the State of Tennessee."

4. That the governor, "again disappointed in his hope and effort" to have Bass' successor, Harry H. Berry, "abdicate and ignore the duties of his office and allow same to be turned over to and usurped by the said Horton for his political advantage and to be used by the said Caldwell and Lea for their pecuniary advantage and gain," dismissed him also.

5. That while W. M. (Billy) Wilkerson, convicted of operating a gambling house in Memphis and given a fine and workhouse sentence, was a fugitive from justice and a requisition for him had been issued on the governor of Arkansas, when he conferred with Horton in the executive

COOK COUNTY FAILS TO MEET ITS BONDS

Illinois Community Defaults $1,868,400 Payment as Tax Money Lags.

Chicago, June 2 (A.P.).—A thunderbolt crackled out of Chicago's darkened financial sky today as principal and interest payment of $1,868,400 in Cook County bonds were defaulted for lack of funds.

The bolt unloosed the expected tax money storm. Loop bankers and county officials hurriedly conferred. The financial cloud drove Mayor Anton J. Cermak to seek shelter from the Legislature at Springfield. City and county leaders hastened to the capital to urge immediate action on tax reform bills now pending. He said city bonds would soon have to be defaulted unless legislative relief were forthcoming.

As in the 1930 financial disturbance, the underlying cause of muddled money matters was the delay in reassessment, ordered in 1928 by the State tax commission, placing collection of taxes two years behind schedule.

Only $155,000,000 of the 1929 tax bill of $276,000,000 has been collected, while the 1930 taxes are now more than a year past regular collection time, making the city and county coffers $340,000,000 short of what should have been paid up to this time. To add to the impecunity, bankers have refused to continue buying anticipation warrants until the 1930 assessment has been spread and reorganized. Bankers today, however, agreed to buy in the defaulted county bonds at par if the debentures and coupons were presented before July 1.

County Treasurer Joseph McDonough said the bonds defaulted today were only a part of those on which interest and principal payments must be met during the year.

From City Comptroller M. S. Szymczak came an appeal for all citizens who have not yet done so, to hurry their payment of 1929 taxes and "save Chicago's credit."

While Mayor Cermak wants the legislature to change the tax machinery, a more fantastic scheme was proposed by a State senator today. Acting on a suggestion of United States Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, Harold Ward, Chicago, introduced a bill authorizing the State to borrow $500,000,000 from the Federal Government to alleviate taxing ills in State, county and city governments.

Girl, 18, Pronounced Dead, Awakes on Slab in Morgue

Fainting in Grand Central Terminal, She Is Declared Lifeless, But Revives Later to Run From Room, Screaming With Terror.

New York, June 2 (U.P.).—Miss Ivy Rogers, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Rogers, of Greenwich, Conn., was recovering today from the shock after she had been pronounced "dead" by a physician, and placed in a temporary morgue pending arrival of an undertaker.

Miss Rogers was put in a dark, cold room that serves as a morgue in the Grand Central Terminal here last Thursday, it was learned from her parents, after she fainted in the railway terminal.

"She was on her way to catch the 5:10 train for home," the girl's mother said today, "when she fainted. Some attendants ran to her side and a doctor was called. He examined her and pronounced her dead."

The terminal—largest railroad station in the world—has an emergency hospital attached to it and the temporary morgue is a part of the hospital. Miss Rogers was carried into the morgue, according to her mother, and laid out on a cold slab. Then the door was closed.

"The cold air in the place," Mrs. Rogers said, "revived Ivy and she was terrified. The room was totally dark and without ventilation. She jumped up and ran to the door. She hammered on it and screamed. She was so overwrought when an attendant finally unlocked the door that she

GAMING CENTER DISCOVERED IN RAID BY POLICE

30 Phones, Thought Used to Aid Bookmakers, Are Found.

TRICK DOOR IN WALL BARED ON INSPECTION

Law Library Is Revealed in Building; Paraphernalia Taken; One Arrested.

The nerve center of scores of small handbook makers was struck by police raiders yesterday in an invasion of what they believe was a "clearing house" for small bookmakers. The establishment was the most elaborately equipped gambling house uncovered in the recent drive by headquarters detectives.

In the three-story building, on H street near Ninth street northwest, the detectives uncovered more than 30 telephones, which they believe, were used for relaying race information to "small fry" bookmakers, and accepting "lay-offs."

No numbers were on the telephones, although police have ascertained that they were all individual phones connected directly with the Metropolitan exchange. So far as police have learned there were no leased wires to race tracks.

More concern has been evinced by the detective sergeants in the identity of the owner, believing that if they can arrest him, they will strike a severe blow at the gambling fraternity in general.

Grady Vaunt, of Eleventh street near L street northwest, who was arrested by detectives and charged with permitting gaming, was questioned following his arrest. Detectives are positive that if he was connected with the place it was only in a minor capacity.

Raided at Post Time.

Detective Sergts. Howard E. Ogle, Arthur Fihelly, O. W. Mansfield, and Norman Hodgkinson, still "looking for a couple of fellows" in connection with the attempted theft of liquor from the Legation of El Salvador, descended on the three-story house just about post time at several tracks.

They are positive the place was operated as a clearing house by some of the leaders of the bookmakers. Several coats, left behind by operators who fled through an ingenious trapdoor in the wall, contined identification cards through which the police expect to trace the owner.

On the second and third floors detectives found telephones on long desks, three or four telephones to the desk. Each desk was littered with betting slips, race charts, and other gambling paraphernalia.

The men arrested was in a cigar store on the ground floor of the building. The raiders said they heard him place several bets over a direct wire connecting with the betting booths on the upper floors.

When the detectives entered the upper floors they found the other operatos had fled through the trap door in the wall which led to an adjoining building, affording a means of escape to Ninth street.

In one of the booths, the detectives said they found a slip which

CANADA'S RAISE IN TARIFF STIRS POLITICAL ROW

Democrats Point to Step in Again Urging Cut in Rates of U. S.

PROTECTION SOUGHT, G. O. P. LEADERS SAY

Many of American Products Still Will Be Sold in Large Numbers.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The action of Canada, America's best customer, in increasing tariff duties on some 200 articles, caused a major controversy between Republican and Democratic politicians yesterday. Meanwhile, experts were trying to estimate just what effect the new Canadian schedules would have on American exports.

The Democrats contended that the new duties announced Monday by Premier R. B. Bennett constituted a retaliation against the American Hawley-Smoot act, and they further contended that the new Canadian rates were another reason why the rates in the Hawley-Smoot act should be lowered.

The Republicans denied that the Canadian schedules meant a reprisal, one of those joining in the denial being Senator Reed Smoot (Republican), of Utah. Canada, the Republicans said, was simply trying to protect her farmers and workers, just as Congress protected the farmers and workers of the United States in the Hawley-Smoot act.

Value of $160,000,000.

On the basis of figures made public by the Department of Commerce, it was estimated that the new Canadian rates would affect American exports, the value of which last year was about $160,000,000. This does not mean that the new Canadian duties will cut off that much American business, but simply that the new duties will be applied to exports that were valued at that sum last year.

Many American products are expected to sell as well, or nearly as well, despite the increased duty. For example, an increased duty is placed on American automobiles valued at more than $1,200. However, if a Canadian citizen who has the money wants a Packard or a Pierce-Arrow or a Lincoln, he is expected to buy it regardless of the increased price caused by the duty.

The five American products that are expected to be especially affected by the new Canadian rates are automobiles, coal, steel, oranges and magazines.

Fight Over Coal Market.

In the last eight years or so, England has been making strenuous efforts to drive the United States out of the coal market in Canada. Under the new schedules, a duty of 40 cents a ton is placed on anthracite, or hard coal, from the United States, while English coal is given a preferential duty of 35 cents a ton. In addition to this, the English coal may be shipped across Canada at an average of $1 a ton less than the American coal.

In the case of bituminous coal, the situation is somewhat different. In the first place, there is not much of a British threat in this field. Whatever competition the Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio bituminus producers face is from the bituminous producers in Canada, who are located on the East and West coasts.

In his pronouncement Monday, Premier Bennett boosted the rate on

Ritchie Says Idleness Is Menace to Nation

Maryland's Executive Tells Governors' Convention 5,000,000 Unemployed Are Strongest Argument for Communism.

French Lick, Ind., June 2 (A.P.).—"You can not have from five to eight million people wanting work and unable to get it without knowing that this constitutes a challenge to our social order, and that it is the strongest argument for communism unless it is solved," declared Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland in presiding at the annual conference of governors this afternoon.

Referring to prohibition, the Maryland executive said that if this question is turned back to the States, then a system of excise taxes may again be built up which might do away altogether with Federal income taxes and at "one stroke relieve capital, labor and agriculture from the tax burdens which rest so heavily upon them."

Today's sessions of the conference were crowded with speeches, including gubernatorial shop talk, the warning of Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania against "the domination of public utilities in political life" and the paper by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York on land utilization.

"The power of public utilities," Gov. Pinchot asserted, "is manifest in every political assembly from Congress to town meeting." He added: "Interstate commerce in electric current is still outside either Federal or State control."

Gov. Roosevelt said he could not take a "Pollyanna" attitude toward present day economic programs. "It is not enough to talk about being of good cheer," he said. "A new economic and social balance calls for positive leadership and definite experiments which have not hitherto been tried."

The New York governor suggested diversification of industrial life by sending a fair proportion of it into rural districts as one of the definite possibilities of the future. Cheap electric power, good roads and automobiles make such a rural development feasible, he said.

"There are many industries which can succeed just as well, if not better," Gov. Roosevelt said, "by bringing them to rural communities, and at the same time these rural communities will be given higher annual income capacity."

Gov. Ritchie's remarks came as a surprise to the score of State executives attending the conference. The Maryland executive said that if he were to offer any criticism of the

Davis Statue Unveiled In Nation's Capitol

World War Makes Place for Noted Confederate in Hall of Fame.

(United Press.)

Jefferson Davis' statue was unveiled yesterday in the hall of the Capitol, where he served as a member of the House of Representatives before he cast his fortunes with the South in the Civil War.

It took a World War and its uniting influence to bring the time when the president of the Confederate States of America could be honored as a national figure, and his statue could be put in Statuary Hall among those of other great Americans.

More than any other man, perhaps, Mr. Davis was made to suffer for his part in the War Between the States. For two years—from May, 1865, to May, 1867—he was a prisoner, maligned, admittedly maltreated, in a cell at Fort Monroe, Va. For part of that time he was manacled, to dishonor him, and all the time there hung over him the threat of a trial for treason, of which he was twice indicted.

Only a few years ago, when Lee's statue was placed by Virginia in the hall, there was a flare-up of Civil War hatred. Mississippi decided to protect Davis' name, so a propitious time was awaited to nominate him for the National Hall of Fame.

Yesterday all that seemed very far

CHERRYDALE MAN DROWNS IN RAPIDS

Bertram Campbell, 48, Sinks to Death in River Near Chain Bridge.

Caught in the swift undercurrent while swimming in the Potomac River near Chain Bridge yesterday afternoon, Bertram Campbell, 48 years old of Cherrydale, Va., was carried to his death in the swirling rapids about 150 yards off the Virginia shore.

Campbell, who had been camping along the river for several weeks, was fishing from some rocks near the shore, witnesses declared, when he stripped off his clothes, and dived into the water. He swam about for several minutes, but suddenly disappeared below the surface.

Persons on the bridge saw him reappear, several yards down the river, and when it became apparent that he was struggling to reach shore, they notified Charles Fletcher, proprietor of a nearby boathouse, who went to Campbell's aid in a small launch.

The swift waters made it difficult to reach the spot where Campbell was last seen, but after a half-hour's search, the body was found floating near the rock from which he had been fishing.

After he had been brought to the foot of Chain Bridge on the Virginia side of the river, members of the Fire Rescue Squad worked over him for an hour, but he was later pronounced dead by a doctor from Emergency Hospital.

Campbell, it was said, was one of the best swimmers in the Chain Bridge vicinity. He had maintained a summer camp on the river front for many years, and residents declared they had often seen him swimming near the same spot in which he was drowned.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and

THOUSANDS LURED BY DRY AGENT JOBS

10,000 Discount Repeal Talk in Applying for Civil Service Posts.

By J. R. McDONNELL.

Repeal of prohibition may be written large on the wall for all to see, but upward of 10,000 of those who can not read the handwriting that way are desirous of becoming prohibition enforcement agents.

The number of men and women, although the number of the latter probably will be relatively small, are expected to participate in an examination for prohibition agents which soon will be held by the Civil Service Commission.

Announcement of the examination was made on May 14 and already 2,000 applications have been received. Commission officials estimate that the flying start will carry the number of applications filed before June 16, when the lists close, to 10,000. Records of the commission show that more than three-fourths of the applicants for Government jobs file in the last ten days before the deadline.

The coming examination is limited to bona fide residents of the 21 States in which the Prohibition Bureau feels the need for additional agents. If it were a national free-for-all, the number which might be expected to make a try for the job of prohibition agent would be more than doubled, it is estimated.

Maryland is among the 21 States from which eligibles will be selected by means of the examination. Other States are California, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Vermont and Wisconsin.

Jury Asks That Man Replace Woman as Manassas Jailer

Special Inquiry Ended and Veniremen Also Urge That Heavy Wire Be Placed Over First Floor Windows to Keep Out Weapons.

Special to The Washington Post.

Manassas, Va., June 2.—Recommending that the jailer of the Prince William County jail here, be a man, a special grand jury today completed its investigation into the physical condition of the jail as well as the methods of its administration. The present jailer is Mrs. J. Wilts, who lives in the jail with her family.

The investigation followed release of a prisoner to her attorney upon payment of a fine imposed by a justice of the peace to the county constable without the formality of dealing through the court imposing the sentence. The attorney returned his client to the jail and a resultant row between Sheriff J. P. Kerlin and P. S. Williams, attorney, led to the jury investigation.

No provision for a salary for a jailer is made by the county so that the sheriff is handicapped in finding any one willing to live at the jail. The sheriff lives in another town and his duties prevent frequent visits to the jail.

"Methods of handling inmates of the jail are in bad and loose condition," the special jury reported, pointing out that at times no one is in charge, except one of the prisoners, who is intrusted with the keys, with full and complete access to the prisoners. Several prisoners have escaped, the most recent being Robert Watson, convicted and sen-

VATICAN, IL DUCE SECRETLY SEEK TO END DISPUTE

Veil of Silence Shrouds Negotiations Held in Religious Crisis.

CARDINAL GASPARRI'S PART IN PARLEY SEEN

Significance Is Noted in His Retention of Post by Papal Nuncio.

Rome, June 2 (A.P.).—Secret negotiations to break the deadlock between the Holy See and the Italian state in the present crisis were in progress tonight.

Following the closing of Catholic youth clubs by the Italian government, it was learned from a good source that convesations are being conducted by Cardinal Gasparri, who signed the Lateran treaty and concordat in 1929, with Premier Mussolini.

Cardinal Gasparri spent an hour today in the office of the papal secretary of state and it is generally understood that the aged retired statesman is connected with the handling of the present situation.

Considerable mystery surrounds these conversations and the identity of others taking part in them. Both the papal and the Italian foreign offices say that they are proceeding, but no details have been made public.

Papal Nuncio Retains Post.

Observers point significantly to the fact that the papal nuncio to Rome is still at his post. Many diplomats and even Vatican officials had expected his recall as a protest to Mussolini's banning of the Catholic youth organizations.

The pontiff, instead, is abiding his time, but losing no opportunity to express his disapproval of the action of the Fascist government.

Again today he told Mexican pilgrims to the Vatican that the Catholic Action was never a political group. He advised the visitors to be careful not to mingle in politics.

The Pope said he was particularly glad to see his sons from Mexico because they were much dearer to him as their sufferings had been great.

Inviting them to pray, he concluded with his apostolic blessing.

Meanwhile the atmosphere today was cleared of some of its doubts. Playgrounds of the Knights of Columbus were said to have been closed under the general order against the Catholic organizations. The Y. M. C. A., however, through a sort of affiliation with the Balilla, an organization for Fascist boys, was allowed to reopen after half an hour technical closing of one room.

Duce's Statement Awaited.

Another doubt removed was that of some quarters about the finality of Mussolini's dissolution of the Catholic youth societies. It was shown by the foreign office's announcement that the dissolution was real, although Mussolini can rescind the order later, thus enabling the clubs to reorganize.

So far Italy's only news of the dissolution has been limited to the 45-word official communique issued last night and published without comment in all papers. Under the communique newspapers carried a statement of the strength of Fascist youth organizations, whose total membership was given as 1,700,000.

A brief statement is expected from the premier tomorrow after a meeting of the Fascist party directorate of 18 leaders.

Pope Evidences Disapproval.

The Pope's only official acts in the matter so far have been his gesture of disapproval of Mussolini's dissolution decree, such as withdrawal of his personal representative at the Padua celebrations, cancellation of the diocesan eucharistic congress here and placing bishops in charge of Catholic societies. He also has prohibited all church processions.

It is considered possible that this last order may make exceptions for certain historic events, such as that of the "Corpus Christi" feast next Thursday.

On next Friday Foreign Minister Dino Grandi is scheduled to make a speech in which some persons believe he may refer to the religious subject, although so far Mussolini has regarded the Catholic Action as an internal affair and therefore under his own ministry.

Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, of San Francisco, said yesterday the attitude of the Pope toward the Italian government is for "the Christian rights of every individual and of the peoples of every nation."

"The holy father in his pronouncements and in his attitude toward the present Italian government is standing fearlessly for the Christian rights of every individual and of the peoples of every nation," said his statement through the National Catholic Welfare Conference, of which he is chairman of the administrative committee.

"He has been compelled through repeated acts of irritation and injustice to state explicitly the eternal principles that preserve human liberty and oppose state absolutism," the archbishop said, adding:

"We can but hope and pray for a peaceful solution, but whatever comes, the whole world is again indebted to the father of Christendom."

The detectives entered through a window on the second floor of the building. A heavy oak door, reinforced with steel bars, was taken from its hinges, and brought to headquarters as evidence.

Yaunt told police he had been employed for the past two years as a clerk in the cigar store. The owner, of the store, he said, was a man named Joseph E. Gordon.

Two other raids were made during the day by members of the vice squad. One was on New York avenue near Twelfth street. In this raid, Jack Angell, of Ninth near Upshur street, was arrested and charged with permitting gaming. Six persons were held as Government witnesses.

The other raid was staged later in the afternoon on Twelfth street near E street northwest. George R. Holden, of E street near Eleventh street was held for investigation.

7. That the executive, as ex-officio member of the State funding board, "unlawfully procured" passage of a resolution designating the Bank of Tennessee as depository for bridge funds in order that such deposits might "serve the private interest and advantage of Rogers Caldwell and Caldwell & Co.," of which Caldwell was head and a bank subsidiary. As a result of deposits made in this "insolvent institution," the article declared, the State lost more than $2,000,000 in its failure.

8. That Horton caused to be "concealed" from the public the amount of receipts and expenditures of public money so as to obtain his nomination and election last year. It also was alleged that the statute requiring the governor to approve quarterly estimates of departmental expenditures has been disregarded and that this has "contributed to and tended to bring about an era of wastefulness and extravagance unparelled in the history of the State."

Rogers Caldwell was president of Caldwell & Co., Nashville investment banking house, and the Bank of Tennessee, a subsidiary of Caldwell & Co. Their failure last fall was followed by the closing of several other banks in Tennessee, which had State funds on deposit amounting to about $7,000,000.

3 SOCIAL FUNCTIONS ENLIVEN ANNAPOLIS

Garden Party and Ring Dance Included on Program; Ball Set Tonight.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., June 2.—Three social functions, all in progress at the same time tonight, climaxed an interesting program of activities incident to commencement day at the Naval Academy.

These were the garden party given in honor of the graduates and their friends by Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, superintendent, and Mrs. Hart at their home on Blake road; the ring dance, exclusive to members of the second class and their girl friends; the third classmen were hosts at a dance for their particular friends, while the plebes had to be content with taking their escorts to the movies, either in the naval reservation or the shows in town, or otherwise whiling away the liberty period as they chose.

Though a trifle cool, the weather was otherwise typical of June, and every one entered into the day's festivities with a zest, although the midshipmen, burdened by the series of drills, were fatigued when the day's rush was over.

Cameramen Are Present.

During the forenoon the regiment executed various maneuvers for the benefit of cameramen and sound film operators, this arrangement having been made so that there would be no interference with the official schedule of events. Hurrying through the drills as much as possible proved trying on the student body, as indicated by the fact that a number fainted in ranks and had to be removed from the drill grounds of Worden Field in the Navy ambulance. They were soon revived, however.

At "dress parade" at 5:30 in the afternoon the interesting ceremony of presenting the regimental colors, won in competition extending over the academic term, took place. The presentation was shorn of the romantic ceremony that was traditional for many years, that is, the successful company commander kissing the girl making the presentation, who is of his own nomination and regarded as his bride-to-be. Word came down the line during the day that Superintendent Hart had banned this feature. Like action was taken by former Superintendent Samuel S. Robison last year.

The girl who had the honor of passing over the standards is Miss Eloise Hanford, Syracuse, N. Y., the home town of Midshipman Lieut. Norman Hall, who commanded the third company which won the laurels. With the midshipmen attired in full dress uniforms of blue, with gold buttons and steel bayonets of their rifles glistening in the rays of a towering sun, drawn at attention, Miss Hanford, on the arm of Capt. Charles P. Snyder, commandant of midshipmen, advanced to the front of the line, presented the gold and blue embellished regimental flag to Lieut. Hall, who in turn passed it over to the official color bearers. The regiment then gave three cheers for the winning company, and the winners acknowledged with a cheer for their comrades.

Garden Party Is Brilliant.

With the grounds of the superintendent's quarters elaborately decorated with Japanese lanterns and varicolored electric bulbs, the garden party in honor of the graduates was a brilliant spectacle.

The second classmen and their girls held sway in Luce Hall for the "ring dance," the occasion marking the formal christening of class rings. An old academy custom prohibits wearing of rings by this class until this time. The big feature of the event was the grand march, the Middies and their girl partners passing through a huge ring, designed as closely as possible after the gold trinket.

An important business engagement will prevent Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams from coming to Annapolis Thursday to address the graduates and present diplomas, it was announced at the academy today. In his stead the honors will be performed by Assistant Secretary Ernest F. Jahncke.

Farewell Ball Tonight.

Tomorrow's program calls for a regimental physical drill at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, band concert at 4:30, dress parade and presentation of prizes and athletic awards at 5:30, and the farewell ball to the graduates in Dahlgren Hall at night. All classes of Midshipmen are permitted to attend this, the most brilliant social event of the year.

The honor list of graduates made public with addresses at the academy today is headed by Midshipman Thomas D. Tyra, of St. Paul, Minn., who completed the four-year course with a rating of 902.39 on the basis of a possible 1,000.

A. D. Veasey, Atlantic City, N. J., was second with 900.67. Twenty-nine were given places on the honor list, out of the 441 to receive diplomas Thursday. The others follow in the order of their ratings.

H. Rivero, Manati, Porto Rico; R. K. Anderson, Lexington, Ky.; A. L. Reed, Little Rock, Ark.; J. V. Colwell, Pawnee City, Nebr.; J. T. F. Prescott, Los Angeles, Calif.; T. W. Rogers, Louisville, Ky.; D. A. Bauer, North Platte, Nebr.; G. N. Powell, Pittsburgh, Pa.

R. L. Taylor, Battle Creek, Mich.; E. C. Holzworth, Huntington, W. Va.; J. S. McAfee, Kerens, Tex.; M. W. Hibschmann, Annapolis, Md.; A. K. Romberg, Red Oak, Iowa; G. M. Greene, Holbrook, Ariz.; W. C. Gale, Portland, Oreg.; J. T. Lay, St. Clair, Md.

Others Are Listed.

R. E. Gadrow, Peace Dale, R. I.; J. O. F. Dorsett, Indianapolis, Ind.; H. Payson, jr., Bristol, R. I.; B. F. Roeder, Cumberland, Md.; R. E. Parker, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. E. Flynn, Douglaston, Long Island; R. A. Pierce, Marked Tree, Ark.; A. R. Brunelli, Raton, N. Mex.; P. P. Gallaway, Clinton, Mo.; S. Mumford, Ocean City, N. J.; H. B. Moulton, Sabetha, Kans.

The intercompany competition for the regimental flag was won by the third company, commanded by Midshipman Lieut. Norman Hall, of Syracuse, N. Y.

A sword, awarded each year by the Daughters of the American Revolution to the midshipman excelling in practical seamanship, went to Harris Peterkin Child, Washington, D. C.

Maurice W. Hibschmann, of Annapolis, won the class of 1897 sword for officer like qualities.

Six other midshipmen were ranked next to Hibschmann in the following order: Alexander C. Veasey, Atlantic City; Robert Lee Taylor, Battle Creek, Mich.; Horace D. Moulton, Sabetha, Kans.; Ernest C. Horzworth, Huntington, W. Va.; Raymond P. Hunter, Sherman, Tex., and T. A. Torgerson, Okleen, Minn.

School Association to Meet.

The District of Columbia Public School Association will meet at 8 o'clock tonight in the Franklin Administration Building, Thirteenth and K streets northwest. Officers and committee chairmen and vice chairmen will be elected for 1931-32. Miss Emeline S. Whitcomb, senior specialist in home economics, U. S. office of education, will speak.

MIDSHIPMAN MISSES KISS

The traditional kiss was omitted yesterday when Miss Eloise Hanford, of Syracuse, N. Y., presented the colors to Midshipman Norman Hall, in behalf of his regiment at the U. S. Naval Academy, as part of the historic June week ceremonies. Capt. Charles P. Snyder is shown with Miss Hanford and Midshipman Hall, who is also from Syracuse. It was Capt. Snyder who ordered the kiss discontinued.

TALES OF CIVIL WAR CALLED MISLEADING

Senator Black, of Alabama, Talks at Confederate Reunion in Alabama.

Montgomery, Ala., June 2 (A.P.).—United States Senator Hugo L. Black, of Alabama, tonight told Confederate veterans, attending their forty-first annual reunion, the prophecy that history of the Confederacy would be written by unfriendly hands has come to pass.

"Because of misleading histories, even direct descendants of men who won imperishable renown following Lee and Jackson have been apologetic for the course their fathers took," Senator Black said.

"The clear vision of students has but recently pierced the clouds of prejudice and given a true portrayal of the clash and conflict between the agrarian South and commercial North. * * *

"No man can find in a true history of the South any just cause for apology. The war for Southern independence was not fought on the one side by a people who wanted freedom to perish from the earth, and on the other by a people who possessed a monopoly on morality, religion and love for liberty. The South was agricultural; the North was commercial. Thus differences resulted in a clash of interests, ambitions and objectives.

"It has been written and spoken so many times that slavery was the sole cause of the war for Southern independence that millions of people have accepted the statement without question," he said. "It was interwoven with the other elements of quarrel and conflict and while it intensified the bitterness, it was only one of the contributing causes."

Mother and Son Face Death Trial

Will Be Arraigned June 23 at Amelia Courthouse; Accused by Negro.

Amelia Courthouse, Va., June 2 (A.P.).—The trial of Mrs. J. Will Jones, charged, jointly with her son Oscar, with murder, inciting to murder, procuring murder, and aiding and abetting in the commission of the murder of her husband is set for June 23, in the June term of the Amelia County Circuit Court here.

Richard Lee, Negro farmhand, was convicted on April 11 of the murder of J. Will Jones, the husband and father, and a prominent Amelia County dairyman, who was found in his bed, shot to death, on the morning of January 9, 1931. Lee was sentenced to serve 30 years in the State Penitentiary for the murder.

Lee testified during his three-day trial that he had been offered $25 on several occasions by Mrs. Jones and Oscar Jones if he would kill the elder Jones. Mrs. Jones and her son, Oscar, were indicted on the four counts by the Amelia County grand jury shortly after the trial of Lee.

Katherine Brown Dies; Writings Brought Fame

Orlando, Fla., June 2 (A.P.).—Katherine Holland Brown, well known writer, died at her home here today after a lingering illness. She won the John Day $25,000 prize in 1927 for her book "The Feathers."

Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced, but it was thought the body will be taken to her former home at Quincy, Ill. for burial.

Tune in

for finer cooking and leisure hours

Why spend days and days every year pampering an old stove, when a tiny dial on a modern gas range can do the work for you—give you more leisure time to listen to the radio or do more important things? The old stove has been faithful, probably still works "just as well as it ever did." But the old stoves have yielded to the times. They are outclassed by modern gas ranges that save on time and energy.

Once the little control dial is set—this regulates the amount of heat for different foods to cook—the rest of the work is done automatically IN AN OVEN AT JUST THE RIGHT TEMPERATURE. Insulation keeps the heat from escaping into the kitchen—prevents waste from loss of heat and keeps your kitchen delightfully cool all summer long.

Drop in at any of our display rooms to see the latest models—ranges which will save you time and money and beautify your kitchen as well. A small down payment and the balance on liberal terms will put a modern gas range with Insulation and Oven Heat Control in your home without delay. We will allow you $10 on your old range and there is no extra charge for financing. Don't forget to ask about our "Bargain Basement."

GAS CUT PLAN WAITS FOR FINAL APPROVAL

Hyattsville Proposal Yet to Be Presented to Public Service Commission.

Although the new gas rates for Hyattsville and vicinity, reducing the average bill from $4.92 per month to $4.22, have been approved by the gas users, they have not yet been filed with the Public Service Commission for approval, it was learned yesterday.

The new rates were originally promulgated by George A. G. Wood, president of the Washington Gas Light Co. about two weeks ago. Representatives of the citizens held a conference with Mr. Wood in an attempt to reduce the proposed rates and some changes were made. It was understood that the new schedule was to be sent to the commission in Baltimore at once, according to members of the committee that consulted with Mr. Wood. The Washington Suburban Gas Co. is owned by the same interests which control the Washington firm.

Although the new rate schedule has not been received by the commission, the commission has received an indorsement of the new rates from a special committee representing the Hyattsville Chamber of Commerce and nine other civic bodies. The others are the mayor and council of Riverdale, the Stephens Citizens Association of West Riverdale, the Greater Bladensburg Citizens Association, the Decatur Heights Citizens Association, the town commissioners of Bladensburg, the mayor and council of Edmonston, the mayor and council of Colmar Manor, the mayor and council of Brentwood and the Cottage City commissioners.

Some months ago when the Seaboard Investment Trust, which owns the Washington Gas Light Co., applied to the Public Service Commission for permission to purchase the Hyattsville company, it was promised that rate reductions would be made. The hearing was held on February 25, and at that time it was said that reduced rates would be put into effect within a month. It is understood that the commission has reminded the Seaboard Trust of this promise.

The new rates set up a minimum charge of $1 for the meter service and 200 feet of gas. More than 200 feet will be charged for at the rate of $1.40 per 1,000 up to 2,300 feet. For more than 2,300 feet the rate will be 90 cents per 1,000. According to figures brought out in the discussion of the new schedule, this change will increase the gas bill of 264 users, but will lower the bills of the other 2,948 consumers.

The old rates were 50 cents meter charge, which included no gas; 35 cents per 100 for the first 200 feet, 23 cents per 100 for the next 200; next 2,600 feet, $1.74 per 1,000; next 2,000 feet, $1.70 per 1,000; next, 5,000, $1.65; over 10,000, $1.35.

The average consumption of gas per month is 2,300 feet, according to the company's figures, making the average bill under the old rate $4.92, as against $4.22 under the proposed schedule. In addition, the drop to 90 cents for more than 2,500 feet is expected to increase the consumption of gas by making it available for cooking and heating.

Mr. Wood, when proposing the new rates, said the new rates would wipe out the profits of the company unless they increased the use of gas.

Carl M. Blanchard, former chief of police of Hyattsville, has been named constable for the Hyattsville district by the county commissioners. Blanchard succeeds W. C. Hanson, who resigned.

The commissioners have reappointed Thomas R. Henault clerk of the police court for two years, and Henry St. James L. Briscoe, jr., has been named road clerk for next year. Sue Smith, of Marlboro, was appointed yesterday as stenographer to the circuit court judge and the county prosecutor for a term of two months at $65 per month.

An examining board was appointed to report on the necessity of a county road from Waterloo, near Camp Springs, to Clinton. The board is made up of John Dennison, Thomas Gwynn and Frank Dent.

The report of the police court clerk for May was received, showing 284 cases with a revenue of $4,580.75. Of this amount, the county will get $1,995.75 and the State $2,585.

A special meeting of the Hyattsville town council will be held Friday to make up the budget, which will be used as a basis for setting the tax rate later this month. The new assessments ordered this year will raise the assessed valuation of the town about $100,000, to a total of $4,250,000, as the new figures stand. However, taxpayers will be given an opportunity to protest their assessments on June 12.

The assessors were Herbert J. Moffat, Waldo Burnside and Charles L. Ervin. William Bowie, assistant treasurer of the Prince Georges Bank, has been employed to make up the tax rolls. Tax penalties will begin on August 1.

The town council has also passed an ordinance prohibiting parking along the east side of Rhode Island avenue from the overhead bridge in Hyattsville to the north line of Johnson avenue. The action was taken because it is said that parking of cars in this area created a dangerous condition.

A petition asking improvement of Ellaville street was submitted, and it was announced the petition for improvements on Grove street would be considered as it is resubmitted. Ellaville street residents want a permanent roadway from West Madison avenue to the Solesville road and want gaps in the sidewalk repaired to make a continuous walkway. The petition was referred to the road committee for investigation and report.

The Grove street petition must be presented at the monthly meeting Monday night. A petition from residents of Block street was received, but action was deferred to give time to get signatures of more property owners. The petition asked for paving of the street from the boulevard to the railroad tracks. It was decided to get the county surveyor to go over property lines on Grove and Block streets and suggest grades.

A special meeting of the council will be held Sunday morning at 8 o'clock at Cottage road to study the need for improving that street and plans of financing the improvements.

The question of changing ward lines to make the various wards more nearly the same size and also proposed changes in the hours of voting were referred to the elections committee. The council has also decided to recommend to the Park and Planning Commission the rezoning of a tract of land belonging to C. Forrest Dickey, under certain conditions.

Mr. Dickey wants the zoning changed from residential commercial to allow him to build a coal silo on the plot. The council is agreeable to this if he will sign an agreement not to charge the town for improvements if the extension of Central avenue makes condemnation of the land necessary. He has agreed to this.

The town officers of Riverdale, who were all reelected at the last election, have reappointed R. P. Caruthers clerk of the town at a salary of $300 per year.

The new officers, who are Max Vollberg, mayor, and W. A. Carson and Anton Kracke, jr., councilman, also indorsed the Hyattsville High School drive for funds for improvement of the athletic field. The town council also announced its willingness to have the school board proceed with legal steps to close Madison avenue near the school. Although the street has already been closed to through traffic, action is necessary to make the closing legal.

The council also took up the question of financing the permanent paving of Maryland avenue between the postoffice and Madison avenue. To lay a concrete roadway would cost $1,000, it was estimated.

The present road law makes the work impossible unless some agreement is reached with the owners of abutting property. Other unpaved streets in the town will be oiled, according to plans. The work will be done at a small cost and has been requested by a number of residents, it is said.

Charles Holle, of Capital Heights, who was arrested some time ago by Federal dry agents, was released yesterday by U. S. Commissioner J. Frank Parran. He was charged with sale, transportation and manufacture of whisky.

He was arrested after agents said they had found a still in a spot which they were told was frequently visited by Holle. Mr. Parran held there was not evidence to show that Holle knew anything of the plant.

Charles Adams, of N street northwest, near Fourteenth street, was held in bond of $1,000 on charge of transportation and possession. Agents said they found him and his wife in a car with a case of liquor when they stopped the machine on the Leonardtown road. Charges against his wife, Maudestine, were dropped.

In the suit of Robert F. Downham against the City of Alexandria, in the United States Court for the Eastern District of Virginia yesterday, the city won a preliminary skirmish when Judge Luther B. Way, presiding, sustained a motion of City Attorney Carl Budwesky to dismiss the petition and gave Attorney Charles Henry Smith, who appeared for Mr. Downham, leave to file an amended bill, which will be heard in Norfolk on June 12. The suit was for an order to restrain the city council from interfering with Mr. Downham in the construction of a gasoline filling station at King street and Russell road.

The court authorized the distribution of $4,626.60 to the preferred creditors of D. G. Grillbortzer, bankrupt, to cover administration costs. The general creditors will not share in the distribution.

Thomas Ferguson, 10 years old, charged with violating the national prohibition act, was discharged by the court. So far as the records go, this was the youngest person ever to appear in this court. Horace Person was sentenced to six months in jail, and Charles Ferguson fined $50 and placed on probation for eighteen months. Albert Willis and Estelle Willis were charged with dry-law violations, the former being given six months in jail and the latter acquitted of the charge.

Indictments returned yesterday by the grand jury, which was then discharged, included Robert Arnold, George Elliott, Earl Elliott, Richard Weadon, Wade E. Smith, Frank Dennison and Allen Kidwell, all charged with dry law violations by the squad of Federal prohibition agents who appeared in Alexandria late week.

Cloman Davis, on a prohibition charge, was fined $1 and placed under certain restrictions; Daniel Fritter, on the same charge, was fined $5. James Proctor, Negro, charged with assault on a Government reservation, was sentenced to two hours in jail, he having already served ten days before trial.

Final naturalization papers were granted to seven persons, of whom two each were natives of Germany, Italy and Sweden, and one of Ireland. The petitioners were aided by Alexandria Post 24 and Arlington Post 139, American Legion.

The annual celebration of the birthday of Jefferson Davis, president of the Southern Confederacy, by the Daughters of the Confederacy will be held this evening in Lee Cap Hall, with Dr. Willis J. Morton, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, as the speaker.

Mrs. Charles W. Howell, the president of the chapter, will be assisted by R. Samuel Luckett, commander of the Sons of Veterans, as master of ceremonies, and Mrs. Harrie Kirk, program chairman, will present Miss Margaret Ogden in a group of songs appropriate to the occasion. The program will close with the assemblage singing "Dixie," after which an informal reception will be held. Members of the Manassas Chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy will be guests of the chapter.

The Virginia Motor Truck Owners Association and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, in convention in the auditorium of the Virginia Public Service Co., was addressed by A. Gilbert Bell, jr., of Richmond, secretary of the association, on the aims and objects of the new organization, of which Walter S. Smith, of this city, was largely instrumental in forming in Charlottesville on May 18.

Mr. Bell stressed the need for safe and courteous driving on the highways, and in the strict observance at all times of the rules of safety.

James V. Yarnell, representative of the motor truck committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, explained the alleged methods of work and type of propaganda being used by railroad men's associations to prejudice the minds of the public and legislators against truck transportation. He stated that these sources claim that trucks and buses use the public highways for the transaction of their private business free of charge, and that in 1930 trucks and buses paid a total of $250,000,000 in taxes for the use of the public highways.

The board of directors of the chamber of commerce has gone on record as favoring legislation that will place buses and trucks on an equal tax basis with the railroads.

The directors will also press the claims of Alexandria for the College for Women to be erected by the State of Virginia. The following committee was named to assist in this undertaking: Floyd King, William Albert Smoot, Representative Howard W. Smith, State Delegate J. Fred Birrell, the Rev. Dr. Berryman Green and Dr. William Martin.

A number of robberies were reported late Monday night to police headquarters, among them that of Mrs. W. H. Aylor, living on the second floor of the bank building of Burke & Herbert, King and Fairfax streets, that her apartment had been entered in the last few days and two $20 bills stolen from a cedar chest; also a $5 gold piece, a set ring valued at $24, and a kodak valued at $35.

Henry Wise, 1801 King street, reported the theft of a ladies' watch valued at $65, and a nickel watch valued at $3.50, together with 125 pennies, from his place of business.

L. O. Broadneck, 210 North Payne street, reported that his home was entered and $47, secreted under an ice box, was taken.

Mrs. J. L. Pierce, 342 Clifford avenue, reported that while having her household goods moved from one residence to another a number of articles including kitchen utensils and vases, were stolen.

Through the efforts of the local delegation to the annual meeting of the Virginia State Council of the Knights of Columbus, held in Portsmouth, Va., the past week, Alexandria was selected as the place for the 1932 meeting of that body. The meeting will be held the latter part of May, 1932, and will be under the auspices of Fitzgerald Council, of Alexandria, and Edward Douglas White Council, of Clarendon.

Frederick L. Flynn, recently elected Grand Master of Odd Fellows of Virginia, paid his first official visit to Sarepta Lodge last night.

Potomac Lodge No. 38, Odd Fellows, will give a reception on Friday night at 8:30 in honor of Grand Master Flynn, and Mrs. Lillit V. Cunningham president of the State Rebekah Assembly, in Odd Fellows Hall, North Columbus street. The principal feature of the evening's entertainment will be the colonial concert under the direction of William E. Starnell, which was given at the State meeting in Roanoke last week.

Police Capt. W. W. Campbell has submitted his report for the month of May, showing a total of 398 arrests, an increase of 75 over the preceding month. Liquor law violators led, with 150 arrests.

Statistics released by the University of Virginia yesterday show Alexandria as fifth in the cities of Virginia in jail population, with 42.23 per 1,000 of population.

Alexandria was selected by the Virginia State Federation of Postoffice Clerks as the meeting place of the twelfth convention of that organization, to be held here on May 29 and 30 next. The convention the past week was held in Blackstone, Va.

Clarence Gaines, Negro, 16 years old, who was sentenced to the reform school on Monday on a charge of stealing candy and cakes at Parker-Gray School, on Monday night twisted the iron bar over the door of the detention room and escaped. When the officer on duty went to get the boy for breakfast yesterday morning he was gone, and the twisted bars gave evidence of his methods of exit.

annual conferences it would be that "we strive too hard to keep controversial subjects out of our discussions."

"The States are the governmental laboratories of the Nation," said Gov. Ritchie. "They are the agencies for political trial and experiment. Yet we, the representatives of the States, refrain from debating those questions which are the realities of our national life. For instance, if any one thing is clear, it is that our people are becoming tired of the old conjure words in American politics, and are concerned instead about getting or keeping their jobs."

Philadelphia, June 2 (A.P.).—Samuel M. Vauclain, chairman of the Baldwin Locomotive Works board, today telegraphed all governors of the United States that Gov. Pinchot, in his address before the governors' conference, misrepresented conditions in Pennsylvania.

The message said: "Responsible citizens throughout Pennsylvania deplore the misleading statements made today by Gov. Pinchot in his address at the governors' conference at French Lick, Ind. If correctly reported, many of his assertions are without foundation.

"It is not true that the public utilities of Pennsylvania seek to dominate the government of this State. The House investigation committee which the governor named and dominated found, as indicated by its report, no evidence to support his charges. The Legislature properly refused the governor authority to hire and fire public service commissioners at his sole discretion. His unjustified attack upon the party organization which he represented at the last election, his indifference to the rulings of the Supreme Court and his desire to have the power of a dictator have naturally reduced his influence throughout Pennsylvania, and have already prevented the passage of constructive amendments to the public service laws of this State that all interests have agreed are desirable.

"It may be or may not be true that Gov. Pinchot has presidential aspirations. But it is hoped that thoughtful people throughout the United States will understand his so-called program of action will endanger constitutional government and also delay the return of prosperity."

Porter Sent on Errand Missing With $142.50

Payton Powell, a porter employed at the National Press Club Pharmacy, was yesterday reported missing with $142.50 which had been given to him to distribute to different stores.

Simon Gerber, manager of the pharmacy, said Powell was given the money early yesterday to go to a bank and then distribute the money in various stores. He has not been seen since he left the pharmacy.

FRUIT TRUCK BREAKS ARM OF MAN ON BUS

Bladensburg Lawyer, 78, Is Victim of Accident; Driver Is Being Held.

Marion Duckett, 78-year-old lawyer, of Bladensburg, Md., received possibly fatal injuries yesterday when a fruit truck drove near the bus on which he was riding and struck his arm, breaking it and tearing the ligaments.

The accident happened in Bladensburg, while the man was a passenger on a Washington Railway & Electric Co. bus. The driver of the truck, Stafford Giles, of G street southwest near Second street, is being held in the Bladensburg jail charged with reckless driving, passing while the road is not clear, and bad brakes. Other charges may be placed against him, Judge Robert E. Altemus said.

The truck and the bus were going in opposite directions, according to Judge Altemus, when the truck had to turn out to pass a horse and wagon. While passing the bus, the truck struck the man's arm, which was apparently hanging out of the window. The bus was not struck and none of the other passengers were injured.

The injured man was taken first to Sibley Hospital and then removed to Garfield. His condition is described as "very serious," as the arm is badly broken. Doctors hope that they will not have to amputate, however.

ran, half crazy and screaming, through the station."

Sergt. Scully, of the Greenwich Police Department, was on desk duty when he received a telephone call from New York, he said.

"A man, speaking from New York," Sergt. Scully said, "told me he was a doctor at the Grand Central and that he wanted to report a death to me. He said Miss Rogers had died in the terminal and that I should notify her parents. I called them up and told them that she was dead."

It was not until later, according to Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, that they learned of their daughter's harrowing experience and that she was not only alive but not seriously ill. She is still suffering from shock, but probably will suffer no permanent ill effects, they said.

Miss Rogers is employed by a New York life insurance company in an office building near the terminal. She quits work each evening at 5 o'clock and usually catches a train for Greenwich ten minutes later.

Officials of the New York Central Railroad, on which she was a regular commuter, declined to discuss the case today, as did persons attached to the Terminal Hospital. A nurse at the latter place admitted that Miss Rogers received treatment there last week and that, though she at first was thought dead, she revived and went to her home.

99 GIVEN DIPLOMAS AT TRINITY COLLEGE

13 Washington Girls Among Class Graduating From Brookland School.

Thirteen Washington girls were among 99 graduates at Trinity College, who yesterday received diplomas from Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of Baltimore, as the final event of commencement week.

This year's graduating class was the largest in the history of the Brookland institution. Two girls received the distinction of honor graduate. They were Miss Mary Eileen Hogan, West Orange, N. J., and Miss Alba I. Zizzamia, Hartford, Conn. The degree of A. B. magna cum laude was awarded to each of the honor students.

Following the diploma presentation, an academic procession was held. Officers of the graduating class, who led the procession were: Miss Mercedes Liddell, Avalon, Pa., president; Miss Katherine Burke, Chicago, Ill., vice president; Miss Helen Stripe, Ridgewood, N. J., secretary; Miss Mary A. Cuineen, Danbury, Conn., treasurer, and Miss Margaret Bevans, Flushing, N. Y., class representative on student government.

The District graduates were: Misses M. Angela, Regina A. Bartenbach, Gertrude A. Borzi, Kathleen A. Brady, Helen B. Carroll, Helen B. Eagan, Mary M. Ganey, Lucile K. Hartnett, Mary Augusta Kennedy, Elizabeth M. O'Byrne, Kathleen O'Connor, Margaret O'Donoghue and Dorothy M. Rhodes.

Other events on the commencement program included the class essay by Miss Zizzamia; class poem by Miss Mary Walsh, Montclair, N. J.; class song, by Miss Helena Maxwell, Waltham, Mass; piano recital by Miss Hogan; a vocal solo by Miss Gertrude A. Borzi, of Washington, and the student government address by Miss Theodosia Grey, of Larchmont, N. Y.

Couple and Son Escape As Fire Damages Home

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 2—Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Weimer and son climed to safety from the second story of their burning home and funeral parlor here early this morning, narrowly escaping suffocation by smoke from the flames and fumes from formaldehyde candles which the fire set burning in the cellar, where it started .

A ladder fortunately left by workmen, against the building, gave them an avenue of escape. Damage by fire was slight but the damage by the smoke from the formaldehyde, used professionally by funeral directors and which filled the interior of the home and parlors, was extensive, the owners said.

CRUISE WITH US OVER THE GREAT LAKES TO YELLOWSTONE PARK

DO YOU have two weeks for your vacation?

May we suggest to you this perfect combination—a restful cruise on Lakes Erie, Huron and Superior—then the American Northwest, the Rockies and Yellowstone National Park!

You will be a privileged guest on a modern lake steamer for the sail to Duluth, and the Head of the Lakes. Then from Duluth the Northern Pacific Railway takes you across Minnesota's 10,000 lakes region, the Bad Lands of North Dakota and the old Indian and ranching country of eastern Montana. For miles along the picturesque Yellowstone River, your Northern Pacific train follows the historic trail of Lewis and Clark. Then Yellowstone Park!

Yellowstone is worth a trip around the world to see. The fantastic geysers, jewel-colored hot springs and great yellow Grand Canyon reveal, as nothing else can; the marvelous handiwork of nature. Mile after mile the park coaches carry you through great fragrant pine forests, up mountain slopes and past clear, shimmering waters. Around every turn, unbelievably beautiful scenes appear. Hotels and Lodges are noted for their hospitality; dancing and entertainment make the evenings enjoyable.

The round trip fare for the entire rail and water trip is only $183.95, which includes meals and berth on the steamer, sight-seeing, meals and lodging for the complete tour of Yellowstone going the lodge way. Park trip via hotels $9.00 extra.

An ideal vacation—a restful, cool voyage over the Great Lakes—then the wonders of Yellowstone.

If you can spare another week, a few dollars more will include the Pacific Coast.

Let us tell you all about it.

Cumberland Citizens Heirs to Huge Estate

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 2—Four Cumberland citizens may share in the Wendell estate of $150,000,000 recently probated in New York. They are Clyde B. Keller, inspector, Darwin D. Trexler, George Y. Trexler, grocer, and Raymond K. Trexler, a steelworker. They were advised by John W. Davis, attorney, former Democratic presidential candidate, that they are listed as heirs.

They were furnished with the necessary documentary papers to establish their claim, which were returned to New York today. Mrs. Keller and Messrs. Trexler are children of Mrs. Alice Wendell, Terraalta, W. Va., and among the next of kin to the Wendell family.

through the machinery of the Civil Service Commission has made a considerable difference in the enforcement personnel. There were 1,600 agents on the pay roll of the Prohibition Bureau when the Civil Service Commission took over the job of eliminating the unfit among applicants. About half of these were eliminated by way of the commission's examination of ability and character.

In the first year the commission was on the job the turnover among agents was reduced by more than 60 per cent.

Completion of the forthcoming examination will require several months. An examination of the character of each applicant who successfully passes the mental examination will take most of the time. This examination will be made by 50 field workers in the employ of the commission, who will investigate the personal lives of every applicant.

To avoid undue delay in preparing new lists of eligibles for appointment as prohibition agents in 21 States, however, a new scheme is to be followed. Character investigations will be made only of those who received the highest marks in the mental examination in each State. As soon as what is believed to be an adequate eligible list for one State has been made up, attention will be centered on another.

After a temporary eligible list has been prepared for each, the character investigations will be resumed generally until all who have passed the mental examination have been approved or rejected.

Matchless economy with six-cylinder smoothness

"Better than 20 miles to the gallon." "Its cost-per-mile is the lowest of any car." "Never have to add oil between crankcase changes." "Drove from Ohio to Oregon on a repair expense of $1.05." "It just runs and runs and runs."
—typical comments from owners of the Chevrolet Six

CHEVROLET Why is it that Chevrolet—a big, powerful, smooth-running Six—actually costs less to operate and maintain than any other car you can buy? The answer lies in five outstanding factors of Chevrolet economy:

1. Efficient Engine Design makes Chevrolet fuel consumption so low that 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline is nothing unusual for a Chevrolet owner.

2. Modern Chassis Design—as evidenced by Chevrolet's long heavy frame, four parallel mounted springs, and smooth-running six-cylinder engine—increases the ability of the Chevrolet Six to run dependably.

3. Excellence of Manufacture also adds to Chevrolet dependability and long life. Chevrolet pistons, for instance, are built so carefully, and held true to such close limits of precision, that many owners have gone 20,000 miles or more without having their motors opened for major servicing.

4. High-Quality Materials are used throughout the Chevrolet car—costly nickel steel, chrome-vanadium steels, chrome-nickel steels—to assure trouble-free low-cost service for tens of thousands of miles.

5. Economical Nationwide Service, with its low flat-rate charges on labor and genuine parts, is available at 10,000 dealers throughout the country.

Remember—in addition to all these basic economies—Chevrolet offers the extra advantage of one of the lowest delivered prices on the market. And this cost may be spread over a period of many months by the liberal G. M. A. C. time payment plan.

DEEP THOUGHT USED IN POST FLAG TEST

One of Persons Submitting Designs Lauds Judges Chosen by Paper.

Now is the time for all good residents of Washington to come to the aid of their city and design a flag. The Washington Post is sponsoring a contest to obtain a suitable design for an emblem to be adopted for the District of Columbia.

The drawings and flags submitted thus far show deep thought and inspiration. One of particular interest is that designed by Miss Wilmuth Gary. In order to see the flag as it would appear if adopted by the judges, Miss Gary painted the design in oils on white material and to quote her word picture of the pattern—"It is an eight-pointed figure, star shape, which represents the 'compass' with the Capitol dome in the center and Liberty pointing north as a guide of the Nation. The Capitol is surrounded by 48 stars and the entire design is of red, white and blue."

A well thought-out design has been submitted by H. G. Little, and in commenting upon the merits of the contest, he states, "Personally, I believe you should be felicitated for the selection of judges; if the District and Federal authorities will continue the efficient cooperation indicated by the judges' names, we shall soon have an official flag that will satisfy our people here."

The judges to whom Mr. Little refers are: Dr. B. C. MacNeil, department commander of the American Legion; Gen. Anton Stephan, commander of the District National Guard; William L. Thomas, commander of the District Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of Public Buildings and Public Parks.

As an added stimulus in the contest, The Post is offering a prize of $25 for the design selected and everyone still has time to compete. The contest will close Saturday, and drawings must be submitted to the Flag Contest Editor, The Washington Post, before that date.

"COMPASS" AS FLAG DESIGN

NATIONAL DEBT IS INCREASED $500,000,000 FOR THIS YEAR

about $540,000,000 above that of the last fiscal year.

"These figures alone—a reduction of $90,000,000 in receipts and an increase of nearly $540,000,000 in expenditures in the above items—would indicate that the Government would be over $1,430,000,000 worse off this year than last.

"However, deferments and reductions in expenditures in other parts of the Government largely due to the economy drive last summer amount to about $180,000,000. During the fiscal year ended last June the debt was reduced by $305,000,000 in excess of statutory amount, while this year it was held to the legal requirements. These two sums make a difference in the situation of about $485,000,000 and result in a final deficit of about $900,000,000 or $950,000,000.

Debt Increased $500,000,000.

"As stated, of this deficit of $900,000,000 or $950,000,000, about $440,000,000 will be expended in the statutory redemption of the public debt so that the net increase in the debt for the fiscal year will probably be about $500,000,000.

"The administrator of veterans affairs reports that the loans so far made upon bonus certificates now total $1,098,947,000 to 1,971,966 individuals, of which $284,481,000 has been furnished from insurance and other funds, about $60,000,000 from the banks, and $754,466,000 from sale of Treasury obligations."

Elaborate Gaming Place Is Raided

76 Men Are Arrested in Baltimore; Big Crowd Is Attracted.

Baltimore, June 2 (A.P.).—In what old-timers in the Baltimore Police Department declared was the largest raid of its kind in their recollection, a squad of officers battered their way through iron doors into an alleged gambling establishment in the Highlandtown section of the city last night and arrested 76 men.

The place was outfitted elaborately for betting on horse races, police said, and in addition there was equipment for other games of chance. The raid attracted a large crowd of spectators and patrol wagons from three police districts were required to transport the prisoners to the station house, where John O'Connor, 31, and Bernard Kenny, 34, were charged with operating the establishment. The remaining 74 men were held as witnesses.

O'Connor and Kenny were released in $2,000 bail each for action of the grand jury, and Magistrate Samuel Lasch remained up the greater part of the night arranging for the release of the others.

Reserve Officers' Camps Announced

1,000 Virginians to Open Summer Encampments in July and August.

Richmond, Va., June 2 (A.P.).—More than 1,000 Virginia reserve officers will serve on active duty in Eightieth Division summer encampment, division headquarters announced.

The divisional infantry will train at Fort George Meade, Md., under Col. Harrison J. Price, chief of staff, July 19 to August 1. Divisional artillery will receive training at Fort Hoyle, Md., August 2-15; 305th medical regiment at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., July 5-18, and 305th engineers at Fort Humphries, Va., July 5-18.

The 318th infantry is commanded by Col. E. E. Goodwyn, of Emporia; the 317th, by Col. William T. Chantland, of Washington; the 314th field artillery, by Col. Ernest F. Cox, of Richmond; the 306th medical regiment by Col. Wilber M. Phelps, of Staunton, and the 305th engineer regiment by Col. William I. Lee, of Alexandria.

Debutante Fashions After Dark

Something strikingly different is presented in this Vionnet creation. Regal simplicity is achieved by a superb molding of the fabric to the figure.

The sleeveless gown is of brown crepe, worn with the chic little jacket of double white crepe.

CANADA'S TARIFF POLICY.

Canada's method of attacking the depression is to increase tariff rates. Last September Premier Bennett announced a number of increases with a view to stimulating Canadian industry and absorbing that country's unemployed. The protective policy was found to be so successful that 200 additional duties have now been raised.

Exports from the United States to Canada will, of course, be affected. Most of the tariff changes were confined to the intermediate and general schedules, with few changes in the duties levied against other portions of the British Empire. Intermediate rates apply to nations with which Canada has special trade agreements, and the general rates apply to all other nations, including the United States. Since trade across the border amounts to about $1,400,000,000 in a normal year, a large portion of which is exports from the United States, the new tariff will probably strike harder against the United States than any other country.

Canada is making a desperate effort to turn the balance of trade in her favor. Premier Bennett does not intend to let Canadians remain idle while they are supplied with the necessities of life from other countries, if he can help it. That is substantially the policy of the Republican party in this country. The objective is to reserve the home market for domestic producers, letting foreigners contribute what Canada can not well produce for herself.

Premier Bennett denies that the new rates are a retaliation against the Smoot-Hawley bill. The fact that only those rates which tend to affect unemployment have been altered substantiates his claim. Canada is emulating and not attacking the American protective system. At a time when rabid denunciations of the tariff policy are being made in this country it is reassuring to find a neighbor adopting the protective system as a means of restoring prosperity.

Although many American products will have to pay a higher rate to reach the Canadian market, it is by no means certain that the new duties will work to the disadvantage of the United States. Canada ranks beside the United Kingdom as America's best customer. If Canada is prosperous trade across the border will thrive in spite of tariff barriers. No one in the United States, except the calamity howlers who hope to make political capital out of these rate adjustments, will begrude Canada the additional protection which the new regulations allow. It can not be expected that the tariff policy will work as well in that country as it has done in the United States, because the Canadian market is much smaller, but it is safe to conclude that the Canadian economic structure will be strengthened.

IN THE UPPER AIR.

The belt of air that immediately envelops the earth is known to science as the troposphere. It extends to about seven miles above the earth. Beyond that begins the stratosphere. The balloon trip of the Belgian scientists who attained a height of nearly ten miles extended, therefore, nearly three miles into the stratosphere, exceeding the previous altitude record attained by humans in a balloon by nearly two miles. Whatever may be the value of the scientific observations made last week, the entire world applauds the two intrepid scientists for the skill and daring of their flight.

Scientists are inclined to be somewhat skeptical of any very startling discoveries on the part of the Belgians sealed in their aluminum ball. They attained an altitude of more than 50,000 feet, but many balloons, both in the United States and Europe, bearing self-recording instruments, have reached altitudes of approximately twice that height, or 100,000 feet. These tests record facts regarding the atmospheric and meteorological conditions at different times and places that compose a fairly accurate picture of conditions in the upper regions.

The stratosphere is so named because of the belief that there are only horizontal movements of the rarefied air in well defined layers in those altitudes, with wind velocity reaching 100 miles an hour in the lower levels, decreasing with altitude. The extremely low temperature above the earth's atmosphere of 55 degrees below zero, centigrade, remains fairly constant throughout the stratosphere.

Prof. Piccard hopes that his calculations will develop new information regarding cosmic radiation and the "electrical gradient." Previous explorations have shown that the cosmic rays invariably grow stronger with increasing altitude. In Germany Prof. Regener has made intense study of the cosmic rays and has invented devices to measure their frequency and intensity, and it appears doubtful that with the means at hand Dr. Piccard could have secured additional information of great importance. German scientists think the opportunity for further investigation in the upper air can be more thoroughly and safely made from airplanes. Both in Germany and France planes with air-tight cabins are being constructed for this purpose.

LIBERTY OF THE PRESS.

In making void the Minnesota law attempting to abridge the liberty of the press the United States Supreme Court has swept aside a subtle and dangerous innovation which, if not thus stopped, might have worked great mischief to that State. The State law authorized public authorities to bring the publisher of a newspaper or periodical before a court on the charge of conducting a business of publishing scandalous and defamatory matter, and unless the publisher could satisfy the judge that the charges were true and were published with good motives and for justifiable ends the periodical could be suppressed and the publisher punished for contempt if he should continue publication. The Supreme Court holds that this law "is of the essence of censorship."

The minority opinion points out that conditions in Minnesota were made well-nigh intolerable because of the persistent publication, as a regular business, of scandalous, malicious and defamatory matter concerning the principal public officers and others, and that "existing libel laws were inadequate to suppress evils such as had been shown in this case."

The suppression of a periodical on the ground that it is a public nuisance is illogical, as well as a denial of liberty. If the publisher has been guilty of libel there is a remedy; and it is absurd to punish him in anticipation of what he might publish. If the libel law of Minnesota is inadequate it can be amended, but it is truly "the essence of censorship" to suppress a periodical instead of holding the publisher to account for abuse of liberty of the press.

The power to suppress a periodical, if lodged in public officers, would lead to irremediable wrong, whereas abuse of liberty of the press is a wrong that can be remedied. The Supreme Court has decided this case on the solid ground of public interest. The press is and ought to be responsible for abuse of its liberty. This liberty should not be snuffed out because it is sometimes abused.

GOV. ROOSEVELT'S REMEDY.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's address before the conference of governors was much more impressive when he stuck to his subject of "Land Utilization and State Planning" than when he undertook to prescribe a remedy for the world-wide depression. His administration is fostering an excellent program for scientific use of land in New York. In its endeavor to stop cultivation of all unproductive land and devote it to timber crops that State is setting a fine example in State planning which should have far-reaching effects.

But Gov. Roosevelt's formula for combating the depression lacks the breadth of vision which he applied to problems of his own State. Item number one on his list of remedies is a "scientific tariff aimed primarily to create a movement of world commodities from one nation to another." This is broad enough to mean almost anything, but it is based on the fallacy that prosperity can be created by the magic of foreign trade. It is well known that lower duties would mean greater imports, which in turn would relieve a few million Americans of jobs and add to our store of unemployed capital. But it is inconceivable that a lowering of the American tariff would stimulate exports in the present unfavorable world market.

Perhaps Gov. Roosevelt could devise a better system of national taxation than that now in use, but since there is little chance of reducing taxes with the present huge deficit confronting the Treasury it is difficult to see how any formula he might apply would have any appreciable effect on the depression.

When he resorts again to his own field, suggesting a plan to cut the excessive costs of local government, he strikes a responsive chord. There is no question that local taxes are weighing far more heavily upon the people in this critical period than are national taxes.

As to the "extension of insurance to cover the fields of sickness and unemployment," it is difficult to understand how it could have anything but a depressing effect upon business. There is no known way in which to insure against an event that has already taken place. The unemployed must have jobs before they can be insured against losing them. The chief problem before the country now is getting back to normal activity and not experimenting with untried social palliatives which discourage business and delay its recovery.

ABUNDANCE OF MONEY.

The large oversubscription of the Treasury's offering of bonds illustrates the extreme ease of the money market. In spite of the fact that the interest rate of 3⅛ per cent is the lowest on any such Government loan since the World War, indications are that the bids will exceed the $800,000,000 offering by several hundred per cent. Even at low interest rates capital seeking secure long-term investment is abundant.

This condition offers a sharp contrast with that existing two years ago. At that time vast sums were being used for speculation on the stock market and credit was expensive. But during the last year loans on the open money market have been reduced by $1,900,000,000. The banks are full of money. A plethora of credit exists throughout the country. The depression has brought about widespread unemployment of money as well as of men.

It has been the policy of the Federal Reserve banking system during the last year to cheapen money and thus encourage new business developments. This movement has had a far-reaching effect upon the credit structure of the country. Money rates are lower than they have been for many years.

In addition to the liquidation of loans, large savings have been piling up in the banks during the last year and a half. The people have been laying aside a portion of their income for a rainy day. This has been reflected in smaller purchases and in less investment in stocks. In spite of hard times, the country has built up a reserve of purchasing power and capital that will unquestionably stimulate recovery when the upward swing gets under way. Cheap money can not, of course, correct the maladjustments which brought on the depression, but it is indispensable to economic recovery. It should be a source of great encouragement to business and industry to realize that a reserve strength in purchasing power and credit is ready to be tapped.

AN EXPERT ON SILVER.

No less an authority than Sir James Arthur Salter, international authority on currency, confounds the arguments, or rather the assertions, of ardent silver advocates who would make the world believe that the relegation of silver to its natural commodity status is in large measure responsible for the present world depression. Sir Arthur, speaking before the Academy of Political Science in New York, frankly expressed the opinion that any artificial raising of the price of the white metal would result in an inevitable reaction that would carry it lower.

The speaker expressed the conviction that the nations would not be inclined to change their monetary systems for the benefit of silver, after having so generally adopted the gold standard. Silver's hope he saw in a more extended commercial use and in the greater use of the metal in subsidiary coinage, but the latter utilization, he warned, would be for the sake of currency, not of silver.

It is a fallacy to reason that because 50 per cent of the world's population uses silver the decline in its price has had like effect on world trade. As has been pointed out in these columns, Sir James showed that while the silver users might number 50 per cent, they purchase only 10 per cent of the world's exports, and that China's trade last year, notwithstanding the great drop in silver, had declined in about the same ratio as the gold standard countries. The speaker made very clear his contentions that conferences for the improvement of currency or for the improvement of trade must be with those broader purposes in view, and not for the purpose of giving fictitious value to a single metal whose real value is what it will fetch as a commodity.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., June 2.—The vacation season is again near enough to require making plans for it. Many of our people are able to enjoy a winter trip into the Southern portion of our country, but to most of us the time of relaxation comes in summer, when the attraction lies in the mountains and waters of the North.

In recent years possibly some who were responsible for management took too long vacations. Because we have had a difficult year and have many problems to solve such persons may think of foregoing any absence from business in the immediate future. The fact is the brains of the country need relaxation and refreshment more than ever this season. They owe a duty to themselves, their business and their associates to get more than the usual period of rest. The country will be further advanced in October if July and August find many visitors at the shore and in the hills. Just now we need that replenishment of body and soul that comes only in withdrawing from work and familiar scenes and seeking diversion in new activities and new surroundings. This year above most others the brain and the hand need to be replenished by rest.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

"LET'S GO!"

From the Boston Transcript.

No man can understand correctly the doubt and hesitation felt in many lines of business today, unless he honestly recalls the conditions which swept this country during 1928 and 1929. Then, as he must know, an unbounded optimism ruled nine-tenths of all American thought. The country, people said, had moved into a new level of financial values from which prices could never come down. Against this talk it was idle to argue, though some of us tried. History and economic fundamentals, we were told, had lost their significance. The barometer had been hitched to a balloon, and the course of all things must ever be up.

This conviction was, of course, unsound, and even ridiculous, as events soon proved. Nevertheless, while it lasted, it had great practical consequences. And now, whatever be the adverse condition of certain economic realities of the present time, can any one doubt for one moment that their adversity is being just as much overrated in thousands of American minds as three years ago various temporarily favorable signs were being misread as justification for the wildest of booms? There is no doubt about the issue at all. A large part of the hesitancy of many investors today results from a psychologically depressed attitude just as unhealthy and exactly as far removed from dependence upon the deep, enduring truths of economic history as was the excessively buoyant, superficially confident state of mind that prevailed in the summer of 1929.

Facing this certain fact, we think that the Standard Oil Co. did a real service, and spread sound gospel, when it published in many leading American newspapers yesterday its announcement called "Come On." A double holiday being near at hand, the idea was offered, "Let's use it to change our mental outlook—freshen our minds. Let's go somewhere—do something—warm our backbones in the sun's rays * * * sweep the chambers of our spirits with the cleansing wind. * * * The Open Road invites us." It invites New Englanders to visit their woodlands and hillsides, their lakes, seashores and streams, where, in actual truth, they will find values that do not change, immemorial good, facts that express fundamentals. While these same values can be found, also, and sometimes more highly, in the realm of the spirit, they exist near at hand in New England's physical kingdom as well. In the lighter key of the times, "Let's go."

"How Nice!" (Copyright, 1931.)

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

MY PLACE.

At last I've learned my place on earth
And just the reason for my birth.
I've often wondered through the years
My purpose here. Now it appears.
I face life's mad tempestuous whirl
To gratify a little girl.

Some men for fame and glory come
But I am here to purchase gum
And candy and the lollypops
Which are displayed in lovely shops.
However difficult the times
My pocket must be filled with dimes.

My duty, plainly I've been told
Is to supply an eight-year old
With pretty frocks and ribbons gay
And dolls and toys from day to day
To haste, at every coaxing "please"
To purchase everything she sees.

Well, be it so! I think that I
Those ice cream cones would rather buy
At her demand, than rise to fame
And all the joys of splendor claim.
Let those by other men be had
I'm satisfied to be her dad.

If You Don't Pull Up the Sprouts, You Must Blast Up the Trees.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

AN occasional revolution, peaceful or military, is essential to national health.

No matter what the form of government, abuses of power, dishonest practices and injustices develop with the years.

This is especially true of prosperous lands, for wealth gives freedom even in a land of tyranny, and it is the nature of men to neglect the public business when their own is thriving.

Revolutions are not confined to one continent. Within recent years the abuse of long-undisturbed power has caused the overthrow of governments in China, Russia, Germany, Austria, Italy, Spain, Mexico, Bolivia, Peru, Argentina, Brazil.

America also has need of house-cleaning. It is a work for patriots.

We boast of our freedom, initiative, efficiency and love of fair play, but as a matter of fact we tolerate conditions that cause free people to ridicule us.

We send innocent men to prison; and when their innocence is established after a term of years, we dismiss them without apology or compensation.

We have capital punishment, easily evaded by men of wealth, which means that we have capital punishment for the poor.

Our system of jurisprudence enables rich criminals to escape any penalty except the cost of trial, which means that poverty has become the only crime.

Our "dry law," however noble as an experiment, has become in practice a class law, denying to the poor a liberty brazenly flaunted by the rich.

Invisible governments, operating through corrupt officials, fatten on lawlessness in most of our cities.

Our farmers are poor for want of a market while others perish for want of the farmer's produce; our workmen are not permitted to make the things they sorely need; we make allowance for the depreciation of machinery and none for the depreciation of men.

It isn't necessary to catalog our faults. You know them all.

Must we wait for violence to correct them?

A commission of sensible men, chosen in State conventions, could find the needed remedies.

Why wait for desperation and its foolish excesses.

Wartime isn't the only time to save one's country.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Americanism at Valley Forge.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

President Hoover's Valley Forge address was a strong presentation of his belief that in our Republic it is the part of the people not to look to the Government to do for them what they should do for themselves. His proof of devotion to that principle when the recent Congress was doing its best to abolish it was by the far the most laudable feature of his administration so far.

The truth which he stressed at Valley Forge could not have been better phrased than when he said:

"For the energies of private initiative, of independence, and a high degree of individual freedom of our American system we are offered an alluring substitute in the specious claim that everybody collectively owes each of us individually a living rather than an opportunity to earn a living, and the equally specious claim that hired representatives of a hundred million people can do better than the people themselves, in thinking and planning their daily life."

"The hired representatives of a hundred million people," in other words the late Congress which all but wrecked the Treasury, despite the President's resistancec of their raids, were not really representatives of a hundred million people, though, more's the pity, they were perhaps representatives of the majority of a hundred million who, encouraged by the politicasters of Congress and Socialistic quid nuncs, have taken up the idea that it is the business of the National Government to support them, providing for them both necessaries and luxuries of life."

Yes, Think It Over.

A wise old Republican says that "if the Democrats don't fumble so as to reelect Hoover his goose is already cooked!" Something for Democratic leaders to ponder.

Peter Speaks For Himself.

Minneapolis Journal.

Peter Fletcher tells the National Foreign Trade Convention that Congress should be called in special session for the express purpose of reducing by 25 per cent all specific rates in the Hawley-Smoot tariff act. Mr. Fletcher is president of the National Council of American Importers and Traders, Inc.

Obviously, the interest of the National Foreign Trade Convention is in the foreign market for American products and in the American market for foreign products, and not in the American market for American products. So Mr. Fletcher is not an unbaised witness appearing before an unbaised jury. Rather does he speak as an advocate for foreign producers before a body of men frankly interested in the foreign producers welfare, as contrasted with the American producer's welfare.

Since 90 per cent of American products are consumed right here in America, and only 10 per cent shipped abroad, protection of the home market is at least nine times as important as protection of the foreign market. So a policy that might be distinctly to the advantage of men whose sole interest is foreign trade might be distinctly to the disadvantage of all other Americans. Wherefore we hope we may be pardoned for viewing Mr. Fletcher's suggestion, and the wishes of the National Foreign Trade Convention, with a degree of skepticism born of awareness of the fact that their own interests are not necessarily in harmony with the national interests.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Immigrants, Some of Them Unlawfully in This Country, Take Jobs Away From Citizens.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In searching the news clippings upon my desk, I find an editorial from The Post, under date of April 24, 1931, lined: "Not a Dumping Ground," setting forth what the Daughters of the American Revolution are doing, in an attempt to stop the Russian Soviet Government from making a dumping ground of the United States.

These patriotic ladies are to be commended in their attempt to protect our homes and firesides from this foreign aggression, which is demoralizing our home industries, and which is lowering the living standard of American labor down to an "Old World" level.

The D. A. R. should have requested Congress to pass an act closing the door to immigration for at least 50 years; or, until foreign elements now within our gates have assimilated the fundamentals of Americanism and become citizens, or be deported.

The time is now opportune for the native born to insist upon legislation which will protect them against an open gate to alien labor, which can not or will not conform to American ideals and principles. With the patriotic American, the ideals and principles of his country are innate, and the immigrant is not susceptible to this sudden change from oppression to a life of liberty; but becomes a subject to the unscrupulous money monger. This immigrant becomes a part of the laboring class of this country, mingling with the native born, and, sowing the seeds of the ways and mannerisms of Old World conditions forces down the standard of living. A state of pauperism is forced upon the native-born laborer, while the alien noncitizen is regularly employed. This is a true statement of facts as they exist in this city. And, what is true of conditions here, is true in other cities.

Lest the reader should question the truth of the above statement, visit New Britain; or, better yet, have the U. S. Department of Labor investigate the personnel of this city's "Public Works Department." It is, I believe, conservative to say that, 90 per cent of the laborers employed by this department are not citizens. This foreign element has steady employment in preference to the native born. That is to say, when there is sewer, street, water system, subway, park construction or repair work done, the labor is mostly the foreign element, and not all of legal entry. The writer knows that there are those of this foreign element who function as foremen in this aforesaid department who are not citizens; and who, it is alleged, appear upon this city's pay roll under assumed names. If they are here legally, why the assumed names?

An Appeal to the League of Nations to Control Automobile Speed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have recently sent a copy of the following letter to the League of Nations, at Geneva, and received their acknowledgment:

"With the greatest respect, I desire to call the attention of the League of Nations to the following conditions:

"Motor cars are now being manufactured and sold, for use upon the public streets and highways, which are capable of a speed of from 70 to 90 miles an hour, and even more.

"By such dangerous machines as these, human beings are hurled into their graves by tens of thousands every year (two-thirds of the victims being women and children).

"It is, quite obviously, the duty of governments to reduce and limit this dangerous and insane speed.

"Speed should be limited at its source. The manufacture of motor vehicles, for use upon the public streets and highways, capable of a greater speed than, let us say, 30 miles an hour, should be prohibited by law."

Circles Should Be Cut Through to Help Traffic—More Streetside Parks Needed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am in full sympathy with those who do not want to have driveways cut through the beautiful circles which ornament certain Washington street intersections. At the same time, I realize that the circles do not conform to the demands of modern downtown city traffic, and I therefore consider it a case where beauty should give way to utility.

Not only Logan Circle and Thomas Circle, but Dupont Circle and Washington Circle should be opened in order to expedite traffic and obviate traffic jams.

All the beauty of the circles need not be lost when they are cut through. They will still furnish shady resting places for the public.

The thing to do in the street development of the future is to provide for streetside parks at frequent intervals. I hardly think enough attention has been given to the matter of small parks of late years. If this were properly attended to, it would more than make up in a few years for whatever sacrifice of beauty may result from "cutting streets through the circles."

Suggests That a Monument Be Erected to Gen. R. H. Dunlap.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems appropriate at this time (the unveiling of the memorial to the heroes of the Titanic) that some measure be started for a memorial to that distinguished hero, Gen. R. H. Dunlap, who gave his life to save another in France—"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." As

CLERK CHIEF ARMED FOR HOLIDAY BATTLE

Federation Head Completes Tour of Inspection of Field Service.

Fresh from a trip that carried him through several States where he got first-hand information, Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, yesterday was putting the finishing touches on a picture of working conditions in the Government service.

This picture will be presented to administration leaders both in the executive departments and in the House and Senate in the fight which has been launched to bring about general observance of the Saturday half-holiday law in the Government field service.

Both Mr. Steward and Miss Gertrude McNally, secretary-treasurer of the federation, insist that the recent order of the Bureau of the Budget forbidding department and bureau heads from incurring deficits to comply with the Saturday half-holiday law must be set aside.

The order has had the effect of defeating the intent of the law insofar as the field service generally is concerned, the union leaders point out.

This is in direct conflict with statements of President Hoover on employment conditions, both in the service of the Government and in private industry, they said. They pointed out, too, that President Hoover signed the Saturday halfholiday law just before the end of the last Congress, although it is likely that had he vetoed the measure it would not have been enacted over his disapproval, a fact of which the President undoubtedly was well aware at the time his signature made the measure the law of the land.

Leaders of the employes are not at all anxious to be put in a position of battle with the administration, and are anxious that the country as a whole understand the issue involved in the present dispute. Neither are Republican leaders especially anxious to have the matter develop into a long-drawn out fight, involving thousands of Government employes scattered through every State in the Union. Out of this situation may come a solution of the difficulty soon, it is hoped on both sides.

Rescue Squad Revives Woman Victim of Gas

Mrs. Gustav Grifoni, 49 years old, of 3218 Wisconsin avenue northwest, was treated for gas poisoning yesterday by the rescue squad. She was found on the floor of her apartment by her daughter, Ella Grifoni.

Gas was issuing from an open jet on a stove. After being revived, she was treated by a private physician and removed to Chevy Chase Sanitarium.

School Worker Is Hurt In Fall From Scaffold

John Mann, 54 years old, of 1421 First street northwest, was seriously injured yesterday afternoon when he fell from a scaffold on the new school building at Thirty-eighth street and Davenport street northwest.

PARTIES ARE STIRRED BY CANADIAN TARIFF

Countervailing Provision.

The Hawley-Smoot act carries a countervailing provision to meet this increase. Under this, the American duty on Canadian bituminous becomes the same as the Canadian duty on American bituminous—75 cents a ton.

The bituminous that eastern Canada has been sending down to New England and the bituminous that British Columbia has been sending down to States like Washington and Oregon undoubtedly will be hit by this countervailing rate.

Nor is this the only sense in which the Canadian rate is a two-edged sword. The Canadian National Railroad owns bituminous mines in Ohio, out of which it takes several million tons of coal a year for use on its lines. Now it, too, will have to pay the increased Canadian duty.

Quite a few of the American automobile concerns have branch factories in Canada, and thus are not worried by the new rates. It is possible that some of the makers of high-priced cars, who are particularly affected by the new rates, will decide to establish branches in Canada.

Duty on Magazines.

The duty placed on American oranges is expected to reduce American imports of this product into Canada and to increase imports from the British West Indies.

Premier Bennett announced that a duty of 15 cents a pound would be placed on magazines. The Saturday Evening Post, for example, now sells in Canada for 10 cents a copy. If this price is continued and the duty added, the Saturday Evening Post would cost 25 cents a copy.

The Saturday Evening Post has quite a large circulation in Canada, and Canadians would not be surprised to see the Curtis Publishing Co. establish a branch there in order to escape the duty.

State Department officials would make no statement on the new Canadian duties yesterday. They were awaiting a complete report from Minister Hanford MacNider.

Premier Bennett, in his statement of Monday, said the Ottawa government could reduce rates on imports from any country which agreed to reduce rates on Canadian products.

Termed Another Blow.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, said last night that Canada's latest tariff increases on American goods is "one more blow to our industries already suffering from the ruination of our foreign markets by the Smoot-Hawley act."

"The administration," he said, "could not have inflicted greater punishment on American business had it deliberately sought to alienate our best customer. In 1929 we exported nearly $1,000,000,000 worth of our products to our neighbor on the North, and imported approximately half that much. In 1930, during half of which year the Smoot-Hawley act was in effect, Canada bought from us $300,000,000 less and we bought from them $100,000,000 less than we had purchased before.

"In the first three months of 1931 our exports to Canada had dropped $68,000,000 below the corresponding months of last year and our imports from Canada had fallen off an additional $40,000,000. This means that our normal business with Canada is cut in half."

Chairman Shouse conceded that some of this must be attributed to the depression, but most of it, he infers, was due to the Hawley-Smoot act.

Expected as Issue.

Referring to a statement issued by the Republican national committee in praise of the tariff bill, Chairman Shouse said it was evident that the Republicans expect to take such a stand in the 1932 campaign.

"It is a definite issue," he said, "and insofar as I can speak for it, I predict that the Democratic party will gladly accept the challenge. It is more than willing to rest the decision of 1932 on the question of whether the Smoot-Hawley tariff was a boon and a service to the country or has crippled business, ruined our export trade and added to the cost of living of a people already in dire straits."

Senator Daniel O. Hastings (Republican), of Delaware, touched on the Canadian action in answering a tariff statement by Senator Cordell Hull (Democrat), of Tennessee.

The Canadian tariff was being raised, Senator Hastings said, to protect Canadian workers and to assist in adjusting unemployment.

La Follette Joins Harrison.

"While Canada is resorting to a further increase in protection—and Canada's tariff is higher than that of the United States—Senator Hull," the Delaware member said, "announces that he would throw down our tariff walls and let the surpluses of Europe, Canada, Australia and South America flood our markets at the expense of every American worker and producer."

Senator Robert M. La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, one of the Progressives who opposed the Hawley-Smoot measure, joined with Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, in saying that Canada's action represented a retaliation against the American tariff policy.

"Canada's action," Senator La Follette said, "will contribute to the already alarming decrease in American exports."

Senator Harrison said that Canada's action came as no surprise. He and other members, he said, who tried to head off the "greedy action" of the sponsors of the "Hoover-Grundy" bill foresaw such a blow to American industry.

Senator James Couzens (Republican), Michigan, did not agree that the action of Canada meant a reprisal. He described the Canadian increases as an effort to aid the Canadian farmers.

Senator Smoot, chairman of the Senate finance committee, of which La Follette, Harrison and Couzens are members, issued a statement in Utah saying, "There are no indications to show retaliation primarily against the United States schedules."

"Canadians," he said, "want to hold the present wage scale as against lower wages in other countries."

STATUE OF DAVIS UNVEILED IN CAPITOL

away. There were memories of Davis for some of those who went to the little ceremony at which his statue and that of James Z. George, his fellow Mississippian and fellow soldier, were unveiled.

Davis, as Secretary of War, had the heroic figure of Columbia placed on top of the Capitol's white dome, and he was chosen specially to supervise the building of the two great flaring wings that now house the two branches of Congress.

There were perhaps 450 people—a capacity crowd—in the little white circular statuary hall—in Davis' time the House chamber, domed, marble pillared, with two rows of statues (each State can place two) around the walls which resounded to the debate of the pre-Civil War Congress.

The Marine Band played the airs most dear to Americans—Kentucky, Swanee River, Dixie, dozens of them. People drifted in and looked around at the statues of priests, soldiers, diplomats, jurists, a woman, some magnificent, some that might turn red if marble and bronze could blush for sculptors' work.

In front of Father Junipero Serra, of California, there was a movie camera, squeezed in among the chairs placed in the hall. There was another beside Gen. Kirby Smith, of Florida. The flag draped statues of Davis and George were on the south side. Camera floodlights played on them. On Davis' right was the bronze effigy of Vance, of North Carolina; on his left John Peter Muhlenberg, of Pennsylvania. George was supported, on either side, by Robert Livingston, of New York, and Wade Hampton, of South Carolina.

The statues were unveiled, and the flags formed a background for them, hung on frameworks of metal pipe. The Marine Band played the "Star-Spangled Banner," with the audience, mostly women, as usual, standing silently. A few minutes later it played "Dixie," to tumultuous applause.

Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, one of the great orators of these times, made the principal speech. Of Davis he said:

"His was a colorful life, a life that was in conflict from youth to manhood and from manhood to the grave. He saw armies sweep illustrious battlefields and became a captive; he was proclaimed at the head of a government and stood accused in the courts of treason; he governed millions and was imprisoned in a dungeon; he was crowned with coronets and chained in irons; he pardoned thousands, but was denied one unto himself; under him a section stood steadfast and in him sacrifice became supreme; he created a nation and died a disfranchised citizen. No man was ever so loved and hated, exalted and excoriated, praised and condemned."

An interesting question was raised by Harrison—what might have happened if before the Civil War Davis had gone to Illinois from his native Kentucky and Lincoln had gone to Mississippi?

When it was all over, and the sunlight on the Eastern wall was creeping around toward Davis, the statues were left alone, the two new ones, Davis, tall, lean, clean cut, handsome; George, rugged, bearded, right hand thrust in his frock coat, conspicuous in the newness of their golden bronze and framed by the flag against which they fought for their South.

Mrs. Strong Honored for Philanthropy

Czechoslovakia Confers Decoration Upon Capital Woman.

ONE of the Capital's most distinguished philanthropists, Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong, has received recognition for her work from another foreign government — Czechoslovakia. In the presence of a few intimate friends she was decorated yesterday in her apartment at the Mayflower. The decoration was conferred on her in behalf of her services toward the education of Czechoslovakian students.

Only last fall Mrs. Strong journeyed to Rochester, N. Y., to receive from the hands of Col Picot, French war veteran, the Cross of the Legion of Honor. This was awarded her in commemoration of her admirable services for the wounded veterans of the late war, to whom she recently gave a chateau in France, where they receive care.

The ceremony took place at the Strong Memorial, on the campus of the University of Rochester, in the presence of President Rhees, of the university, and Mr. George Eastman, with whom the late Col. Strong was associated for many years.

Two years ago, Mrs. Strong incorporated an organization for the education of boys and girls—with no classification in its by-laws as to race, creed, or color. Known as the Hattie M. Strong Foundation, the institution has headquarters in Washington. With a flair for organization, Mrs. Strong has so incorporated her personality into the foundation, that its activities have become nationally recognized.

It is endowed with neither reward nor gains to be accrued by those engaged in furthering the project. Mrs. Strong engaged the interest of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Corrin Strong, in the organization, having enlisted the services of Mr. Strong as treasurer of the foundation. The Strongs are members of the smart coterie of "young marrieds," who perhaps, take their pleasure seriously, yet devote much endeavor to philanthropic work.

Sacketts Will Sail For German Post.

The United States Ambassador to Germany and Mrs. Frederick M. Sackett will arrive in New York tomorrow from Louisville, Ky., where they have spent over a month during the ambassador's leave of absence from his post. They will sail for Europe on the Europa.

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams were the guests in whose honor Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol entertained at dinner yesterday evening at the National Woman's Country Club.

Senator and Mrs. Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, have closed their apartment at the Mayflower and left Washington last night for Oregon, where they will spend the summer at the Fircone Ranch in Willamette Valley.

The Minister of Sweden, Mr. W. Bostrom, who had planned to sail on Saturday with his daughter, Miss Ellis Bostrom, for Sweden, will postpone his departure from this country for a few weeks. Miss Bostrom, however, will sail Saturday on the Kungsholm.

Mrs. William Howard Taft was the guest in whose honor Mrs. Frederic Duncan McKenney entertained at luncheon yesterday at her country home, Handleyhall. There were sixteen guests.

Maj. Gen. Merritte W. Ireland, retired, and Mrs. Ireland will sail today at noon from New York for Queenstown and will motor through Ireland and other countries on the continent. Also on the steamer will be Mr. Miguel Jordan, vice consul at Bogota, Colombia; Mr. Axel H. Oxholm, of the Department of Commerce; Mr. Charles R. Horsum, United States Trade Commissioner, and Maj. Geoffrey J. Keyes, of the War Department.

Maj. Charles Daugherty, U. S. A., of Monroe, La., is in Washington for an indefinite visit, and will stay at the Potomac Park Apartments.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Loesch, of Chicago and Washington, have closed their apartment at the Mayflower and gone to their summer home in Cooperstown, N. Y., accompanied by the latter's mother, Mrs. Stephen G. Browning.

Mr. Loesch will return to the hotel when he is in Washington this month from time to time for the meetings of the National Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement.

Capt. and Mrs. R. H. Garity, of Fort Ringgold, Tex., are at the Powhatan.

Flower Fair To Help Arts Club Fund

Features to Mark Fete at The Spruces, Home of Mrs. Rheinhardt.

A "country flower fair" will be held for the benefit of the Arts Club building fund on Saturday afternoon at the Spruces, the residence of Miss Anna C. Reinhardt, at Kensington, Md.

Besides the sale of flowers, garden accessories and refreshments, interesting features will be staged throughout the afternoon on the lawns of Miss Reinhardt's estate. There will be fancy dancing by trained groups of children, and Miss Elizabeth Williams, "Princess of Maryland," with her maids of honor, will be in attendance.

The committee is composed of Mrs. Grace L. Ryan, chairman; Miss Anna C. Reinhardt and the Rev. Thomas D. Windiate, vice chairmen. Other members of the committee include Mrs. Fulton Lewis, Mrs. L. M. Leisenring, Mrs. Carlton Van Valkenburg, Miss Florence S. Berryman, Mrs. H. A. Brooks, Mrs. Lewis P. Clephane, Mrs. John H. Coxhead, Mrs. George H. Girty, Mrs. John Walker Holcombe, Mrs. George W. Johnston, Mrs. S. A. Kimberley, Mrs. Oliver Owen Kuhn, Mrs. Robert LeFevre, Miss Josephine Giffen, Miss Mimmie F. Notz, Miss Marie E. Roelker, Mrs. Charles H. Stratton, Mrs. William Henry White, Mrs. Anne P. Gaynor, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Steele, Mr. Lynch Luquer, Mr. Rowland Lyon and Commander F. W. Southworth.

Miss Laura Barkley Coming for Wedding.

Miss Laura Barkley, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, will arrive this morning to be the guest of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Roderick L. Carmichael and their daughter, Miss Kathleen Carmichael. She is coming to Washington for the marriage of Miss Catherine Berry to Lieut. Frank Coleman, which will take place Monday. Both Miss Carmichael and Miss Barkley will be bridesmaids. The former is entertaining at luncheon today for the bride-elect.

Miss Clara Bolling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wilmer Bolling, will entertain at dinner Saturday night at the Chevy Chase Club in honor of Miss Catherine Knox Berry, whose marriage to Lieut. Frank Jerdone Coleman, U. S. Air Corps, will take place Monday. Miss Bolling will also be one of the bridesmaids.

Col. and Mrs. Clyde Leslie Eastman are at the Shoreham, where they have taken an apartment for the season. Col. Eastman has been transferred from New York to a Signal Corps post in Washington.

Polish Envoy To Hungary To Wed Soon

Mlle. Zosja Szmidecka, Engaged to Marry Mr. Lepkowski.

From Warsaw comes the announcement of the engagement of Mlle. Zosja Szmidecka and Mr. Stanislaw Lepkowski, Polish Minister to Hungary and until a few months ago Counselor of the Polish Embassy in Washington. The wedding will take place within a short time although no date has been set.

Both Mlle. Szmidecka and Mr. Lepkowski have a wide circle of friends in Washington, the former having served as social secretary to Mme. Filipowicz, wife of the Polish Ambassador, since the envoy and his wife came to Washington in October, 1929. She sailed for Europe about two months ago and has been at her home in Warsaw.

Mlle. Szmidecka is a member of an old and very distinguished family in Poland, her father having for years engaged in the oil industry in the Caucasus and was one of Poland's leading industrialists until the misfortunes of the World War swept his holdings into the maelstrom which extended throughout Europe. An old friend of Mme. Filipowicz, Mlle. Szmidecka, decided two years ago to accompany her to Washington.

Recently Mr. Lepkowski left the United States for Warsaw and was appointed envoy to Budapest, where he is now established.

Mr. William Phelps Eno, who has been spending a short time in New York, has gone to Judgh Rock, his summer home in Saugatuck, Conn., where he will spend the season.

Col. and Mrs. Arthur O'Brien will leave Esta Brook, their estate in Rock Creek Park, the latter part of this month to go to New York to sail about June 25 for Europe. They will go to Vienna to be with Mrs. O'Brien's daughter, the Baroness van der Elst, formerly Miss Allison Roebling, wife of the secretary of the Belgian Embassy.

Mrs. O'Brien's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hagner (the latter formerly Miss Caroline Roebling) have taken a cottage at Nantucket for the summer. They plan to leave Washington for the North as soon as their daughter, Margaret Allison Hagner, can make the trip.

Mrs. John D. McGee and her son, John, jr., will leave by motor today for St. Louis, Colorado, and California, to be absent from Washington for the summer months.

Justice Whaley Host at Dinner.

Justice Richard Smith Whaley, of the U. S. Court of Claims, was host to a party at dinner at the Shoreham last evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Whelan will give up their home at 2127 R street around the middle of this month and move to the house they have leased, 2200 R street.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Eliot have leased the Whelans' house and will take possession June 15.

Miss Harriet Winslow and Miss Mary Winslow left Washington by motor yesterday for Newport to attend the marriage of their cousin, Miss Emilie Winslow, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cameron Winslow, to Mr. Cecil Irton Wylde, of Boston. The ceremony will take place Saturday.

The Misses Winslow will be guests of Admiral and Mrs. Winslow until after the wedding and will remain in Newport for the marriage of Miss Theodora Winslow, another daughter of Admiral and Mrs. Winslow, to Mr. Auguste L. Noel, of New York, which will take place June 27.

Mabel Barr Is Made Bride Before Altar

Married in Georgetown Church to Edgar D. Williams, Jr.

Miss Mabel Elizabeth Barr, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Carlisle Barr, 3050 N street, became the bride last night of Mr. Edgar Denton Williams, jr., at a beautiful ceremony performed at 8:30 o'clock by the Rev. John Temple in Christ Church, Georgetown. Mr. Williams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Denton Williams, of East Falls Church, Va.

Spring flowers and a profusion of ferns and palms made a background for the service. The bride, who was given away by her father, had chosen eggshell satin cut on severe lines with long, tight sleeves and a long train. The neck line of the bodice was cut in cowl fashion. She wore a tulle veil with a panel of rare lace held tightly to the head with French gardenias. She carried calla lilies.

The maid of honor, Miss Constance Clairmonte, of Aylesford, Nova Scotia and Washington, wore blue Spanish shadow lace and a large natural color straw hat and carried talisman roses and delphinium. The bridesmaids all wore peach Spanish shadow lace made on the same straight lines as the honor maid's. Their hats were of beige straw with peach and blue velvet ribbon and they carried spring flowers. The maids were Mrs. Howard S. Berger and Miss Adele Williams, sisters of the bridegroom; Miss Ellen Fenwick and Miss Katherine Wilder.

The best man was Mr. Richard Cassius Lee Moncure, of East Falls Church. The ushers included Mr. Neilson Strawbridge and Mr. William Carlisle Barr, of Washington; Mr. Reginald B. Munson and Dr. Howard S. Berger, of East Falls Church.

After the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for about 200 guests. The bride's going away costume was of skipper blue cloth with which she wore a rough straw hat to match and matching accessories. They will honeymoon at Atlantic City.

Mrs. Clopton Hostess At Luncheon Tomorrow.

Mrs. Hoggatt Clopton will entertain at luncheon tomorrow at the Shoreham Hotel, in compliment to Mrs. Samuel William Earle, of Chicago, the chaplain national of the Daughters of 1812 and former secretary general of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Among those attending the luncheon will be Mme. Sacasa, wife of the Minister of Nicaragua; Senor Dr. Don Juan B. Sacasa, Mrs. Thomas D. Schall, Mme. Chevalier, wife of the secretary of Panama; Mrs. Paul Myron Linebarger, Mrs. Charles S. Lobingier, Mrs. Eugene R. Woodson, Mrs. Charles J. Williamson, Mrs. James H. Stanfield, Mrs. Henry F. D. Davis and Mrs. Leland Dotson Webb.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Chapin Huntington have closed their house and have gone to Journey's End, their summer home in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Clarke County, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin A. Wertz, accompanied by their son, Melvin Moore Wertz, and Miss Dorothy M. Darby, left this morning for a ten-day motor trip to Boston and vicinity. While absent they will attend the commencement exercises of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, when their son, Mr. Hugh Slater Wertz, will be graduated as a master of science in electrical engineering.

Mrs. Marion E. Knight has returned to Washington for a short visit and has reopened her apartment at Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Lee Washington and their daughter, Miss Helen Lee Washington, have closed their home in R street and are at York Village, Me., where they have opened their summer home.

Will Go to Newport

Underwood & Underwood.

MRS. E. PAUL ABERNATHY will join Lieut. Abernathy, U. S. N., at Newport, where they will be stationed. She has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Harbaugh.

Peary's Son Takes Bride In Columbus

Marries Ruth Inez Kelly, of Mankato, Minn.; Rites Quiet.

Mr. Robert E. Peary, son of Mrs. Josephine Diebitsch Peary and the late Admiral Peary, discoverer of the North Pole, and Miss Ruth Inez Kelly, of Mankato, Minn., were married on Saturday evening in the First English Lutheran Church in Columbus, Ohio, by the Rev. Lewis P. Speaker. No members of either family were present at the ceremony.

Mr. Peary and his bride will make their home at 775 East Broad street, Columbus, after June 15.

Mr. Peary's mother, once a resident of Washington, resided at Columbus until recently, but has gone to Boston, Mass., the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edward Stafford, who was the former Marie Almighto Peary, and was known as the most northerly-born white child in the world.

Mr. Peary is a graduate of Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., and of Lehigh University, of Bethlehem, Pa. His bride was graduated from the normal school at Mankato, Minn.

Mrs. Frederick K. Sparrow, of East Capitol street, has gone to attend the graduation exercises at Dartmouth College. While there she will be the guest of her son, Dr. Frederick K. Sparrow, of the faculty, and his family.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"GEMINI."

IF JUNE 3 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 1:30 p. m. to 3:10 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 8:25 p. m. The danger hours are from 11 a. m. to 1:10 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:45 p. m.

The planetary aspects of June 3 denote something of an unexpected nature from a source not actively associated with your endeavors. Domestic difference may be also anticipated, but will quickly yield to reason—if applied in time. A favorable opportunity for travel or change of environment.

Children born on this June 3 will be always bubbling over with enthusiasm, and there is nothing that they will not be ready to try. Failure will not discourage them. They will possess self-esteem, assurance and perserverance; be vivacious, cheerful, optimistic and lovable.

You, if born on June 3, are too serious-minded for your own good, and for those associated with you. The cultivation of more congeniality and leviality would very much enhance your marketable value, expand your range of affections, and cause a reciprocal liking on the part of others. Can you not acquire a modicum of that philosophy which, when things do not go the right way, causes the reflection that "it might be worse?"

You are quiet and reserved. These are good qualities when not carried to excess. Then they become faults and symbolical of too much self-analysis and attention. You are original and intuitive; shrewd and intelligent. If it were not for the gloomy smoke screen with which you surround yourself, thereby keeping others away, your life would be eminently happy and successful.

You are not at all emotional or demonstrative, but your love nature is a strong one. You are a hard worker mentally, but a poor one physically. You excel as a designer, but fail as an executant. You soon tire of routine or the steady grind. You like to tackle new things and solve fresh problems. You will never be happy jogging along in a rut.

Successful People Born June 3:

Henry James, father of Henry James, the novelist, theologian.

Thomas Sail, sculptor.

George H. Merris, naval officer.

William Shakespeare, English dramatist and poet.

George Burton Adams, professor of history at Yale.

King George V. of Great Britain.

YOUR NAME

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Daly" (also written "O'Daly," "Daley," "Dawley" and "Dailey") is almost always of Irish origin. Its common Irish source is "O'Dalaigh" which means "the son of Dalach." The personal name "Dalach" may be translated "he who holds assemblies" or "he who frequents assemblies." However, there is evidence that in some cases "Daley" is of English origin. When it is derived from the old English "da-leah" it means "the doe-lea," that is, the meadow frequented by does. When its source is the old English "dael-leah" it means "the dale-lea," that is, the meadow in the valley. It is obvious that these English names point to original places of residence. The Irish Dalys claim descent from ancient chiefs of their land. This family once became famous as poets. The first of the family to become famous for his learning and poetry was Cuchonnacht na scoile (Cuchonnacht of the school) who died in 1139.

The family name "Ballenger" is one of the many variations of "Bullenger." It is derived from the old French "bulenger" (modern French "boulanger") which means "the baker," and indicates the occupation of the persons who were first so called. This name does not seem to occur in the earliest records. A London church register records the baptism of John Bullinger in 1564.

The family name "Moorhead" is of English origin. Its source is the old English "mor-heafod" which means "the upper part of the moor" or "the upper part of the morass," and it indicates an original place of residence. The northern English form of this name is "Muirhead."

Rhubarb Jelly.

2 cups rhubarb
2 cups water
2 cups sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water

Mix rhubarb and water. Cook in covered pan for ten minutes. Remove lid and add sugar and boil five minutes. Add gelatin, which has soaked five minutes in cold water. Add lemon juice. Mix well and pour into individual molds. Chill and unmold and serve.

Summer Salad.

2 cups cooked peas
1 cup cooked diced carrots
½ cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons finely chopped green peppers
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
½ cup salad dressing

Mix and chill ingredients. Serve on lettuce.

Strawberry Sherbet.

4 cups berries, washed and hulled
1½ cups sugar
1 cup water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 egg whites, beaten

Mix berries and sugar. Mix well and mash and let stand one hour. Add water and lemon juice. Pour into sterilized freezer and when half frozen add egg whites, beaten. Freeze until stiff. Serve in glass cups.

Yellow Drop Cakes.

½ cup butter

Ah, Interprets the Mode

Dainty summer frock of embroidered rose voile, charmingly incrusted and trimmed with cutwork motifs. (Courtesy of Jenny, Paris.)

New York, June 2.

THIS is the very moment you simply have to stop whatever you're doing and seriously think of what you're going to wear on the beach this summer, that is, if you haven't been thinking about it already for months past. And what you're going to be able to wear on the beach doesn't mean only pyjamas or bathing suits, either. Because there's a whole new class of costume which doesn't fall into either class, yet sometimes partakes of both, if you get what I mean.

Now, I've gotten you wondering what it's all about, I'll tell you what they are. A pair of shorts usually quite full, either with circular legs or pleated fullness, forms the trouser part, while the uppers can consist of almost anything from a tuck-in blouse, or belted overblouse, to nothing much more than a pair of crossed suspenders. The blouses are sleeveless, of course, and the costume is sometimes accompanied by a little capelet to protect oneself from the too strong rays of the sun, or a knee-length coat for warmth.

Linen, shantung, tussor, and for dressier effects, even crepe de chine, in all the pastel and vivid shades are used. And jersey and light-weight woolens, very tweedy in appearance, are also very smart and what's more musses less for beach lolling.

Who hasn't longed for a little frock that can be slipped on easily and go happily to—o-o-o-h, almost anywhere, on a summer afternoon? Just such a one is the rose pink voile, from Jenny, that I show you today. This material is embroidered with a wee little seeding of self-color—so small that it's hardly visible at all, but which gives the frock possibilities not open to plain voile which hasn't sufficient body for elaborate treatment. This frock has most adorable incrustations on the waist, and young little short sleeves, and very unusual cutwork on the collar, sleeves and tie! And it is these careful touches that make a frock of this sort suitable for ever so many summer occasions where one would be cool as well as beautiful!

• • • •

The smart woman this year has lots of cotton dresses in her wardrobe, but she realizes that careful hand work of the kind that characterizes this Jenny frock is the thing that raises this type of frock from just a cotton dress to a frock of real elegance and charm!

• • • •

Girls will be girls—yes, some of 'em even will be girls on the beach this year, to the extent of wearing skirts and dresses! Don't you believe me? Well it's perfectly true they will wear skirts on their bathing suits, and adorable little gingham dresses over their suits when they are wet in all the more fashionable resorts this year! And so that you can be in fashion, too, I've made a leaflet about these beach togs, which you may have by sending your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post. It is simple to make these chic beach things.

• • • •

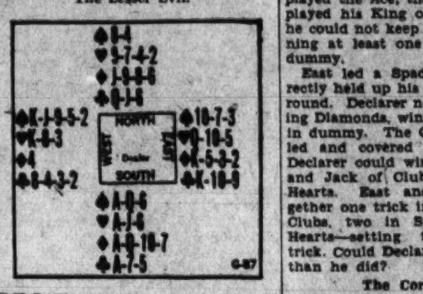
WORK ON BRIDGE

The Lesser Evil.



WITH the above hand at Auction South would obtain an uncontested one No Trump contract. At Contract, South's 21-count hand, with every suit stopped, warranted an original declaration of three No Trumps, and neither adversary had a double or a bid.

West led the Five of Spades, East played the Ten, and South won the trick with the Queen. A hold-up here would have meant the loss of the Queen and but a single stopper in Spades. Declarer counted five sure tricks, plus additional possibilities in Diamonds and Clubs. Since dummy could not be put in the lead to finesse either Clubs or Diamonds, Declarer decided to establish Diamonds—his longest and strongest suit. He played the Ace, then the Queen. East played his King on the Queen since he could not keep Declarer from winning at least one Diamond trick in dummy.

East led a Spade, and South correctly held up his Ace until the third round. Declarer now ran the remaining Diamonds, winning the last round in dummy. The Queen of Clubs was led and covered by the King. All Declarer could win now was the Ace and Jack of Clubs, and the Ace of Hearts. East and West won altogether one trick in Diamonds, one in Clubs, two in Spades and one in Hearts—setting the contract one trick. Could Declarer have made more than he did?

The Correct Play.

South is forced to give up one finesse in order to set up an entry in dummy's hand; he should have selected the less valuable. Even if the Club finesse works, a trick must be lost in that suit. If the Diamond finesse succeeds, however, that suit is solid. Declarer should lead a small Club from his own hand. After the Spades are established, another small Club puts dummy in to lead the Jack of Diamonds, and the Ten played from Declarer's hand if East plays low. In this way Declarer's Seven can be played under dummy's Nine, and the necessary third finesse can be taken. Declarer wins four tricks in Diamonds, two in Spades, two in Clubs, one in Hearts.

SUMMERING YOUR HOUSE PLANTS.

MANY persons who can raise the most beautiful plants during the winter months haven't the slightest idea what to do with them during the summer months.

If you expect to enjoy your plants and have other than indifferent specimens in the fall and winter, you must give them attention during June, July and August. Of course, a plant in the open, if left alone, will develop growth, and usually fine growth, but when fall comes and it becomes necessary to lift it, think what happens.

While the plant in the radiant summer sunshine has been sending forth most glorious top growth, it has also been developing long, slender roots which have followed their own inclinations and wandered far into the mellow soil. When you lift the plant to pot it a large share of these roots will have to be cut off in order to make the root fit the pot, and when the young working roots are thus removed it will be necessary to sacrifice a proportionate amount of the top. All of which seriously checks the future development of the plant. In fact, it takes months for it to recover from the shock.

This shock takes place at a time when the plant needs every ounce of energy at its command.

A plant that is summered in the open ground soon shows the result of its lowered vitality. In fact, it usually looks worse than it did in late May after it had done a successful winter's work of sending forth new leaves and flowers, should it be a flowering one.

Plunged pots always suffer from lack of moisture. So this is not a good plan.

Plants intended for winter flowering should, as far as possible, be induced to rest during the warm months.

The best plan to follow is to keep your house plants on the veranda where they can be protected from the extreme rays of the sun and from strong winds or dashing rains.

Every rule has its exception, and while the plants in a class should not be plunged in summer, the azalea is one plant that does require this treatment. I refer to the tender varieties.

The Only Washing Problem

Modern Laundry Expert Explains "Net Bag System"

Tells How Manhattan Saves You Money By Saving Your Clothes

Present day laundry methods, which preserve clothes as well as clean them, are far superior to the old home method of rubbing and scrubbing, according to Mr. E. F. Wesely, chief of the Research Department of Manhattan Laundry. Mr. Wesely attributes a large part of the Manhattan Laundry's success to their Net Bag System.

Manhattan's famous Net Bag System of washing, as described by Mr. Wesely, follows: First, the clothes are assorted according to their color and material and placed in individual net bags which bear the customer's name and contain only that customer's articles. Safe in the nets and protected from all metal or other hard surfaces, the clothes go into the washers. Here they are subjected to the gentle cleansing action of swirling hot suds which penetrate each garment and loosen every particle of dirt. Only the purest of Palm Oil soaps and soft, filtered water are used, after first having been inspected and tested by the Research Department. Many rinsings of fresh, clear water follow, removing every trace of dirt. This thorough care in washing is one reason why Manhattan laundered clothes stay new-looking so much longer.

Customer Praises Net Bags

In a recent letter to the Manhattan Laundry, Mrs. E. R. D. writes:

". . . But the one actual fact that pleases me most is that the clothes do not show as much wear as they did when I had my laundry done at home . . . It is indeed a pleasure to recommend you . . ."

This letter is typical of the many received by Manhattan from satisfied customers throughout the District of Columbia and Virginia.

3-Day Collection and Delivery

Quite another Manhattan feature which has found great favor with Washington housewives is their 3-Day Collection and Delivery Service. In this highly developed system your clothes are collected one day, laundered to your order the next and delivered to you promptly the afternoon of the third day. For instance, if your clothes are collected Monday morning they are delivered Wednesday afternoon; called for Tuesday, back home Thursday, and so on. No delay. No worry. And there is no additional charge for this extra service.

Services to Fit Every Need

Manhattan offers the housewife a wide selection of economical services — from Complete Finished Family to individual piece work. There is a service to fit every need and purse, and every service receives Net Bag Care—which saves you money by saving your clothes.

YOUR other washables—even the daintiest—are actually safer at Manhattan than at home. For here they are laundered in soft net bags which keep out the wear that wears clothes out. Suds of Pure Palm Oil soap loosen all the dirt without any rubbing. Gallons of soft, filtered water wash it away. And, after a brief 3 Day Visit, home come your clothes—beautifully fresh and clean. (Modern equipment—not haste—makes this fast service possible.)

Is it any wonder that so many Washington women send their entire wash to Manhattan? Decide as they have that washday has no place in the home—and let us show you how we save you money by saving your clothes. Just phone Decatur 1120 . . . . . we're waiting for your call!

AMERICAN U. PLANS $1,500,000 DRIVE

Trustees Hold Money Needed to Maintain Institution on Even Keel.

To place American University on an "even financial keel," the board of trustees will launch a public appeal next fall for $1,500,000.

This was announced last night by Edward F. Colladay, chairman of the advance program committee of the board of trustees, who explained that the funds would be used to "balance the operating budget" of the university. Present indebtedness would be cleared off and a small increase of endowment would be provided by the $1,500,000.

The advance program committee of the board, Mr. Colladay explained, during the past six months made a careful survey of the financial requirements of the university.

Also Looking Ahead.

"We undertook this," he explained, with the two-fold purpose of holding our finances steady during the present general depression and also of building toward a future growth and development that will be worthy of this university and the city in which it is located.

"This survey indicates an immediate need for $1,500,000, with which to balance our operating budget. No college in America makes an operating profit from tuitions. Every college must have an endowment, the income from which supplements tuition receipts. American University has accumulated thus far in our brief history an endowment of $741,000. This represents very substantial progress for an institution as young as ours is, but on the other hand it is far too small to bridge the university across a period of stress. We now have 600 students enrolled in the university and in accordance with general educational standards this enrollment would require an endowment of $3,000,000.

Want to Wipe Out Debt.

However, we have no intention of asking for this sum now. All we recommend at this time is to wipe out our indebtedness in order to eliminate the drain of interest charges and add enough to our endowment in order to balance our operating budget.

"After we get our budget balanced, our committee recommends a modest building and enlargement program, but at the present time expansion should be kept in the background. The present imperative need is to put the university on an even financial keel. During the present storm we must hold this great institution steady, so that it may fulfill its purpose of representing the American ideal of education here at the Nation's Capital. I am sure that friends of education will give us their cooperation at this crucial time."

Other members of the advance program committee of the university are William S. Corby, Wade H. Cooper, Daniel C. Roper, John C. Letts, Bishop William F. McDowell and Chancellor Lucius C. Clark.

tenced for a felonious assault. Watson escaped during the absence of Mrs. Wilts, who had left the keys to the cells with one of the prisoners. Another incident reported by the jury was that of a prisoner procuring a pistol and threatening another prisoner with whom he had quarreled.

Other recommendations made were that an extra stairway leading from the first floor to the second floor, "which appears to be a useless menace rather than an aid to proper handling of its inmates," should be removed; heavy steel, closely meshed, wire should be placed securely over the windows of the first floor, so as to prevent the passing of weapons and other things helpful to prisoners in making their escape; sewerage drainage, in such condition as to endanger health of prisoners and those living near the jail, should be repaired immediately, and separate lavatory facilities should be provided for male and female prisoners."

Members of the special grand jury were Thomas Sheppard, foreman; E. H. Hunt, H. Yost Meetze, Worth H. Storke, F. H. Pickett and A. B. Carr.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

FOR the off season of a business that is supposed to be off, there seems to be a good deal going on in the matter of planning new stage productions for the summer and ensuing fall. In a single announcement comes word of a whole grist of new plays.

According to the office of Jack Linder, for example, casting will begin this week for "The Daughter of Diamond Lil," described as a sequel to "Diamond Lil," the Mae West production of three seasons ago that almost played Washington.

"Good Morning, Bill," by Pelham Granville Wodehouse, has been accepted by the Messrs. Shubert for fall production.

"The Bitter Road," by Harry McKee, will be produced with Jeannette Lee-Fox, Jack McKee and Maxine Brown in the cast, with Donald Meek as a possibility to go in later. Opening June 15 in Brooklyn.

"Dear Public," by Ruth Fine and Beatrice Aaronson, has been acquired by Jack Charash and Bernard Poselow, a new producing firm, for the fall trade.

Somerset Maugham's dramatization of "Painted Veils" will be produced by Messmore Kendall.

"Alice Takata," an adaptation by Jose Ruben of a play by the Hungarian dramatist, Dezzo Szmory, has been purchased by Rowland Stebbins (Lawrence Rivers, Inc.) producer of "The Green Pastures," and is scheduled for next season production.

A new theatrical producing company called Walker Towns, Inc., will become active next season, with four plays on their tentative schedule. One of their prospective productions is Frederick Schlick's dramatization of William Faulkner's novel, "Sanctuary;" another, "Gentlemen of Distinction," by Dory Shary.

If the theater is dead, it is an extremely lively cadaver!

Although she does not appear in the cast of characters appearing in John Drinkwater's delightful comedy, "Bird in Hand," at the National this week, Roberta Beatty, nevertheless, is briefly in evidence at every performance. Before the rise of the first curtain at each presentation of the play, Miss Beatty steps before the audience and extemporizes upon the manifold merits of "Strange Interlude," with which the National Theater Players will be engaged week after next.

Mr. Cochran informs me that from the manner in which reservations are pouring in, Miss Beatty's acclamatory admonitions are not going unheeded by the laity. There are still, however, excellent locations left for those who care to be expeditious.

Speaking of the National Players, a swanky invitation has just come to hand emblazoned in part with a happy heralding to the effect that "By permission of the management, 'Work Takes a Holiday' for a moment only, in the pool of the Shoreham Hotel at 12:01 a. m., Thursday, June 4, 1931. The reason: Dot and Stan Ridges' Anniversary; John Warburton's Birthday."

Here, obviously, is one party that is going to be wet and makes no bones about it. A very splendid idea for drowning dull care and for once making a splash in society. But at 12:01 a. m.—what a strange interlude! Anticipatory congratulations, at any rate.

And another thing. In Tuesday's review of "Bird in Hand," of course it would be just our luck to have what we wrote as "the nuances, the delicate shadings and the subtleties" come out in print as "the nuances, the delicate shadings and the SUBTITLES."

Just another of the movies' subtitle evil influences—or do I, Mr. Compositor, by any chance mean subtle?

It will come as a keen disappointment to many of us who have just pirouetted into the first twittery stages of adolescence to learn that the Fox Theater dancing classes, which, under the talented guidance of Helen Kearny, have achieved a total registration of approximately 3,500 pupils during the past year, will close for the summer months tomorrow night.

Emphasis is laid upon the fact that the suspension is for the heated term only. The classes will be resumed with the coming again of cool weather. (Goody, goody.)

Addressing the National Editorial Association Convention in Atlanta, Ga., yesterday, George Akerson, former secretary to President Hoover and now a member of the executive staff of Paramount-Publix, made the unequivocal statement that his company has definitely abandoned its policy of producing and exhibiting sponsored "commercial" films. As soon as a few pending contracts have been fulfilled the practice will be abolished. In the light of past experience, it never should have been begun.

Two groups of talented youngsters, in Washington this week as guests of the Boys Club Federation of America, now in convention here, are to visit the Fox Theater tonight, and, after seeing what the professional performers can do on the stage and screen are going to climb up there on that stage and do their own stuff.

The two groups are from Fort Worth, Tex., and Stamford, Conn. The Texas boys, rigged out in cowboy fashion, will sing a number or two, accompanied by a cowgirl pianist, while the Stamford lads, attired in the most approved Connecticut Yankee style (no grapefruit, please), are going to show what kind of music can be extracted from a boxful of harmonicas—provided Borrah Minnevitch and his gang left any in them. This all happens at 8:45.

All right, I'll bite, what IS so rare as a day in June?

German Prince to Wed.

London, June 2 (A.P.).—Prince Max Carl de Hohenlohe-Langenburg, a member of the house of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, which is connected with almost every European royal family, will be married tomorrow in the tiny London register office to the beautiful Signorina Louise Pasquero, member of an old Italian family.

The Washington Post

YOU'VE wished many times that it were possible for you to have a summer home of your own—a place where you could send your wife and family away from the hot city. NOW THE WASHINGTON POST has made it possible for you to realize this wish at a cost amazingly low!

WOODLAND BEACH offers everything that you would expect from the highest priced vacation resort. Located on two beautiful coves of the South River, an arm of Chesapeake Bay, it is one of the beauty spots of this part of the country. Every summer sport and recreation is well provided for at WOODLAND BEACH. THE WASHINGTON POST has done everything in its power to make WOODLAND BEACH the perfect summer home for its readers.

Clubhouse

An attractive colonial clubhouse, shown above, has been erected and completely furnished. It will be given free to an association of property owners to be formed for the exclusive use of all residents of WOODLAND BEACH.

Boating—Bathing—Fishing

The entire beach front has been reserved for lot owners at WOODLAND BEACH. The sheltered coves offer safe bathing for children and an ideal harbor for sail and motor boats. The fishing is excellent.

How to Get There

WOODLAND BEACH is only 32 miles from Washington and 30 from Baltimore. It is reached from Washington via the Defense Highway (U. S. No. 50) to Camp Parole, then south across South River Bridge to Mayo Road, then follow signs direct to property.

CHOICE LOTS UNSOLD AT WOODLAND BEACH

Many Good Sites Overlooked by Early Purchasers of Home Locations.

Despite the heavy rush of business during the first two weeks of the sale of lots at Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's summer home development site on South River, in Maryland, there are still many excellent locations available, it was announced at the Beach headquarters yesterday.

As in all such rushes to obtain lots on this beautiful section of Maryland river shore line, many choice locations were overlooked by persons in their eagerness to get lots next to some friend or to satisfy some personal desire as to where their summer home should be built.

In checking back over the plots of ground, Woodland Beach officials have discovered many very fine lots as yet unsold and these will be offered to the first callers at The Post in the next few days. The entire sale has been conducted on the basis of first come, first served, and all the other lots in the development will be disposed of in the same manner.

All Lots Are Good.

Just because hundreds have already joined the happy group of Woodland Beach lot owners, don't be discouraged and of the opinion that all the good lots are gone. That is not the case for two reasons. One is that excellent locations have been overlooked and the other is that all the lots in the Beach property are good.

And for the price asked, any lot in Woodland Beach is a bargain which ought not be passed up. The only requirements before making your selection are a subscription to The Post and the payment of $9 in cash. The rest of the $93, which is the universal price of lots, may be paid in monthly installments of $3.50. These easy terms have appealed to many who did not care to spend any large amount at the moment of making the purchase.

Drop in and Join Colony.

You can pick your lot and make your down payment any day at The Washington Post on the ground floor office, where a corps of well-trained, courteous salesmen is on duty ready to serve you. Drop in today and join the Woodland Beach family.

For your information, Woodland Beach is 32 miles from the Capital over Defense highway toward Annapolis, turning right at Camp Parole, onto Maryland State highway No. 2, across the South River Bridge and left onto Mayo road leading to the Beach. The community clubhouse, already constructed, is the only landmark you need.

E. B. Dean, Sr., Sued For $50,000 by Woman

A suit for $50,000 was brought against Edward B. Dean, sr., prominent business man, yesterday by Sylvia Miller, of Sixteenth street near R street northwest, who charged that Mr. Dean had made an assault on her. The plaintiff charges that on May 27, 1931, in the District, the defendant "wounded" her and committed "other wrongs and indignities." The suit does not specify the particulars. In the suit, Mr. Dean's address is given as Columbia road near Seventeenth street northwest.

YEARS OF GRACE

By MARGARET AYER BARNES

SYNOPSIS.

Agnes, Jimmy, Jane and little Agnes Rice at Tony's, an Italian restaurant in the Village, where Jane sees a new side of life and finds herself enjoying the odorous food and sprightly conversation. She promises to look after Jimmy when he comes to Chicago, and Agnes, who will remain in New York, privately confesses to Jane that she will devote her spare time to writing a "good bad play" that if successful, will earn $50,000 on Broadway and relieve her mind of anxiety about the future of little Agnes. Jimmy and herself.

JIMMY—CHAPTER V.

"WELL,—I guess this is good-bye," said Agnes.

"I hate to say it," said Jane.

They were sitting on two high stools in a Broadway Ruyler's and had just finished a luncheon composed of a sandwich and a soda. Jane was going back to Chicago on the Twentieth Century Limited next day.

Jane had had a gay week in New York. She had seen six plays in seven days and all the picture exhibitions up and down Fifth Avenue and had gone twice to the Metropolitan, and had bought a new dress at Hollander's and a boxful of toys for the children at Schwartz's, and had dined once again with Agnes and had her and Jimmy to dine at the Belmont one evening before a symphony concert.

This, of course, was Agnes's noon hour. She had to be back at Macy's in ten minutes. Jane seized the soda check and slipped regretfully from her stool.

"It has certainly been great to see you," she sighed.

"And you'll take care of Jimmy in the corn belt," said Agnes a little wistfully.

Wishes For Bad Play's Success.

"Of course I will," said Jane, pushing the check through the cashier's cage. "I think he's a darling. When will he show up?"

"Oh—right away," said Agnes. "He would have loved to go with you Jane, but he has to pay his own expenses, so the Twentieth Century seemed foolish. He'll loiter out on some milk train in a day or two and show up in Lakewood looking hungry for a square meal."

"Well, he'll get one!" Jane pocketed her change.

"And now darling"—Agnes looked steadily in Jane's shining eyes—"you are a darling, you know, Jane—wish me luck on the play!"

"You know I do," said Jane. "I hope it's bad enough to run forever."

"It won't be my fault if it isn't," said Agnes. She put one arm around Jane's waist. Jane looked tenderly at her funny freckled face.

"Agnes," said Jane, "you're the most gallant person I ever knew."

Agnes smiled in defensive mockery. Her lips met Jane's cheek.

Her Shabby Figure Is Heroic.

Jane watched her solid, slightly shabby figure disappear in the Broadway traffic. To Jane it looked very heroic. She was conscious, curiously enough, of a slight sense of envy. Agnes' life, at least, was still an adventure. She was fighting odds and overcoming difficulties. She was struggling with life and love.

* * * *

Jane sat beside Flora in their compartment on the Twentieth Century watching Flora and Mr. Furness play cribbage.

It was warm in the compartment, in spite of the whirring electric fan, and Jane was not particularly interested in cribbage. She thought she would go back to the observation car and read a magazine. She said as much and Flora looked up patiently from the cribbage board. Flora was not particularly interested in cribbage either, but Mr. Furness loved it. She walked through the plush and varnished comfort of the Twentieth Century thinking idly that Flora's life was terrible. Nothing ever happened in it. She wondered in how many trains, bound for what exotic destinations, Flora had played cribbage with Mr. Furness. Of course, on the Twentieth Century Limited, just passing through Spuyten Duyvil, you would not expect anything very surprising to happen in any case, but on those trains de luxe, en route for Calcutta and Luxor and Moscow, had not Flora felt—Jane passed from the narrow corridor to the observation compartment and saw Jimmy Trent, stretched comfortably in an armchair, scanning the columns of the Evening World.

He saw her instantly and cast aside the paper.

About to Page the Train for Her.

"I was wondering when you would show up," he said casually. Then, rising to his feet, "I saw you get aboard and took an upper on the same section. I was just about to page the train for you."

Jane stared at him in astonishment. She could not believe her eyes.

"Did—did Agnes know you were coming?" she asked stupidly.

"Oh, yes," said Jimmy. "I had lunch with her. I only decided to come this morning."

"Oh!" said Jane. Then after a tiny pause, "I thought——"

"I've no doubt," said Jimmy cheerfully, "that you shared all those thrifty thoughts of Agnes' about that milk train. But I say anything that's worth doing at all is worth doing well. And I haven't been out of New York City for six years."

"Oh!" said Jane again.

Jimmy continued to contemplate her with a sunny smile.

"I took this train," he said presently, "because I thought we'd have fun on it together. Don't you think it's time we began? We've lost almost an hour already."

"What—what do you want to do?" asked Jane, again rather stupidly. She felt totally unequal to coping with Jimmy.

Her Features Harden Defensively.

"I want to talk to you," said Jimmy disarmingly. "There's nothing in all the world as much fun as talk. When you're talking, that is, with the right person."

Jane, still staring up at him, felt her features harden defensively.

Jimmy burst into gentle laughter. "Jane," he said, "you look like a startled faun! You needn't. Would it have been more discreet of me to use the plural? Should I have said 'the right people?' I don't like that phrase. It has an unfortunate social significance."

Jane began to feel a little foolish. She laughed in spite of herself. Her laughter seemed to cheer Jimmy immensely.

"Curious, isn't it," he went on airily, "that 'talking with the right people' means something so very different from 'talking with the right person?' You are an awfully right person, Jane. No doubt you're of the right people, too, but don't let's dwell on that aspect of your many charms. Do you want to stand here in the train aisle all afternoon?"

Go to the Rear Platform.

Having once laughed, Jane found it perfectly impossible to recapture her critical attitude.

"Where shall we go?" she asked.

"How about the back platform?" said Jimmy promptly. "Or will the dust spoil that pretty dress?"

"Mercy, no," said Jane. "Nothing could spoil it."

The back platform was rather sunny and quite deserted. Jimmy opened one of the little folding chairs and brushed off the green carpet-cloth seat and placed it in the shade for Jane. He opened another for himself and sat down beside her. Jane looked out over the sparkling river.

"Isn't the Hudson beautiful?" she said.

"Don't let's talk about the Hudson," said Jimmy.

Jane couldn't keep from smiling as she met his twinkling eyes.

"What shall we talk about?" she said.

"I'll give you your choice of two subjects," said Jimmy promptly. "You or me!"

"In that case I think I'll choose you," said Jane.

"All right," said Jimmy. "Shall I begin or do you, too, find the topic stimulating?"

"I think I'd like to hear what you have to say for it," said Jane.

"It's my favorite theme," smiled Jimmy. "I'll begin at the beginning. I was born in East St. Louis and I was raised in a tent."

"A tent!" cried Jane. Vague visions of circuses rose in her mind.

"Not the kind you're thinking of," said Jimmy. "A revivalist's tent. I'm the proverbial minister's son. My father was a Methodist preacher."

Jane looked up at him with wide eyes of astonishment.

"My mother," went on Jimmy brightly, "was a brewer's daughter. Not the kind of a brewer who draws dividends from the company, but the kind who brews beer. My father was an itinerant revivalist. When my mother met him, he was running a camp meeting in town, crusading against the Demon Rum. She met him in a soft-drink parlor and promptly got religion and signed the pledge. Mother was hell-bent to marry him, and so, of course, presently she ran off and did. That's how I came to be raised in a tent."

"I don't believe a word of it," said Jane. "You're making it all up."

Ended at Altar, She Says.

"It's Gawd's truth," said Jimmy, "and you don't know the half of it! I'm just the kind of a young man that H. G. Wells writes novels about. I ought to get in touch with him. He'd pay me for the story of my life. I'd make him one of those wistful, thwarted, lower-middle-class heroes—"

"It is like a novel," said Jane breathlessly. "It's just like a novel."

"But how does it end?" asked Jimmy, a trifle gloomily.

"It ended when you married Agnes," said Jane promptly.

"It isn't a fairy story," said Jimmy gently. "H. G. Wells' novels never end at the altar."

Jane did not reply to that. She was watching the ruddy September sun sinking into the western haze behind Storm King. She was conscious of Jimmy's eyes, fixed thoughtfully on her face. They sat a long time in silence. Jane could see the dim outline of the Catskills, pale lavender against an orange sky, before he spoke again.

"And your novel, Jane?" he asked gently. "Who wrote that?"

"Louisa M. Alcott," said Jane promptly. "There's nothing modern and morbid in my story."

"Now it's my turn to be disbelieving," said Jimmy.

Not Even a Purgatory Yet.

"Do I look morbid?" said Jane, turning to smile serenely into his admiring eyes.

"You look modern," said Jimmy. "And you look very, very thoughtful. All people who think sooner or later go through hell."

"Then my hell must be ahead of me," said Jane steadfastly.

"You haven't even experienced a purgatory?" smiled Jimmy. "Something you got in and got out of?"

"Not even a purgatory," said Jane. "I'm a very naive person. I've never experienced much of anything."

"Perhaps that will be your hell," said Jimmy.

The door behind them opened suddenly and Flora stood on the platform.

"Oh, here you are, Jane!" she cried. "Papa wants to dine early. He's pretty tired." Then she recognized Jimmy. She had met him, of course, at that dinner at the Belmont. She looked very much astonished.

"Why—Mr. Trent——" she said uncertainly.

"Jimmy decided to come West on the Century," said Jane, rising from her chair.

Flora Cheered by His Presence.

"How nice," said Flora, in her best Dresden shepherdess manner. Then to Jimmy with a smile, "You'll dine with us, of course?"

"I'd love to," said Jimmy.

They all walked together into the observation car. Flora looked distinctly cheered at the thought of a little male companionship other than Mr. Furness'. Jane was thinking of Jimmy's story. How fairylike and fantastic it was compared to her own. By what different roads they had traveled to reach that intimate moment of companionship on the back platform of the Twentieth Century Limited. Having met at last, it seemed very strange to Jane that they could speak the same language. But yet they did. Jimmy, holding open a heavy train door to let her pass in front of him, smiled down into her eyes. She thanked him with an answering smile. Jane felt as if she had known Jimmy for years.

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Ray Sennitsky

WALKING SPANISH.

WHEN SMALL BOYS SEIZE THEIR COMPANIONS BY THE SCRUFF OF THE NECK AND THE SEAT OF THE TROUSERS, HUSTLING THEM ALONG ON TIPTOES, THEY ARE ADOPTING THE METHOD THAT 15TH CENTURY PIRATES USED IN MAKING RELUCTANT CAPTIVES WALK THE PLANK. THAT'S WHY WE CALL IT "WALKING SPANISH."

TOADSTOOLS.

TOADSTOOLS HAVE NOTHING TO DO WITH TOADS. THE WORD CAME FROM THE GERMAN "TODT" AND "STUHL," MEANING DEATH-STOOL, IN REFERENCE TO THE POISONOUS NATURE OF THESE PLANTS.

FOR BETTER OR FOR WORSE

SHORTLY AFTER THE INTRODUCTION OF CHRISTIANITY AMONG THE ANGLO-SAXONS, A PART OF THEIR MARRIAGE CEREMONY INCLUDED THE WORDS, "FOR FAIRER OR FOR FOULER, FOR BETTER OR FOR WORSE," AND WE'VE BEEN TAKING HUSBANDS AND WIVES "FOR BETTER OR FOR WORSE," EVER SINCE.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

DIETS FOR GOOD TEETH.

DRS. DRAIN AND BOYD of Iowa City, have worked for years on diets for children, especially in relation to the prevention of tooth decay. They recommend the following for an average child three to five years of age:

Breakfast: Prune or apple sauce, or orange; 1 egg; cooked cereal with milk and small amount of sugar; ½ slice buttered toast; 8 ounces milk.

9 a. m.: One teaspoonful cod liver oil, followed by orange or tomato juice.

Noon: Tender meat, fish, chicken, or liver; 2 tablespoons mashed or baked potato; 3 ounces buttered vegetable; 2 small leaves lettuce or other raw food; simple pudding; ½ slice bread and butter; 8 ounces milk.

Supper: Milk soup; egg, cottage cheese, custard, or sieved liver, 3 ounces buttered vegetable; ½ slice buttered toast; 2 or 3 ounces fruit sauce; 8 ounces milk.

In addition, 4 to 6 ounces of milk should be given in an afternoon or at bedtime.

An average child should get from these meals: One quart of milk, at least 1 egg, 1 medium serving of meat, 2 vegetables, 1 orange or tomato, 1 fruit; from the additional, 1 teaspoon cod liver oil, 6 teaspoons butter. Sugar should be used sparingly. Cereal should be served but once a day.

Children should be encouraged to eat large quanities of fruits and vegetables. The authors divide vegetables into three classes. In the first class they place lettuce, spinach, tomato, celery, cauliflower, string beans, asparagus and chard. In the second, peas, carrots, beets, turnips, parsnips, onions, egg plant and squash. A child eating two vegetables may choose two from class one, or one from that class and the other from the second group. Potatoes, lima beans, and corn they put in a third class, saying they are so rich in starch that they should be counted as bread or cereal, rather than as a vegetable.

Children should never eat anything between meals except milk or a fruit.

Jelly, peanut butter, candies, butter cakes, cookies and ice creams may be given as desserts at meals. They are not to be eaten between meals.

The foods that children should not eat are: Spices, coffee, tea, pop, pickles, rich pastries, wieners, dried meats, dried beans and fried foods.

The writer does not agree with Drs. Drain and Boyd as to prohibition of fried foods, dried beans and dried meats.

The trend of opinion is now slightly toward proper feeding as the most effective method of protecting the teeth and of building up the vigor of the child.

MILK CHOCOLATE.

J. F. S. writes: How much milk chocolate would it be safe for a person 70 years old in good health to eat daily? Would too much injure the kidneys?

REPLY.

You are not likely to take too much. Milk chocolate throws no burden on the kidneys. The taste of a man of seventy is not likely to lead him astray.

KIDNEY TROUBLE DIET.

H. J. C. writes: Will you please print a diet of what I should eat? The doctor said I have chronic kidney trouble.

REPLY.

Eat about what other people do, but be moderate. Limit your allowance of meat and eggs, but do not stop eating them in moderation. Eat freel of vegetables, potatoes and fruit. Send 10 cents and stamped addressed envelope for booklet on Bright's disease.

Toy Balloon Drifts 1,100 Miles.

Hillsboro, Kans., June 2 (U.P.).—A toy balloon released here by E. Weinmeister and Jay Hubbel drifted 1,100 miles before it came to earth. Several days after they sent it floating away with their names and address attached, they received a letter from a farmer at Sashatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada, advising that he had retrieved the balloon.

NATS BUNCH HITS TO DEFEAT TIGERS IN OPENER, 5 TO 3;

MAC SMITH ADDS 71 TO WIN MEDAL IN BRITISH OPEN

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THERE'S something strangely lacking as the cables flash reports of play at bonny Carnoustie, where the little band of Americans in the field of 200 are renewing their assault on the British open crown, retained by England only once since 1920, when Arthur Havers beat off the golfing forces from across the sea in 1923.

Bobby Jones is on the sidelines and his withdrawal from tournament play goes into effect in the first major golfing event of the season. It takes the form of the first chapter in the tragedy of Bobby Jones, weaned from amateurism by a quarter of a million dollar contract in the movies.

By his own action, Jones, the perennial threat in every major links conclave of the past decade, has removed himself from competition, with the declaration that he regarded his acceptance of the movie offer last fall as definitely dividing himself from amateurism with the added statement that he would never play as a pro.

Fish, Flesh Nor Fowl

Thus Jones, in a golf sense, is neither fish, flesh nor fowl so far as his status is concerned. He can't play in the amateurs, he won't play as a pro, and the summation of his stand leaves no other conclusion but that golf's greatest figure will not be seen in a tournament again.

He is finished with his act in the movies, although the poetry is his golfing motions, the pinnacle in the art, will outlive on the silver screen his retirement from tournament competition. The emotions that Jones must feel as others succeed to all the crowns he once held he must hide in his determination to stay out of the tournaments unless he recants his decision to avoid the professional path.

Each year at the end of his golfing conquests Jones indicated the intention of reducing his strenuous schedule of national and international events, and each year found him back in harness. Now he has no alternative. Golf to Jones, as he himself has willed it, must be confined to friendly brushes in informal matches. The glamour of tournament play for him is no more.

Kind to U. S. G. A.

George Von Elm quit the amateurs last fall after Jones to enter professional ranks with the ambiguous announcement that he was not an amateur, not a professional, but a "business man" golfer, whatever that may be. Jones made no such reservation and he considerately relieved the United States Golf Association of the unpleasant task of ousting the game's greatest figure from amateur ranks, by a formal statement in which he announced that in his own opinion he professionalized himself by his entrance into the films.

Jones' withdrawal leaves the pros supreme. While he was about, he was the savior of the amateurs, always to be depended upon to prevent the national open from being a rout for the pros. With Jones on the sidelines, the amateurs are again outclassed. There is none among them even to challenge seriously the supremacy of the professional element.

It is a boon to the pros. Jones' conquests in the national open always deprived some professional of a golfing title worth in round figures $50,000 to any pro who owned it, but of no monetary value to Jones, whose amateurism forbade him from capitalizing on the exhibition schedule that every professional inherited with the title. It has made a wide-open race of the open.

Boon to Amateurs

It has made a wide-open race, too, of the national amateur, dominated annually by the presence of the peerless Atlantan. It has opened the doors for George Voigt, for Jess Sweetser, for Maurice McCarthy, for Frank Dolp, for George Moe, O. F. Willing and Don Moe and others of the class who had been unable to hurdle the obstacle of Jones in the tournaments.

Jones' exact aversion to professional ranks is not known, but it was clear enough that he deigned not to enter the paid circuit when he accompanied his retiring statment announcement that he would never play as a pro. Perhaps his aversion is born of the feeling that amateur golf has given him so much. He has balanced the scales in the portion that he has given to the game. He alone holds the answer to his golfing future. He's not welcome as an amateur. He won't play as a pro. What then? He's a man without a golfing country. But his absence does leave the tournaments with a ring of emptiness.

8 Other U. S. Pros Among Qualifiers

Leader Has 2 Record-Breaking Rounds for Total of 141.

First Rank of American Stars Survive; Jolley Outside Fold.

By FRANK H. KING
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland, June 2 (A.P.).—The unrelenting rain may be spoiling the British open golf championship for most of the spectators, but native Carnoustians were happy tonight, for MacDonald Smith, a home town boy, had put together two record-breaking rounds of 70-71, to lead the qualifying field.

Take it from any Carnoustian, "old MacSmith"—who is only 38—is off to a running start to capture the title now held by Bobby Jones.

Smith and his eight fellow American professionals cleared the qualifying tests without difficulty, although there were three British professionals in between the medalist and Johnny Farrell and Horton Smith, the two closest Americans, who had 148's.

Archie Compston, the giant British pro, and Reginald Whitcombe were tied for second with 143's, while W. H. Davies held fourth place alone with 147. Compston and Davies are members of the British Ryder Cup team which play Walter Hagen's squad at Columbus, Ohio, June 26 and 27.

Four Americans Fail.

The closing of the qualifying gate tonight eliminated all with scores above 160, which included the four other Americans, Johnny de Paolo, Tom Maguire, Arthur Straus and Joshua Crane. Safely in the fold with the two Smiths and Farrell were Tony Manero, 149; Gene Sarazen, 151; Joe Turnesa, 152; Joe Kirkwood, 154, and Willie Hunter and Tommy Armour, 155.

There were 100 scores below 160 and 9 tied at that figure, comprising the field which will battle it out in the tournament proper, starting tomorrow. Eighteen holes will be played then, 18 Thursday and the final 36 Friday. A further cut will be made in the field Thursday night, all those fifteen or more strokes behind the leader to be eliminated.

The only leading golfer who failed to qualify was the British Ryder Cupper, H. C. Jolley, who had 162, but three veterans of the links fell by the wayside in Harry Vardon, James Braid and Alex Herd.

Braid was beaten by his own hand, for he designed the revised Carnoustie layout which took bitter toll of his strokes today.

The Argentine delegation of four, led by Jose Jurado and Tomasco Genta, came through with colors flying, those two having 149s; Marco Churlo, 156, and Hector Freccero, 158. Several French professionals also remain in play as well as Larry Montez, the little Filipino.

Sutton Leader of Amateurs.

William Sutton, young English workingman-golfer, with 153, topped the field of 19 amateurs who qualified, most of them being native sons of this district.

Mac Smith's round of 71 today, a record for Carnoustie, was a leisurely, effortless circuit of the course, finished before the rain set in again and made under smiling skies. The course was still slow from yesterday's rain, but the puddles had been drained away or sopped up and there were not the unusual hazards of yesterday.

All of the Americans played easily

Eighth in Row for Tribe As Red Sox Bow, 12-11

Boston, June 2 (A.P.).—Cleveland defeated the Red Sox, 12 to 11, today in spite of six Indian errors. It was the Indiaans' eighth straight win.

Cleveland rallied for eight runs against MacFayden, Moore and Durham in the sixth inning, but a balk by Kline in the ninth let in what proved to be the deciding run, for the Sox made five runs in their half of the last inning, four of them unearned. Each team used four pitchers.

Morgan, who drove in four runs, was the most effective of the visiting batters, but Berry, Red Sox catcher, was the heaviest hitter, with two singles, a double and a home run to his credit.

148th Derby Awaited in England

Million May See Historic Race Today; Rain Forecast.

Cameronion Remains 4-1 Choice; Royalty Will Attend.

By TOM WILHELM.

EPSON, England, June 2 (A.P.).—Their training work finished, 27 bundles of precious horseflesh were bedded down tonight, awaiting the bugle sending them off tomorrow in the 148th renewal of England's historic Derby with the king, queen, princes and commoners looking on.

As post time approached, J. A. Dewar's Cameronian held the position of the favorite at 4-to-1 odds with the Aga Khan's Pomme Djapi and A. F. Bassett's Dr. Dolittle co-second choices at 10 to 1. Sir John Rutherford's Orpen was held at 12 to 1, with the American contingent of Marshall Field's Jacopo and William Woodward's Sir Andrew quoted at the respective odds of 20 to 1 and 25 to 1.

The weather forecast is unfavorable, but the sun shone spasmodically this afternoon, and if the rain holds off, the mile and one-half course will be in fair condition by post time, 3 p. m. (9 a. m. Eastern standard time). The Derby is run uphill the first mile, down hill the next quarter and finishes on a slight upgrade.

Royal Family to See Race.

Scratches, because the thoroughbreds failed to round into form, cut the original nominations of 404 to the present field. The rigors of training played no favorites, for Ashbridge, King George's entry, fell by the wayside with the hopes of lords and commoners.

The failure of Ashbridge to get into condition deprived his majesty of a chance for a double celebration, for tomorrow is his sixty-sixth birthday. Weather permitting, he expects to see the Derby again this year as last with Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales and Prince George.

Interest in the race, traditionally great, is greater this year because of the world-wide focus of the gigantic sweepstakes. The Irish Sweepstakes alone will distribute close to $10,000,000, while the Calcutta Sweepstakes and smaller organizations will boost the total to above the $15,000,000 mark.

The vanguard of the expected crowd of 750,000 to 1,000,000 moved in on

Grimes Is Card Hero As Giants Bow, 4 to 3

St. Louis, Mo., June 2 (A.P.).—Burleigh Grimes' single, scoring Chick Hafey in the eighth inning, broke a deadlock and gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 4 to 3 victory over the New York Giants in the first game of the series today.

The victory was Grimes' seventh of the year and increased the champions' lead over the Giants to 2½ games. It was also the second time this year that Grimes has gained a decision over Fred Fitzsimmons, who went the route on the mound for the Giants.

Three Brown Hurlers Pounded by Yankees

New York, June 2 (A.P.).—Aided by a four-run rally in the sixth inning, the Yankees walloped the St. Louis Browns 9 to 2 today in the opening game of their stand against the Western clubs.

Southpaw Vernon Gomes pitched a nice game for his second successive victory. He gave the Browns nine hits, four of which went to Melillo, who collected a triple, a double and two singles.

The Yanks hit three St. Louis pitchers for twelve hits, seven of them for extra bases. Bill Dickey led with a homer and two singles.

Hurler Peffer Is Hero As Hyattsville Wins

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, June 2.—Pitcher Francis Peffer was the whole show as his Hyattsville High Team today defeated Towson High in the first round of the Maryland State scholastic championship tournament. Hyattsville won, 2 to 1, with Peffer not only holding his opponents to two hits but doubling home the winning run.

All of the scoring was done in the seventh. For Hyattsville, Glasgow was safe on an error, with one out; scored on Byrd's double, and Peffer then came through with another two-bagger to drive home what proved to be the winning tally. In the lower half Towson managed to get one of these runs back. Both of its hits came in this session. Carter led off with one, took second on Peffer's balk, and scored on Bayne's single. Then Peffer put on the brakes and simply coasted home to victory.

Score by innings:

H. S. Pope Shoots 87 In Senior Golf Event

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 2.—Cooper R. Drewry, of Rolling Road Golf Club, celebrated his fiftieth birthday by winning the senior golf championship today under auspices of the Maryland State Golf Association at the Suburban Club. He shot an 82. Richard Mommers, one of his club mates, was runner-up with an 84 and his handicap of 13 also gave him a low net of 71, for which he was ineligible because the tournament limited a player to only one prize.

John F. Davies, also from Rolling Road, with a 73, therefore was awarded the first low net prize.

H. S. Pope, Indian Spring, was the only player from Washington to compete. His gross was 87, his handicap 7 and his net 80.

Grunt and Grimace of Mat Would Aid Ring in Search For Bigger Gate Receipts

NEW YORK, June 2.—The wrestling industry will now enjoy a summer lay-off after a prosperous indoor season, during which the boys demonstrated again that at one word from the press the public will do just as it pleases. Even though the newspapers invariably covered the so-called championship matches of the various so-called champions and their business partners in a broadly facetious tone, and even though Jim Londos, one of these champions, confessed he always endeavored to give the customers a modicum of drama along with their sport, the wrestling business outprospered the prize fighting industry by a good margin in New York.

In the end, no apparent harm was done, as Mr. Jack Curley's weekly entertainments soon developed into a kind of young and old boys' Wednesday night off-the-street club.

The current popularity of wrestling is one of the amusing puzzles of the sport industry in the United States. For many years the game has been without friends, so forsaken that newspapers which would hesitate to denounce poison ivy were not afraid to express themselves on the subject.

Mr. Jerome Beatty, an old former newspaperman himself, tells me of an incident illustrative of this. Mr. Beatty was working in a newspaper office which was so full of sacred cows that it was as much as a reporter's job was worth to mention the name of the guest of honor at a routine hanging lest the party turn out to be a friend of the management.

Reporter Must Know His "Don'ts."

But one day he took a small item over the phone about a brakeman's having been injured in a switching accident in the local railroad yards, wrote about 50 words on the mishap and turned it in to the desk. A few minutes later there was a commotion at the desk, and Mr. Beatty was summoned to face a city editor who sat waving the copy and spluttering excitedly.

"Have you gone crazy, Mr. Beatty?" the city editor demanded. "Don't you know that our respected owner and publisher is a stockholder in this railroad? Do you want to get fired and get us all fired, writing a story like this?"

"I am very sorry," Mr. Beatty said, "and I suggest that you post a list on the bulletin board of the persons and firms who are not to be mentioned in the columns of our great, free and fearless journal, except in complimentary terms."

"That would be the long way around," said the city editor. "Just remember always this paper takes a firm uncompromising stand on Chinamen and wrestlers, and nothing else."

I am inclined to believe that the

Connolly Named Chief Of American League's Umpires by Harridge

CHICAGO, June 2.—Within less than a week of his elevation to the American League presidency, William Harridge today acted to halt complaints on umpiring by appointing Thomas H. Connolly chief of staff of the arbiters.

Connolly, dean of the league's umpires, will assume his new duties after officiating in a game at Boston June 17. He will make his headquarters here and will act as supervisor of umpires. He also will scout the minor leagues for umpiring material and act in an advisory capacity to President Harridge regarding playing rules.

At the meeting of American League club owners at Cleveland last Wednesday, when Harridge was elected president, many complaints of poor umpiring this season were made. Almost every club owner and manager complained and Harridge promised to take action.

Like Harridge, Connolly never played a game of baseball in his life. Born in England in 1870, his earlier sport hobby was cricket. Then he appointed himself bat boy at the age of 15 for a baseball team at Natick, Mass. He managed the team later and then became an umpire. He officiated in the New England League early in the nineties and joined the National League in 1898. In 1901 he joined the American League. He has officiated in eight world series.

Pimlico Eliminates $10,000 Cup Race

Baltimore, Md., June 2 (A.P.).—The $10,000 Pimlico Cup Handicap has been eliminated from the schedule of events for the fall meeting at Pimlico, the Maryland Jockey Club, operator of the track, announced today.

Elimination of the stake, one of the richest of the fall meeting since its inception in 1919, was a continuation of the economy policy started with the spring meeting.

The value of another stake, the Baltimore Handicap, an all age event, was increased from $3,500 to $5,000. The club set aside $218,200 for stakes, overnight awards, cups and trainers awards during the fall meet which opens Monday, November 2.

LISKA SENT HOME FOR MONTH

Hurler to Try Rest Cure; Burke Faces Tigers Today.

AS was predicted in yesterday's Post, Pitcher Adolph Liska, Nat rookie underhanded pitcher, has been placed in voluntary retirement by the Nationals and leaves for his home today planning to give his injured salary arm a month's rest and then to attempt a comeback.

This action was decided upon at a conference between Liska and Owner Clark Griffith prior to yesterday's game after the club physician had advised Griffith that an X-ray photograph had failed to show any bone injury. As Liska has tried everything else, the rest treatment has been decided upon.

"My arm has felt good some days but mighty sore on others," said Liska, "and I'm sure that rest is my only hope as a cure. There is no use in me trying to recover by working, either here or anywhere else, and it was my suggestion that Mr. Griffith put me on a nonpay status and let me go home and give my arm the rest that I'm sure it needs.

"You know my arm is my livelihood and I'd rather lose a month or two, or even a whole season, than to possibly ruin it for life by aggravating it by trying to work when rest is what it needs. I'm confident that I'll be back here and pitching winning ball before very long."

And it certainly is hoped that this will be the case, for Liska can win when right and, besides, he is a clean-cut, likable young fellow who is a credit to his profession.

Robins Rally in Ninth To Down Cubs, 7 to 6

Chicago, June 2 (A.P.).—The Cubs almost won a ball game when they drove Babe Phelps from the mound in the eighth inning and scored two runs to break a tie today. But the Brooklyn Robins came back at Jakie May in the ninth and put over three tallies to win the series opener, 7 to 6.

The Cubs twice tied the score in the early innings and took the lead for the first time in the eighth. Then May, who had relieved Pat Malone, walked Bressler. Johnny Frederick singled and Wally Gilbert hammered a triple into deep left, bringing both in. Gilbert scored the winning run on Herman's fly. Pea Ridge Day, who replaced Phelps, was credited with the victory.

TREASURY TEAM WINS INTER-DEPARTMENTAL GOLF

Miller Takes Low Gross Honors

Lynch Is Second With Vogel and Pass in Tie for Third.

Interstate Tops Field in Class B at Indian Spring.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE trophy donated by Secretary Mellon as a prize to the team of four golfers with the lowest gross score in a 36-hole medal play tournament, which was won last year by the team of the Treasury Department, will remain with that department another year. In the annual tournament of the Interdepartmental Golf League, played last Monday and yesterday on the course of the Indian Spring Club, the Treasury team repeated its victory.

The personnel of the team, which consisted of John R. Miller, J. J. Lynch, W. B. Vogel and J. F. Phelan, was the same as last year except that Miller played in the place of E. B. Wagner.

Under ideal weather conditions the scoring was much lower yesterday than on Monday, when a drenching rainstorm was a serious handicap. Miller, the leader of the Treasury team and a well-known member of the Beaver Dam Club, won the low gross prize with a card of 85—82—167, one stroke lower than the score of his fellow Treasury employe, J. J. Lynch, who last Monday had 82—86 for a total of 168. Vogel, another member of the Treasury team, tied for third low gross with Leo F. Pass, of the Veterans' Bureau, each with 169. The Victory Trophy, awarded to the low net for team play in class A, was won by the Agriculture Department, with a net of 632. The players on this team were L. T. Hopkins, J. E. Voll, S. R. Speelman and William H. White.

Treasury Wins Low Net.

The low gross team trophy in class B was won by M. L. Brownell, R. K. White, R. R. Shay and M. C. Trowbridge, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, with a total of 774, the low net in this class being awarded to the Treasury team, composed of E. H. Campbell, R. Lewis, B. E. Benton and H. L. Jones. In class C the low gross team trophy was won by the Navy Department representatives, L. M. Flaherty, J. W. Medley, R. F. Lynch and Ray Esher, while the low net winners were W. H. Young, O. Steanson, F. J. Hopkins and E. W. McComas, from the Department of Agriculture.

At a late hour last night the committee of the league was still figuring on a host of other winners—first, second and third low gross and first, second and third low net in all three classes, as well as high gross for 36 holes, gross and low net for 18 holes and two low gross and two low net prizes for scores made during the rainstorm last Monday. It is expected that the computation of the cards for these prizes, which last night called into requisition a company of Treasury Department expert accountants, will be completed today.

JULIUS CAESAR received the title of "Father of His Country," he was made dictator, he was a famous Roman general, orator and statesman. He received the title of "praefectus morum," bestowed upon himself the title of imperator, served as consul for ten years and was dictator four times, but he was never Emperor of Rome.

The proof is self-evident. The Empire of Rome was not founded until 27 B. C., seventeen years after the death of Julius Caesar. During his time, and for years before, Rome was a republic. Augustus was the first emperor.

It is possible that Julius Caesar would have been emperor if he had not met his death at the hands of Brutus and the conspirators.

When he was assassinated, March 15, 44 B. C., he never exclaimed "Et tu, Brute." Suetonius says that Caesar drew a deep sigh, but did not utter a word.

Miller's Homer Wins For Athletics, 3 to 2

Philadelphia, June 2 (A.P.).—Bing Miller's fourth home run of the season, with one on base, in the sixth inning, enabled Philadelphia to start their home stand against the Western foe with a 3-to-2 triumph over the Chicago White Sox today.

The circuit blow also gave Rube Walberg his eighth win of the season and seventh in succession. Walberg, tapped for three hits and two runs in the first inning, held the Pale Hose the rest of the way to one more hit, a scratch single by Lou Blue in the sixth.

—Washington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

WASHINGTON PARK RACE TRACK, Chicago, June 2.—Two overnight events will serve as the main attractions on the program at Washington Park tomorrow. The races are well filled and some interesting sport should result. In the Kensington Purse, over the mile-and-70-yard route, a select group of five 3-year-old upward routers will match strides in the feature to be run as the fifth event. The cofeature, named the South Shore, and fourth on the card, received a list of nine sprinters.

In the feature E. F. Prichard's smart distance runner, TANNERY, with 111 pounds, figures to annex the overnight purse. The son of Ballot turned in a brilliant performance in capturing the Washington Park Handicap on opening day and following this ran a smart second to Jean Lafitte at nine furlongs. Offering the opposition, MIKE HALL, the R. M. Eastman campaigner, should force the pace, with Mrs. J. N. Crofton's UP as the show selection.

STOCK MARKET, owned by J. W. Parrish, appears to have a slight edge over his eight rivals in the supporting event. His third to Tannery and Don Leon in the opening day handicap places the Parish color bearer as the logical choice. AGINCOURT, winner of his last start at the Downs, will favor the soft footing and rates the place call. CHIMNEY SWEEP, fleet Whitneyite, has displayed keen speed in recent efforts and should get into the money.

FIRST RACE—PRINCESS SWEEP, in the W. Johnson string, has shown the most consistent form of these nonwinners and appears ready to graduate. DIS DAT, a highly regarded juvenile from the French Licks Springs Stable, has displayed improvement in recent starts and is selected to finish in the runner-up position.

SECOND RACE—This is a very open race, and several possibilities are among the list. WILLA is given the call on his recent clever victory, but will receive stern competition from FIDDLER and NIFTY for top honors. ELLICE has shown speed at this distance and BROAD MEADOWS is another fleet sprinter which will battle it out.

THIRD RACE—TELLICO, from the Van Meter and Carruthers establishment, has raced with the leading juveniles and turned in some fair efforts. The Chilowee colt should lead this band of youngsters from flag fall to finish. MARCASITE showed spendid form in Maryland and is given the place call, with SIXTH RACE—The Rose Home Stable's Racketeer turned in a clever victory in his last outing and displayed keen speed over a good track against similar company. DARK SEA scored in the mud, but figures to force the pace.

SEVENTH RACE—BLACK BELT has trained exceptionally well and should annex the purse in the concluding number. CHUM showed speed in his last winning effort, and, if repeated here, will prove troublesome. PETER PETER has been a trailer in his previous effort, but is capable of a better showing and is given the show call on his best form.

PARK VIEW SCHOOL SCORES IN PLAYGROUND MEET

E. V. Brown Wins Relay Feature

No Records Broken as Big Meet Is Run-Off in 3 Hours.

Pierce Beats Berkley in Thrilling Dash; 600 Compete.

PARK VIEW SCHOOL captured its first elementary school field and track meet yesterday when it triumphed over one of the largest number of schools ever to compete in the finals of the Municipal Playground games for grade school youngsters. Despite the fact that competition was keen from the opening gun to the final no records were broken. More than 1,400 boys took part and the playground officials who conducted the meet did so in the record time of three hours.

E. V. Brown took second place, and Monroe, frequent winner in past years, took third, although now it has but six grades. The points were divided as follows: Park View, 43½; E. V. Brown, 33; Monroe, 25; Maury, 21; Langdon, 17 Peabody, 11½; Pierce, 11; Wheatley, 10; Lenox, 9; Tyler, 5; Janney, 3; Keane, 3; Brookland, 3; Woodridge, 2; Kingsman, 1.

New Tehe Event Success.

The tehe event was introduced in the elementary school meet for the first time this year and it was a distinct success. All marks set yesterday will stand as records until bettered in future years. Langdon's 115-pound team in this event equaled the time of the unlimited of 124-5 seconds.

The spectators were treated to one of the best races of the day in the 85-pound class 360-yard relay. The E. V. Brown four, composed of Berkley, Pierce, Higgins and Willis, barely nosed out the fast-stepping Monroe quartet. eBrley, of E. V. Brown, finished in Paddock fashion to capture the race for his school.

Berkley also figured in a stirring duel with a schoolmate in the 85-pound 50-yard dash. C. Pierce, of Brown, and the former staged a neck-and-neck battle down to the finish line, but Pierce had a little more left in the final yard and lunged over the line the winner.

70-POUND CLASS.

50-YARD DASH—Won by D. Walker (Peabody-Hilton-Carbery); second, J. Levin (Monroe); third, R. Roudabush (Brown). Time, 7 seconds.

College Crew Races Await Calm This Year

New York, June 2 (A.P.).—Unless wind and water conditions are nearly perfect the evening of June 16, the four-mile varsity race in the annual Poughkeepsie Regatta will be postponed, the Intercollegiate Rowing Association today notified the coaches of the nine crews entered in the race.

This year, if the water is as rough as it has been for the past two regattas, the races will be postponed until the following day, June 17.

In 1929 four crews swamped and last year Navy went down before the finish was reached.

It was also reported authoritatively today that the regatta will not follow the I. C. A. A. A. A. track and field meet to the Pacific Coast in 1932 as a part of the Olympic celebration. There is considerable opposition among crew coaches, however, to the holding of the Olympic crew tryouts again on the Schuylkill River at Philadelphia because of the narrowness of the course. It is pointed out that the Olympic tests, like all major races on this course, would have to be rowed in heats under conditions coaches do not consider equitable.

Women players at the Woodmont Club yesterday played a qualifying round for eligibility to compete in the women's annual handicap championship tournament. Mrs. Jerome Meyer won the medal with 103, one stroke ahead of Mrs. Gilbert Hahn's 104. The pairings for the first round of match play today, with the handicaps, are as follows: Mrs. Gilbert Hahn, 26, vs. Miss Sylvia Sherby, 34; Mrs. Silvan Bensinger, 34, vs. Mrs. Jack Shulman, 23; Mrs. Theodore Peyser, 24, vs. Mrs. E. B. Nordlinger, 33; Mrs. David Simon, 34, vs. Mrs. Jerome Meyer, 22. Second flight (nine holes)—Mrs. Joseph D. Kaufman, 16, vs. bye; Miss Carlyn, 16, vs. Mrs. D. A. Baer, 16; Mrs. David Gross, 15, vs. Mrs. Philip Keyser, 16; Mrs. A. J. Stephens, 16, vs. Mrs. Henry Kaufman, 20.

The club championship of the Chevy Chase Club, scheduled to begin yesterday, has been postponed until June 22-25, inclusive, in order to allow the junior members of the club an opportunity to play. Competition will be 72 holes medal play, 18 holes each day.

HOSE NINE WINS IN 14TH.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 2.—In the longest game staged here in recent years, Hose Company No. 5, of this city, won from the Belmont Athletic Club, of Harrisburg, Pa., after 14 innings of battling, by the score of 3 to 2. The locals tallied the winning run when Bob Dailey, son of Mayor C. H. Dailey and a star all-around athlete at Shepherd College, walked, stole second, and scored on Hill's sharp drive to left.

ERROR COSTS D. C. WOMAN MEDAL TIE

Miss Williams Forced to Take Second in Md. State Golf.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 2.—Mrs. W. Fairfield Peterson, of the Green Spring Valley Hunt Club, with a consistent 46—46—92, led the record field of qualifiers in the women's State golf championship at the Rolling Road Golf Club today.

An error in the posting of the score of Virginia Williams, entrant from the Congressional Country Club in Washington, prevented a tie for the medal.

After the score, 93, had been written on the official sheet, she discovered she had been given one stroke too much on the thirteenth, a six instead of a five. It was against the rule to change it after it had been tallied.

Miss Meckley Finishes Third.

Third in line was Mrs. Betty Meckley, Indian Spring, the 1931 champion of the District of Columbia, with 94.

The driving contest, which took place after the qualifying battle was over, was won by the long-driving Elizabeth Janney, Green Spring Valley, with 225 yards 2 feet 4 inches.

Mrs. Peterson's and Miss Williams' cards follow:

Qualifying scores, pairings and starting times tomorrow follow:

Quigley (C.) defeated Nyhoff, 1 up; Duvall (C.) defeated Faniul, 1 up; Finn (G. P.) defeated Graves, 1 up; Kneibley (C.) defeated Zubrod, 4 and 2; Duncan (C.) defeated Donohue, 2 up; Cary (G. P.) defeated Ruckman, 2 up.

U. S. Amateur Boxers Face Italians Tonight

New York, June 2 (U.P.).—Amateur boxing champions of Italy and the United States will meet tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden in what promises to be one of the most bitterly contested international bout series ever held. A former series between the two teams resulted in a draw, each team winning four matches, and Italy challenged for a return series of seven bouts to decide supremacy. The light-heavyweight match was omitted to avoid the possibility of another tie.

The National Amateur Athletic Union has strengthened the American team by the addition of several stars who did not compete in the previous series and hope to defeat Italy's 1928 Olympic champions.

Stanford Withdraws From College Meet

Chicago, June 2 (U.P.).—Southern California's victory in the National Collegiate Athletic Association track and field meet at Stagg Field Friday and Saturday virtually was made certain today when Stanford withdrew most of its stars.

Southern California nosed out Stanford in the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet at Philadelphia last week, 48 6-7 points to 44 22-35, and these two Western rivals had been expected to stage another close struggle for the national title.

Impending examinations forced most of the Stanford athletes to return to Palo Alto, it was announced. Only a couple of the senior members of the team remained here.

Rose Miller to Seek A. A. U. Track Records

Crystal Springs, Miss., June 2 (A.P.).—Rose Miller, Mississippi's outstanding girl athlete, has registered with the Amateur Athletic Union and will go after new records in coming meets at New Orleans and Dallas and next year's national in Chicago.

Only a few weeks ago, the girl, excelling in basket ball, donned running garb and track shoes and whirled off the competitive 50 yards in 6 second flat, 1-5 of a second under the old record; ran 75 yards in 9½ seconds and broadjumped 16 feet 8 inches.

The next week she equalled her dash time and added two inches to the broad jump. A week later in the Mississippi Southwest regional meet, she ran thre heats and three finals, including the anchor lap in relay in addition to the broad jump, all within two hours.

Alexandria Sports

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., June 2.—Plans for purchase of land to add nine more holes to the Belle Haven Country Club will be discussed at a meeting of the committee appointed by Judge William S. Snow, president of the club, on Wednesday night.

The Belle Haven Club now has nine holes and plans of the committee are to enlarge the course to the regulation eighteen-hole size. The special committee appointed is made up of C. T. Nicholson, Charles Hollins, T. E. Sebrell, Carl Budwesky and Arthur Herbert.

Judge Snow stated that on Wednesday night the membership of the club will elect five new directors and they, in turn, will elect the new officers of the club for the ensuing year. This is one of the most important meetings of the Belle Haven Club.

It was also announced that excavation work has started on the south approach. It is planned to erect the new golf shop and to make a big addition to the locker room of the club. This work is being speedily pushed.

Under the leadership of Judge Snow the club has made rapid strides in the past twelve months. The links are in great condition and numerous tournaments are being played by the club members. The Belle Haven Club is also leading in the Tri-State Association tournament.

Gov. Ritchie Gives Trophy For "Graw" Yacht Regatta

Maryland Governor Donates One of Prizes for June 19-20 Races; Event to Attract Entries From Entire Eastern Section.

Special to The Washington Post.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., June 2. Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, has offered a trophy to the Havre de Grace Yacht Club in connection with its second annual regatta to be staged here June 19 and 20, it was announced by Commodore F. A. Hoffman. Alfred I. duPont, of Wilmington, has sent word to local yachtsmen that he will give a perpetual trophy, which must be won three times by the same person to be retained by the winner.

Robert M. Vandiver, of this city, will also provide a trophy for the winner of the Susquehanna bush-whack rowing race. There will be one man to a boat which must be the regulation 17-foot craft or over. This trophy must also be won three times for permanent possession by the winner. An impressive number of well-known oarsmen from Harford and other nearby counties, as well as from a number of watering places in the East, will enter this event, it is announced by the regatta committee.

Competition Keen for Hoffman Trophy.

The Commodore Hoffman trophy, won last year by former United States Marshal Frank Matthews, in the 200-horsepower runabout class, will again be coveted this season, since it must be won three times for permanent possession. Keen competition is anticipated for this cup. The trophy display will exceed last year's array of prizes and a number of them are now on display here.

The Maryland Yacht Club fleet will spend the night of August 3 here in connection with its annual Chesapeake Bay cruise, Commodore Hoffman has been informed. It will be the second day of the outing and the following day the fleet will proceed to Worton Creek in Kent County, and from there to Queenstown and Tilghmans Island.

Other yacht club fleets will be met at that point and the entire array of boats will proceed to the annual regatta of the Miles River Yacht Club at St. Michaels. Yachts of the local club have been invited to join the cruise of Baltimore sportsmen and many of them, it is believed, will be seen with the Baltimore fleet.

The 50-mile cruiser race, a handicap affair, will start at the Maryland Yacht Club anchorage near Baltimore and will finish here at 1 o'clock, June 19. It will open the local regatta. There will be three cash prizes for professional drivers, in the outboard unlimited class, the first heat of which will be run June 19.

Fishburne Cadet Nine Retains Prep Honors

Special to The Washington Post.

Waynesboro, Va., June 2.—With a record of eleven games won, one lost and one tied, Fishburne Military School can again lay claim to the Virginia Prep School baseball championship.

Fishburne, who ran away with the title last year also, won its games this year by substantial margins. Its batters converted 151 hits into 155 runs, an average of approximately 12 tallies per game. Fishburne's opponents managed to score 54 runs on 111 hits.

Glover led the batamen of Fishburne with an average of .396. Short, regarded by many as the best prep school catcher in the State, hit for a count of .667 before breaking a leg in the third game of the season. The team as a whole hit for .314, with fifteen home runs and fourteen triples.

Fishburne's diamond outfit was again coached by Phil Brooks, second baseman on the mythical all-time Virginia Tech team.

KOONTZ NEEDS CATCHERS.

The Koontz Service Station team in the senior class of the Capital City League needs a catcher. Manager Rickert at Lincoln 0696 is particularly anxious to get in touch with Barney Fugitt.

Central Team Defeats G. U. Prep Golfers, 5-4

Central High's golf team defeated the heretofore undefeated Georgetown Prep outfit yesterday by the score of 5 to 4 on the course of the losing team.

The first foursome for Central lost the best ball, 1 down, but the second and third foursomes halved the best ball. For Central the victory added one more peg to a win column made up of Washington-Lee, Tech, Western and Swavely.

The Blue and White golfers will meet Western again on Saturday to decide the high school championship and permanent possession of the former Vice President Dawes Cup.

this quaint little village early this morning. By trains, special buses, bicycles and "Shanks mare," from every section of the world they thronged the highways leading to the picturesque course. Numerous organizations transported blind veterans of the World War to the track, each group having interpreters to describe the classic's progress.

The scratching of Linkboy early today left Steve Donoghue, England's veteran jockey, without a mount. There is a chance, however, that he will ride Cherry Lad, a 100 to 1 shot.

"King Alfonso" Winner Of $500 in Sweepstakes

Dublin, Irish Free State, June 2 (A.P.).—A number of Americans today were included in those who won consolation prizes of $500 and $150 in the final draw in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes on the Derby.

Those watching the picking of the lucky tickets were surprised when the announcer called the name of one of the winners of $500 as "King Alfonso, Villa Veranda, Agorta Vizcaya, Spain." He continued with the next number without saying whether the winner actually was the former Spanish king or whether it was a practical joke.

unable to finish the game, he did not pitch bad ball and Manager Walter Johnson is confident that he will give the Jungle Cats plenty of trouble. Vic Sorrell will do the alien flinging.

Eddie Ainsmith, one of several catchers whom Manager Johnson wore out during his halcyon days as a pitcher, is being considered for a scouting position for the Nationals. Ainsmith was through as a player here in 1919, but spent five more years in the majors at Detroit and St. Louis before dropping to the minors. Because of his long experience as a player, Ainsmith should be a good judge of talent.

Joe Engel is still listed as Washington scout, but he is so wrapped up in his other job as president of the Chattanooga Lookouts that he has little time to do any ivory hunting for the Nationals, and the services of a fellow like Ainsmith are badly needed.

Judge and Marberry in Uniform.

Both First Baseman Joe Judge and Pitcher Fred Marberry, Nat casuals, were out in uniform yesterday for the first time since their lay-offs. Judge was not particularly spry, but Marberry gave evidences of being ready to start a game within the week.

Manager Walter Johnson, competing with Coach Al Schacht for the right to be known as the best-dressed Nat since Art (The Great) Shires left, has bought himself a new outfit—black and white sport shoes, white flannel pants and a nobby blue coat. As a special added attraction, he promises to bedeck himself in this fine and becoming raiment Friday as part of the celebration of the first Nat "ladies' day" of the season.

Fair fans can not afford to miss this treat but will do so unless they reach the stadium early as the Nat leader generally reports at about 1 o'clock.

With Whitehill pitching yesterday, Manager Johnson shuffled his line-up like a pack of cards. Dave Harris replaced Sam Rice in right and hit in the clean-up position, with Cronin and Manush being advanced a notch. All of the others were moved about so as to alternate right-handed and southpaw batters, except at the top and bottom of the heap.

Manush, Hit by Foul, Follows With Single.

While at bat in the first inning, a foul from his bat hit the ground, took a high bound, and hit Heinie Manush on the side of the head. This so peeved the big outfielder that he immediately proceeded to single to center.

Fischer contended that one of Whitehill's shoots grazed his arm in the fourth and calmly trotted down to first, filling the sacks with none dead. Umpire Ormsby saw things otherwise and, despite long and loud protests from Manager Johnson, called the Nat pitcher back to the swinging block.

Second-baseman Charley Gehringer and First-Sacker Dale Alexander, Tiger stars, are home nursing injuries and did not accompany the team East. Gehringer may be lost for weeks, but Alexander is expected to rejoin the team before this trip ends.

HIGHLAND A. C. GAMELESS.

The newly organized Highland A. C. is seeking a game for Sunday with a senior team having a diamond. Call Dutch Stewart at Clarendon 359-W-1 after 5:30 o'clock.

The Highlanders boast of such sandlot figures as Paxton, Koontz and Stewart, formerly of the O'Briens and Langleys; F. Stewart, of the old Meridians; Cook, of the Crescents, and Davis, Newman, Harris, Thorpe and Mortimer.

RING SHOULD TRY MAT TRICKS

Grunt and Grimace of Wrestling Would Help Receipts.

introduction of sound effects into wrestling during the recent season had much to do with the revival of popularity and prosperity. The boys always were pretty garrulous in the clinches, talking over their family affairs, their investments and their vacation plans in low, confidential murmurs, but in the past they tried to maintain a mistaken stoicism during the application of the punishing holds.

Wrestlers Take Voice Tests.

However, Mr. Curley took the members of his herd to some good conservatory of the drama, told them to pass a voice test and then learn to utter a repertoire of bird calls and wild animal cries.

The acoustics of Madison Square Garden were an item of singular pride with the late Tex Rickard, who often boasted they were the best acoustics that money could buy, and with a little experience some of Mr. Curley's wrestlers became so artistic that a small whinny or duck-squawk loosed upon the acoustics in the ring became a resounding cry of agony as it soared toward the galleries.

Old Mr. Muldoon, the prize-fight commissioner, being a former wrestler, looked upon these bouts with a cold, cynical eye and refused to let Mr. Curley advertise them as contests, holding them to be more histrionic exhibitions, but the customers were no more willing that Mr. Muldoon should save them from their folly than the newspapers should, he being another of those pathetic altruists who have tried to make the public think.

It is probable that if the prize fighters should add the talkie element to their entertainments they would enjoy much better business. They belittle their punishment, and the customers naturally conclude that the hardest punches do not hurt, and they, therefore, go away dissatisfied and often neglect to come back.

Moaning Fighters Would Gain.

I imagine, though, that if during the recent featherweight championship waltz between Bat Battalino and Fidel LaBarba, the boys had moaned and screamed to the rafters at each vicious jab on the elbow the patrons might have created for themselves a pleasant illusion that they were witnessing something very like a slaughter.

When a pugilist is hit on the chin and assumes a smile of apparent delight he does not deceive his opponent, who always knows how much weight the punch carried and whether or not it landed flush. But he does create an impression on the customers which is not exactly helpful to the business. The customers are easily deceived, and the punch that provokes a wide grin is discounted as something of no importance, whereas, if the fighter were to yell, "Ow! You're killing me," he would create the opposite illusion.

Similarly, when a pugilist speaks on the radio, it is no boost to the business when he exclaims, as he usually does, "hullo, mommo, hullo, poppa, Milton and Little Gloria, I win easy."

I suggest that they moan triumphantly, "I win, but I'll never be the same."

Mr. Curley hit upon an idea so obvious that both the fighters and wrestlers overlooked it before, the notion being that the patrons do not pay their funds to see the gladiators have a good time.

MAC SMITH WINS BRITISH GOLF MEDAL

to get within the qualifying limit. Horton Smith had a chance to break Mac Smith's record 71 with a couple of fours on the last two holes, but he played both carelessly for fives.

Armour barely missed adding a couple of strokes to his score at the sixteenth hole where he arched a ball out of a bunker. It seemed about to drop on the head of his caddie who was holding the flag and the youngster ran, leaving the flag in the hole.

"You can't do that," Tommy told him. "If you must run, take the flag with you. It would cost me two strokes had the ball hit the pin."

It was all said without heat as it was meant as a future guide. Tommy wasn't bothering by that time about qualifying, feeling he was safe enough as he was.

STOCK PRICES CLOSE LOWER AFTER RALLY

Several Important Issues Return Small Gains;; Steel Drops Again.

New York, June 2 (A.P.).—Although stocks closed lower again today, the market looked much less bedraggled than after the heavy selling on Monday. Net losses in pivotal stocks were moderate, and a number of important issues returned small gains. There were, however, rather wide declines in specialties.

Sentiment was bolstered by two rallies. After a weak opening the market ran into a stream of short covering that lifted quotations 1 to 4 points net, all groups participating in the recovery. By noon the gains were being shaded and by early afternoon they had been more than lost. However, another rally appeared in the fourth hour and a subsequent reaction from that improvement was confined largely to special issues, notably the coppers. Sales totaled 3,300,000 shares, 200,000 larger than yesterday's turnover.

United States Steel traveled a 3-point range. After losing a point at the opening it rallied to 83¼, only to drop to the new low of 82¾ during the afternoon. The closing quotation was 83¾, off 1⅞. American Telephone led an outburst of selling in the utilities coincident with publication of Gov. Pinchot's speech at French Lick, but the 3-point loss was cut to a point. Recessions in the rails tended to flatten out. New York Central was weak, breaking through the 1922 resistance level to 71½ and closing 1⅝ lower. Losses in Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Erie and Frisco amounted to about a point. Union Pacific and Lackawanna dropped 4 and Delaware & Hudson 6. Several carriers finished higher.

Food Stocks Recover.

Food stocks recovered. Borden, National Dairy and National Biscuit were up a point or more. General Electric, Liggett & Myers B, American Tobacco B, Bethlehem Steel, General Electric and Johns-Manville were firm.

Standard Oil shares sagged, apparently in expectation that the Government would take an appeal in the Socony-Vacuum merger decision. News that no appeal would be made came after the close, an announcement which met with a favorable reception, since it appeared to indicate a more lenient policy in the matter of antitrust law.

There was a feeling in brokerage circles that the Canadian tariff revisions, affecting many American products, had induced some selling, although the extent to which this development influenced the market was difficult to determine. A considerable amount of liquidation is said to be coming from investment trusts which are seeking to establish liquid positions against the end of the first half year. Trusts, generally speaking, have been out of the common stock market on a substantial scale for some time.

Collateral Borrowing Drops.

Collateral borrowings of New York Stock Exchange members dropped $218,444,474 in May, a smaller reduction than was made in the previous month, but considerably larger than the less inclusive Federal Reserve brokers' loan decline. Further evidence of the contraction in credit was offered by the $53,000,000 drop in member bank loans on securities during the past week. That item now stands at less than $7,000,000,000 and is $1,500,000,000 below the total a year ago.

A further reduction in steel operations was reported by American Metal Market, which noted a recession of 2 points to 4 per cent of capacity. The publication looks for a rather sharp seasonal gain after July, which is expected to witness the low of the current downward movement. Freight loadings for the week ended May 23 rose about 8,000 cars, which was encouraging, especially since the rise in the same week of 1930 amounted to only 2,000 cars.

Cotton was weak, setting up another set of new lows and closing 15 to 22 points lower. Wheat was steady to firm, with small net changes, while corn also showed narrow net changes.

Foreign exchanges continued strong. Sterling cables reflected the transfer of funds to London, where interests rates are higher, by making a new 1931 top. The Spanish peseta, however, furnished the feature of the day, rallying three-quarters of a cent. There have been intimations that the government would veto the Bank of Spain's proposal to increase the currency circulation.

BOND PRICES SLUMP IN HEAVY TURNOVER

Day's Sales of $14,103,000 Mark Record; Heavy Losses in Foreigns.

New York, June 2 (A.P.).—The bond market made a general decline today, and the turnover made another increase. Sales on the Stock Exchange totaled $14,103,000, compared with $13,472,000 on Monday.

A number of new low prices for this year were reached, especially among industrial and railroad loans. Average prices for ten representative issues in each of these two groups and the composite average for these 20 bonds and ten utilities made new low records for this year. The industrial, railroad and composite average are all below the bottom levels for 1930 and for 1929. Only the utility average is higher than the low record for the three years, although it eased off a little today also.

The impressive fact about the market's action today was its inclusive nature. Even many of the high-grade and gilt-edge obligations eased off after resisting the downward movement temporarily. American Telephone debenture 5½s and collateral 5s, Atchison general 4s, Buffalo General Electric series B 4½s, Detroit Edison series D 4½s, Louisville & Nashville unified 4s and Oregon, Washington Railroad & Navigation 4s closed with varying losses. As a rule, the losses among such bonds were smaller than among the more speculative issues, but the fact that lower prices were fairly common among them was significant of the character of the market.

Many of the widest losses occurred among foreign bonds. Issues of Colombia, the Colombia mortgage and agricultural banks and of the Province of Buenos Aires made outstanding gains, ranging from 2 to 7½ points. Among the rails strength in the loans of the St. Louis-San Francisco was a feature.

United States Government obligations were quiet until the second half of the session, when activity increased and prices advanced. Closing prices of many of these issues were within slight fractions of the 1931 peak prices. The Treasury 4¼s of 1947-52 reached a new high level, but they reacted to close lower.

BANKERS' BULLETIN TO BE ISSUED TODAY

Artistic Number Contains Data on Convention to Be Held Soon.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Resplendent in red and yellow cover, the June number of The Bulletin, official publication of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, will be distributed to members of the association today. This month's issue takes the place of the "second call," or notification to association membership of the thirteenth annual convention to be held this year at Hot Springs, Va., June 18-21.

T. Hunton Leith, assistant cashier, Security Savings & Commercial Bank, who as vice chairman of the association's publicity committee, edits the magazine, has assembled a thoroughly artistic and interesting number. It contains detailed information regarding the convention and is brightened with many cuts depicting views of The Homestead, convention hotel, and the beautiful country surrounding it.

There are portraits of and messages from President Lanier P. McLachlen of the Bankers Association; Frederick P. H. Siddons, general convention committee chairman and Claude H. Woodward, convention program committee chairman.

Hotel and Other Data.

There is complete information regarding tranportation and hotel arrangements, hotel privileges, recreation, sports and entertainment, the latter including the "family dinner" and a first private preview of a Warner Brothers' motion picture in the hotel theater.

The thirty-eighth annual convention of the Virginia Bankers Association will convene at the New Chamberlin Hotel, Old Point Comfort, Va., June 11, and remain in session through June 13. The purpose of the meeting as set forth by C. W. Beerbower, secretary of the association, is to promote the general welfare and usefulness of banks and banking institutions, secure uniformity of action and proper consideration of questions regarding financial and commercial usages, customs and laws which affect the banking interests of the State.

Better Bankers Urged.

Speakers and their subjects follow: "Profit-Producing Policies," O. Howard Wolfs, cashier, Philadelphia National Bank; "Bink-Bank-Bunk," Thomas B. McAdams, executive manager, State-Planters Bank & Trust Co., Richmond; "Interest on Deposits," J. B. Dey, jr., vice president and cashier, Norfolk National Bank of Commerce & Trust; "We Must Become Better Bankers," John M. Miller, jr., president, First & Merchants National Bank, Richmond; "Bank Research," Thomas C. Boushall, president, Morris Plan Bank of Virginia; "Better Incomes for Banks: Sounder Farm Credits," Hayne McFadden, secretary, Georgia Bankers Association, Atlanta. Deputy Comptroller of the Currency F. G. Awalt will also address the gathering.

"It was the tremendous expansions of the automobile and building industries that pulled the country up by the bootstraps and gave it its impetus for the great productive years following 1921," says the statistical department of Incorporated Investors, one of the larger management investment trusts. "Today the field of electrical appliances, with its constantly lowered energy cost, is one with which to conjure. A great potential field lies here, one of prime importance as one of the factors in reviving general business activity."

Incorporated Investors was founded in 1925 and limits its holdings to about 30 companies. Hobson & Co., Inc. represents this trust locally.

Cuba Defers Payment To New York Bank

Havana, June 2 (A.P.).—President Machado today signed a measure deferring for two years payment on $20,000,000 which the Cuban government owes to the Chase National Bank, New York. Under the agreement with the bank, the chief executive was empowered to delay amortization of the loan, with congressional approval.

Following the footsteps of the senate, the house yesterday granted its authorization by a vote of 77 to 1. Representative Martin Fraiga, sole dissenter on the floor, announced the constitutionality of the house's action would be tested.

Dividend to Be Delayed By Twin City Transit

New York, June 2 (A.P.).—Directors of Twin-City Rapid Transit Co. have voted to defer consideration of dividends on the common stock until December.

The company has been paying common dividends at the rate of $2 per share, payable in secured dividend notes in denominations of $100, $500 and $1,000 bearing interest at 6 per cent, payable semiannually in fractional scrip certificates. The regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred stock was declared.

Auto Taxes Rise 586 Per Cent in Ten Years

New York, June 2 (A.P.).—The annual tax levy on the car owners of the country increased 586 per cent in the ten-year period between 1921 and 1931, T. M. Hentges, vice president of the New York Automobile Club, said today.

Mr. Hentges pointed out that in the same period car registration in the United States increased 183.5 per cent and expenditures on highways of all kinds 50.9 per cent.

Crude Oil Price Cut.

New York, June 2 (A.P.).—The Sinclair Refining Co. announced today that effective as of yesterday it had reduced its crude oil prices in the midcontinent area to meet the cut posted yesterday by Stanolind Purchasing Co., subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana. The new midcontinent prices, which were forecast last week following cuts in purchasing prices in the East Texas field, range from 25 cents a barrel for oil of 29 degrees gravity and below to 37 cents a barrel for oil of 40 degrees gravity and above. The reductions amount to from 17 to 30 cents a barrel.

Curb Review

New York, June 2 (A.P.).—Maintaining the level of activity with which the week opened, the Curb market today experienced a feeble effort to turn the tide, before settling into new low ground for the year.

A brief rally in the morning from new lows established in heavy selling at the outset proved shortlived and the close found all sections of the list with the single exception of utilities showing net losses on the day's movement. Power company shares as a group showed resistance to selling pressure and the more active issues showed fractional changes either way at the close.

The day's turnover amounted to 630,000 shares against 660,000 yesterday.

The petroleum shares again found a one-sided market and dipped further coincident with the news of other companies cutting crude prices in the midcontinent area and the discouraging report showing production increased last week. The expectation that the Government would take its fight against the Vacuum-Standard of New York merger to the Supreme Court accounted for some of the selling in Vacuum which reacted 4¾ to 22⅛ and closed 3½ net lower. After the close the Government announced it would not appeal from the lower court's decision approving the consolidation.

Standard issues were weak. Nebraska sagging 3¾ and Standard of Ohio dropping 2. Standard of Indiana after its drop yesterday was quiet and fairly steady. Cities Service duplicated its ¾ loss of the previous day. Gulf rallied 1¾.

Some of the Investment Trust & Holding Co. shares fared poorly, notably Mayflower, which yielded 6½, and Continental shares convertible preferred, which reacted 1¾. Insull Utilities Investment sold off ⅝ to a new year's low.

After an ineffectual effort to rally in the morning, the main group of utilities turned dull and held in a narrow range. Largest changes, mostly on the downside were among less active issues. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore declined 7, Penn Water and United Gas preferred, 2 each.

Electric Bond & Share common closed steady. Specialities and industrials were heavy with losses ranging as high as a point or more.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, June 2 (A.P.).—Charles R. Gow, president of Warren Brothers Co., paving and highway construction contractors, said new domestic business booked during the year to June 1 amounted to slightly more than 2,750,000 square yards, against slightly less than 1,750,000 square yards for the corresponding period last year. He said this business has been obtained at satisfactory prices, and the percentage of increase in gross revenue is substantially in excess of the percentage of increase in gross yardage.

Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey stockholders have adopted the fourth stock acquisition plan for employes, to take effect January 1, 1932, or such date thereafter as fixed by directors.

A. R. Erskine, president of Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co., said reports that Pierce-Arrow had passed the preferred dividend "are unfortunate and untrue." The second dividend for the current year was paid June 1 and the next meeting is scheduled for the latter part of July. He said net profit for the first four months this year exceeded the dividend requirements for the entire year.

American Ship & Commerce Corporation reported for 1930 net loss of $58,374, compared with net profit of $91,726 in 1929. The net profit for 1929 included $124,312 accrued interest on general mortgage 6 per cent bonds of William Cramp & Sons Ship & Engine Building Co., which was not received. Provision has been made for the probable loss of interest accrued on the principal amount of $2,075,000 of these bonds held by the company.

Directors of American Car & Foundry Co. declared a dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock. Three months ago a dividend of 75 cents a share was paid, prior to which the stock was on a $6 annual basis.

The committee on stock list of the New York Stock Exchange is contemplating a reduction to $500 in the fees to be charged for considering applications by fixed trusts to ascertain whether the trust meets with the exchange's recent requirements for distribution by member firms. Under its original fixed trust regulations, the committee made a charge of $2,500 for each application.

ARLINGTON INDORSES TRAFFIC SURVEY AID

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Indorsement was given to a resolution offered by Robert N. Anderson, delegate from Lyon Village, by the Arlington County Civic Federation at its meeting held last night, that a strong committee should be appointed to appear before the county board of supervisors in an effort to have the county cooperate with the National Capital Park and Planning Commission in the traffic survey being sponsored by the commission.

Mr. Anderson, a delgeate ot the Interfederation Conference pointed out that all sections of Maryland, Alexandria and the State of Virginia have made appropriations for the fund of $40,000 being sought for the project. He stated that the National Capital Park and Planning Commission is appropriating $20,000. Arlington and Fairfax Counties have not yet to come into the movement.

In accordance with the adopted resolution, President Harry A. Fellows appointed Robert N. Anderson, L. C. McNemar and John G. Gall the special committee to appear before the board of supervisors.

Unanimous indorsement was given to two resolutions offered by Hugh J. McGrath, chairman of the special committee which successfully obtained the executive order from President Hoover and the United States Civil Service Commission allowing Federal employes to take part in local politics and run for office, that the secretary write President Hoover and the United States Civil Service Commission expressing the appreciation of the federation in granting to the residents of Arlington County employed by the Federal Government the right to take part in local politics.

Arthur Orr, president of the Arlington County Bicentennial Council, submitted a comprehensive report. It stated that the organization now comprises 104 delegates, which represent 24 different groups and organizations within the county, including the county public schools and county government.

The report points out that the organization is the most comprehensive ever organized in the county.

It is further set forth in the report that the council has adopted the following projects: A beautification contest; awards for the best appearing community, the best appearing home premises, best appearing church premises, school premists and business distrtict will be made.

One of the outstanding projects adopted in the program is the week which will be set aside next year to be known as Arlington County week. During this period a special program will be provided.

The League of Republican Women of Arlington County, meeting last night, completed arrangements for the tea to be given under the auspices of the club this afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Ahalt, Arlington Ridge.

Heading the list of honored guests will be Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, and Mrs. William N. Doak, wife of the Secretary of Labor. Other guests of honor will include Mrs. Virginia White Speel, Mrs. Frank Mondell, president of the League of Republican Women of the District of Columbia, and Mrs. Clara McQuown, past president of the Political Study Club of the District of Columbia.

Virginia Mitchell Simmerman, well-known radio artist of the Washington Gallery of Music, will be heard in a group of songs, with Miss Lovering at the piano.

The executive committee announces the following committee appointments:

Program—Mrs. Wilda McNemar, chairman; Mrs. Clare Tisdale, Mrs. Clarence R. Ahalt and Mrs. Myrtle O. McMahon.

Membership—Mrs. Thomas S. Wallis, chairman; Mrs. Nat Hynes and Mrs. E. Whatacker.

Social—Mrs. J. Foster Hagan, chairman; Mrs. Mary Dudley, Mrs. Gertrude A. Dawson, Mrs. M. G. Ely, Mrs. E. Fay Pumphrey.

Publicity to be handled by the president, Mrs. France W. Harris.

Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, superintendent of public welfare for Arlington County, has been appointed by Gov. John Garland Pollard as a delegate to represent the State of Virginia at the annual session of the National Conference of Social Work, to be held in Minneapolis, June 14 to 20, inclusive.

While the appointment is made by the governor, the General Assembly makes no provision for traveling expenses. Mrs. Jacobs stated that she was undecided whether she will attend the conference.

Tomorrow at 12 o'clock, noon, will be the last opportunity persons wishing to qualify as candidates for the State Senate and the House of Delegates, according to a recent announcement made by William L. Bragg, county Democratic chairman.

Thus far there are but two candidates in the field for the State Senate, Col. Charles T. Jesse, of Arlington County, a former member of the House of Delegates, and John Rust, of Fairfax County. For the House of Delegates, Hugh Reid, incumbent, is the lone candidate.

The primary will be held Tuesday, August 4.

The Parent-Teacher Assocaition, of the Robert E. Lee School, at Leeway, will hold its monthly meeting this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the schoolhouse.

The newly elected officers will be installed by Mrs. Tabor, past president of the aFrent-Teacher Association of the Cherrydale school.

Those to be insalled are Mrs. Herbert Marcey, president; Mrs. Louise Browning, vice president; Mrs. Edward L. Redfield, secretary, and Mrs. Holiday, treasurer.

Church Dinner Set for Saturday.

Saint Francis Xavier Church will hold its annual chicken dinner at Suitland Hall, Suitland, Md., Saturday, from 2:30 p. m. to 8 p. m., followed by entertainment and dancing. The Rev. Joseph Lee Buckley will officiate. Automobiles for those who desire free transportation will be available at Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue and Missouri and Pennsylvania avenues southeast.

NEW MONTGOMERY OFFICIALS NAMED

Clerk and Four Deputies Are Reappointed by County Commissioners.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post.
9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md.
Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Montgomery County's new fiscal year officially started yesterday with appointments of important county officials by the commissioners, meeting in Rockville.

Berry E. Clark, of Rockville, was reappointed clerk to the county commissioners, while Ward W. Caddington was reappointed deputy clerk in the county commissioner's office at Silver Spring; James C. Christopher, for the Bethesda office; Alton C. Bell and Charles Y. Latimer, deputy clerks at Rockville and Mary W. O'Brien assistant deputy. Helen McLaughlin, Lucile Mullineaux and Lola Atwood were appointed clerks in the Rockville office.

W. Ernest Offutt, Rockville real estate man, was appointed supervisor of county aid, an office created at the last session of the legislature. He will represent the county commissioners in relief work and will supervise expenditure of county funds for social work. He will cooperate with the Montgomery County Social Service League.

Frank Proctor, of Silver Spring, architect and builder, was apuointed supervisor of school property, to succeed Dr. George E. Lewis, who has resigned because of ill health.

Lucile Magruder, Minnie G. Wire, Margaret C. Jones, Jean W. Skinner, Ruth E. Mortimer, Doris Garrison, Carter Clagett, Earl U. Stearn, Francis L. Thompson and W. W. Welsh were appointed various positions in the county treasurer's office on recommendation of Treasurer J. Forest Walker.

L. P. Shoemaker and J. W. Bowman, draftsmen; R. E. Horne, instrument man; H. R. Munson, W. M. Mullinix and D. Walters, rodmen, were appointed as additional employes in the county engineer's office on recommendation of Harry Shaw, engineer.

The newly created county disbursement committee authorized at the last session of Legislature, yesterday began to function. Members of the committee are Lacy Shaw, president of the board of county commissioners; J. Forest Walker, county treasurer, and Joseph C. Cissel, counsel to the county commissioners. They will scrutinize and approve all county funds expenditures.

Capt. Cissel, counsel to the commissioners, was directed to take the necessary steps to place an ordinance restricting the keeping of pigeons in the suburban area, which had been advocated by the Montgomery County Civic Federation after several communities had asked for passage of such an ordinance.

The campaign to collect funds for a booklet advertising Montgomery County's advantages, both residential and commercial, has been started by the finance committee of Greater Montgomery County, Inc. George P. Sacks, of Bethesda, is chairman of the finance committee.

Subchairmen in charge of the actual solicitation of funds are: Dr. William A. Shannon, J. Bond Smith, E. H. Jones, F. Barnard Welsh, Frank L. Hewitt, Curtis Walker, J. Harry Welch, B. W. Parker, William I. Cleveland, B. T. Brosius, S. Walter Bogley and Thomas E. Hampton.

A meeting of finance committee subchairmen will be held June 10 at the Bethesda County Building, when they will report on results of their efforts.

Montgomery County's new telephone rates for the suburban area comprising Silver Spring and Bethesda will go into effect June 6, it was announced yesterday by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Maryland.

Under the new arrangement most of the Silver Spring exchange will be transferred to Shepherd, and the Bethesda or Bradley exchange to the Wisconsin exchange. The new service will give local calls without tolls in the entire area as well as Washington. Those who wish to retain purely local service can keep their Silver Spring or Bradley numbers and will be able to call Shepherd and Wisconsin numbers respectively, without toll charges.

The North Woodside Citizens Association will sponsor a flower show in the parish hall of Grace Episcopal Church, Woodside, today. Entries, limited to residents of North Woodside and Montgomery Hills, must be made by 2 o'clock this afternoon. Prizes will be awarded for the best display in each class.

The show will be opened to the general public at 7 p. m. Prof. David Lumsden, of the horticultural division of the Department of Agriculture, will deliver a talk on flowers at 8 o'clock. He also will act as judge. Members of the committee are: Earl A. Brown, chairman, H. K. Hickman, William M. McGinnis, I. C. I. Evans, Mrs. Frank Lutz, Mrs. W. H. Ourand and Mrs. J. G. Pratt.

Annulment of her marriage to Kenneth C. Harris, now a prisoner at the Maryland House of Correction, is asked in a petition filed yesterday in Montgomery County Circuit Court by Mrs. Virginia P. Harris, of Takoma Park, Md.

Mrs. Harris alleges that she met Harris on April 29, 1930, and that his continued urgings and his misrepresentations that he was a person of good standing and could support a wife and that he was a college graduate and had not committed any crime which would tend to bring shame to his family, caused her to agree to marriage. The marriage took place January 26, 1931, at Rockville, Md.

When they started on a wedding trip, she states, he asked to borrow money from her, telling her he would have funds when he returned to repay her. Upon their return, however, he was arrested by Montgomery County police and convicted by Judge A. L. Wilson, of Takoma Park Police Court, on two charges of passing worthless checks and sentenced to serve 24 months in the Maryland House of Correction, the petition states. The wife is represented by the law firm of Peter, Simpson & Oxley, of Rockville.

Alfred L. Geiger and Archie R. Woodwell were reelected members of the Kensington Town Council Monday night at the annual town elections. Elected for a two-year term, they will take the oath of office June 29.

Results of the balloting were: Mr. Geiger, 108 votes; Mr. Woodwell, 99; William F. Walker, 54; Raymond Burgdorf, 40, and Louis Beall, 19.

Judges of election were Eugene C. Raney, Caspar G. Dickson, Wilbur N. Baughman and Welles Meriam, town clerk.

The Montgomery County Social Service League drive for funds was a success, W. B. Armstrong, of Cabin John, chairman of the finance committee, announced last night at the annual meeting of the organization at the Manor Club, Norbeck. More than $7,000 has been reported, and Chevy Chase, which has not yet turned in its report, is said to have collected more than $1,500. The drive was for $8,000, to complete the annual budget of $24,100, part of which is cared for by other sources.

CASHIER ENDS LIFE, FEARING DEMOTION

Charles J. Summers Was With Winchester Bank for 31 Years.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., June 2.—Charles J. Summers, 50, cashier of the Union Bank of Winchester, was found dead today in a washroom in the bank building, a bullet hole in his right temple and a .32 caliber revolver in his hand. The coroner gave a certificate of suicide.

Floyd Haines, of the bookkeeping staff, found the body shortly before the bank opened. He called Chief of Police C. W. Hollism.

Police found two letters in Summers' pocket. One, dated May 27, expressed displeasure over the prospect of being supplanted by another as cashier, reciting that he had been in the bank's employ 31 years, first as a runner and then through various promotions to cashier. Proposed changes in the personnel and general policy had been considered by several directors, it was said, for some time.

The other letter, dated June 1, named directors he blamed for advocating contemplated changes. After discovery of the body, directors made a thorough investigation of the bank's affairs and announced that all accounts were correct and in order.

Summers was a member of Christ Episcopal Church. Surviving are his widow, formerly Miss Florence Fuller; a son, a daughter and a brother, Stanley Summers, of Washington.

During the day bank directors met with H. B. McCormac, presiding for the first time since his recent election as president to succeed James B. Russell, who was not a candidate for reelection. J. Fred Thwaite was today elected vice president, and Philip Fowle, former Washington attorney, temporary cashier. He already had been advocated by several directors for the position Summers had held for twelve years. Summers was to have been appointed as assistant cashier, according to their plan.

Fifth Area Bankruptcy Record Is Set in April

Richmond, Va., June 2 (A.P.).—The Federal Reserve Bank review of business conditions said there were more bankruptcies in the Fifth Reserve district in April, 1931, than in any other April on record.

One hundred and fifty-six failures were reported by R. G. Dun & Co., but that number was less than any earlier month this year. Liabilities involved in April insolvencies, totaling $3,873,402, also compared unfavorably with all preceding Aprils except that of 1930, when liabilities totaling $7,244,020 were reported.

CONFEDERATE DEAD HONORED IN FAIRFAX

Marr Camp Observes Annual Memorial Day; Services Held at Cemetery.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The annual Confederate Memorial Day services for the Marr Camp of Confederate Veterans were held yesterday in the Fairfax County Courthouse, with about 500 persons in attendance. The program opened with a concert by the Thirteenth Engineers Band of Fort Humphreys.

Eight of the original members of the camp attended the services and roll call by Adjt. Charles Russell. Commander Robert Wiley presided at the meeting. Former Representative R. Walton Moore addressed the gathering, paying a glowing tribute to Jefferson Davis, whose birthday will be celebrated today, and to the soldiers of the South. Representative Moore then introduced C. O'Connor Goolrick, of Fredericksburg, Va., the principal speaker, who spoke of the steady encroachments of the Federal Government upon State rights, the principle, he said, that the Civil War was fought over.

Mr. Goolrick paid great tribute to the military tactics of Gen. Robert E. Lee and "Stonewall" Jackson, giving a brief history of the Army of Northern Virginia. He stated that following 1865 until 1900 the men of the South fought a greater battle in rebuilding their native States. "The men of the South," he declared, "put aside ambition and literally kept their noses to the grindstone stifling genius to regain the ground they had lost and to pay their debts and feed their families."

Following the ceremonies at the courthouse the veterans were taken to the Fairfax Cemetery and a short service was held at the foot of the Confederate mound. Prayer was said by the Rev. Royal A. Rice, pastor of the Southern Methodist Church, and taps was sounded. The veterans and their escorts were served dinner by the Fairfax Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, in the Methodist Church.

The Garden Club, of Fairfax, will be entertained today at a luncheon at Hollin Hall, the home of Mrs. Harley Peyton Wilson, who is vice president of the Fairfax Club. The program will include a debate on roadside advertising between Representative Sol Bloom, of the Bicentennial Commission, and Mr. Lemay, of the General Outdoor Advertising Co.

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors will hold its regular monthly meeting this morning in the board room of the county courthouse. Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the County Circuit Court, has not as yet appointed anyone to fill the vacancy from Falls Church Magisterial District resulting from the resignation of C. H. Powell. It has been rumored that Judge McCarthy will not appoint any one until after the Democratic primary in August.

The School and Community League of Annandale will hold a meeting this evening in the auditorium of the Annandale schoolhouse. Arrangements will be made and committees appointed to take charge of the plans for the community's annual carnival.

County Agricultural Agent H. B. Derr announces that he will give an illustrated lecture this evening in the Jerusalem Church at Fairfax Station on the Home and Garden Improvement contest, which is being conducted in Fairfax County.

The Woodlawn Gavel Club will hold its regular meeting this evening in the Independent Order of Odd Fellows Hall at Accotink.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Southern Methodist Church at Andrew Chapel will hold a meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles E. Roller to make plans for a chicken supper which will be held on June 13.

The Great Falls Grange will hold a meeting this evening in the Grange Hall at Forestville. Mrs. Susie Follin, Mrs. Harry Tavenner and Miss Annie Cornwell have been appointed as members of the refreshment committee by the lecturer, Mrs. Marvin Sanders.

The vestry of the Falls Episcopal Church at Falls Church will hold a special meeting this evening.

The council of the town of Clifton will hold a meeting this evening to determine the amount of town taxes that will be levied for the ensuing tax year.

The Oakton School and Community League will hold its regular meeting this evening in the auditorium of the Oakton Schoolhouse.

The Nazarene Guild of Falls Church will hold a meeting this morning at the home of Mrs. Samuel H. Styles, on Little Falls street.

The Ladies Aid Society of Smiths Chapel, near Colvin Run, will hold a meeting this afternoon at the church. The aid has been invited to join with the Ladies Aid Society of Dranesville to celebrate the aid's silver anniversary at the home of Mrs. Fannie Conner.

Dr. Benjamin Brown Detwiler, 72 years old, died at his home in Herndon early yesterday morning after several months illness. Dr. Detwiler had been a dentist in the town of Herndon for mor than 40 years, moving there from Pennsylvania. He was for many years a vestryman of St. Timothy's Episcopal Church in Herndon and was active in community and civic affairs. He was one of the first to aid in the establishment of a telephone service in that vicinity.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Roberta R. Detwiler, one son Dr. Daniel Landis Detwiler, of Herndon, and two daughters, Mrs. Donald Caller, of Staunton, Va., and Mrs. Beulah Anderson, of Herndon; four grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Benjamin Middleton and Miss Sadie Detwiler, of Herndon.

Funeral services will be held from the residence at 2 o'clock this afternoon with interment following in the Chestnut Grove Cemetery, at Herndon.

Farmer Fatally Hurt When Car Hits Culvert

Franklin, W. Va., June 2—Daniel Judy, 28, of Upper Tract, near here, died in a Harrisonburg, Va., hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Saturday when the automobile in which he was returning from Virginia to his home hit a culvert on the State road, driving a part of the steering wheel into his lung.

The accident happened four miles east of here. The widow and four children survive. He was a farmer.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

LINES AFTER WATCHING THOSE BOBBY JONES MOVIE LESSONS.

I.

I ONCE found my golf not displeasing—
Not wholly disgraceful, I mean;
At "sevens" I did little sneezing
And laughed at an eight on the green;
My style and my stance were queer mixtures,
Though not so disgracefully bad,
But since I've seen Jones in the pictures
I know that my game's pretty sad.

II.

I used to think golfing a pleasure
And find it all rather good fun;
It pleased me to take some bird's measure
With net of one hundred and one.
O'er greensward I used to go flitting
And think that my faults were quite slight,
But, having seen Jones, I'm admitting
I've yet to do anything right.

III.

My grip? Well, I knew it was lacking
In some of the fine points, but, boy!
The crudest results from my smacking
Would bring me elation and joy.
As long as I got no "elevens"
I felt rather carefree and gay,
But since I've seen Jones, why, good heavens!
I know it's a game I don't play.

IV.

MY drive was quite feeble, I figure—
(One hundred and thirty, with wood)
I never did much with my jigger,
But thought what I did rather good.
I found the old game satisfying—
Each hike 'round the links seemed to please,
But since I've seen Jones, well, I'm crying—
I know I'm a poor piece of cheese.

V.

I once thought my iron work nifty
And used to describe certain shots;
I thought a good score "50—50,"
Reflecting rare playing in spots,
I used to think golf was worth playing
And tramped o'er the golf course with glee,
But since I've watched Jones, well, I'm saying
It isn't the same game to me.

VI.

"It's all jolly fun"—thus I'd reason
In smacking the ball 'round the course
And though I missed par all the season
I seldom felt any remorse.
"The sunshine and air's what I'm seeking."
I'd laugh as I foozled each shot,
And since I've heard Bobby Jones speaking
I know that the air's all I got!

A SALESMANSHIP TEST.

IF you think business in your line is bad try to imagine the lot of the man who has the assignment to interest Mahatma Gandhi in suspenders.

Al Trahan, a vaudeville comedian, wants $4,000 a week on the ground that at a command performance in England he made the king laugh. Mr. Trahan may be assuming too much. It is possible the king was laughing at some joke he had heard weeks before.

MOVIE REVIEWS.

I wouldn't try
To sing a song,
If I held my
Half-notes too long.

I think that I
Would wear a fez
If I had hair
Like Lupe Velez.

GROWERS OF APPLES PLAN TO ADVERTISE

Drive in U. S. and Abroad Is Proposed; Agreements Expected Soon.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., June 2.—Producers of approximately 1,000,000 barrels of apples in Virginia will sign agreements to finance an American and foreign advertising campaign on the basis of 2 cents per barrel by the opening of the 1931 season, it was indicated today by Harry F. Byrd, president of the Virginia State Horticultural Society.

Mr. Byrd recently launched the foreign and domestic advertising plan at a meeting of the State society and spurred it a week or two ago at a directors' meeting in Staunton. Since then he has received pledges for 600,000 barrels, and he said today he was confident the 1,000,000-mark would be reached and probably passed by the time the shipping season begins in the early fall. The campaign is to extend over a two-year period.

Mr. Byrd said that in addition to the American and foreign advertising campaign, the State society would also send representatives into Southern markets to reclaim them as natural territory to Virginia growers. In late years apples from the Pacific Northwest have made inroads in the South, and the Virginians now plan to seek the Southern trade again.

It was also announced that Gov. Pollard has indicated his readiness to appoint as foreign representative the person so chosen by the State society. Official appointment by the governor, it was stated, will give the foreign agent standing in the European markets.

Salary and other expenses of the foreign representative will, however, be borne by the growers contributing to the fund.

Elderly Man Dies Of Auto Injuries

Visitor From Philadelphia Struck While Walking in Nearby Virginia.

Morgan Robinson, 74 years old, from the United States Navy Home in Philadelphia, who was visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frieberg, Virginia Highlands, Arlington County, died yesterday at the Emergency Hospital as result of injuries suffered when struck by an automobile on the Washington-Richmond highway, near Addison Station.

Robinson, Mrs. Frieberg and her daughter were on their way to Washington and were about to cross the highway at Addison Station when Robinson is said to have stepped in front of an approaching automobile.

He was taken to the Emergency Hospital where he died within an hour.

Incomplete Joke Jails Alexandria Bootlegger

Ashberry Willis, colored, is of the opinion that there is such a thing as not carrying a joke far enough, particularly when a Federal prohibition agent is mixed up in it.

Willis, arraigned in United States Court, in Alexandria, Va., yesterday, was charged with selling three bottles of whisky to Federal agents. When the Federal men sampled their purchase, however, they found that two bottles contained water. The third, however, caused the downfall of the vendor, for it contained whisky, and Judge Isaac M. Meekins sentenced him to six months in jail.

Man Dies on Way to Aid Sick Maryland Citizen

Annapolis, Md., June 2—Stricken by a heart attack while answering a sick call with members of the rescue squad of West Annapolis Fire Department this morning, Wallace Hambrock, 30 years old, bookkeeper in the Farmers National Bank, Annapolis, died within a few minutes.

He is survived by his wife and young daughter.

Road on Coast Costing $5,000,000 Predicted

Norfolk, Va., June 2 (A.P.).—W. O. Saunders, of Elizabeth City, N. C., predicted today that a paved highway costing approximately $5,000,000 will be built within the next few years along the coasts of North Carolina and Virginia. Mr. Saunders spoke before the annual convention of the Atlantic Coastal Highway Association.

Delegates planned this afternoon to motor to Yorktown, Williamsburg and Jamestown Island.
